Milliken Will Nominate Ford

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Michigan, already keenly involved in the battle for the presidential nomination, gained further attention Tuesday when it was announced that Gov. William Milliken will nominate President Ford. Milliken will place Ford's name in nomination in a speech of about five minutes before the Republican National Convention here tonight. He said he will stress Ford's integrity and honesty.

Ford informed the governor of his choice Tuesday morning, and Milliken later said he was delighted. The announcement of Ford's decision set off a cheering, standing ovation in an afternoon meeting of the Michigan delegation. White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford chose Milliken because "he knows Milliken well and is a personal friend."

He called Milliken a "dynamic, articulate popular Republican governor — it seemed like a good choice for the President." Nessen said there was no apparent political meaning to the choice of Milliken, who is more liberal than Ford and much of the GOP. Milliken himself declined to analyze the move in terms of Republican politics.

Milliken, a Ford delegate, has been a strong supporter of the President despite their disagreement over several issues. He has steadfastly declined to commit himself to supporting Ronald Reagan if he won the nomination. Along with Sen. Robert Griffin — Ford's floor manager here — state party Chairman William McLaughlin and state campaign Chairman Peter Fletcher, Milliken has been a close political adviser to Ford.

The group helped Ford to a smashing presidential primary victory in Michigan last May when they took over the Ford campaign in the face of a Reagan threat to embarrass Ford in his home state, and produced a runaway victory. Nonetheless, Milliken is much less conservative than Ford. He unsuccessfully urged the President to sign jobs legislation to help Michigan recover from the recession, and has been a strong supporter of consumer protection and environmental legislation as governor.

Milliken says he basically agrees with Ford's economic policy, however, and credits him with "turning the economy around."

Milliken said he would emphasize Ford's "ability to restore a sense of honor, dignity and integrity to the governmental process." He said he would avoid criticizing Reagan in the address.

It will be the biggest national speech for the 54-year-old Milliken, who briefly addressed the 1972 convention as chairman of the Republican Governors Conference. Unlike other speakers, however, he has no national political ambition that could be helped or dashed by the talk.

Milliken, a millionaire department-store owner, has been governor since 1969 when he succeeded George Romney, who joined the Nixon administration. He served two terms in the state Senate and four years as lieutenant governor.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford appears firmly in control of the 1976 Republican National Convention as the delegates prepare to choose the party's presidential nominee tonight. He established his dominance with a clear-cut victory on an issue chosen by challenger Ronald Reagan.

The climactic confrontation toward which Ford and Reagan have moved for nine months was hours away and only a reversal that would rank as a political miracle could keep Ford from a first-ballot victory.

After the defeat of Reagan's bid to force Ford to name his running mate this morning, attention turned to the remaining men on Ford's list of prospects, said by one source to number only five now.

Ford was described as delighted with the outcome of the first test of strength at the convention.

A Reagan spokesman said the former California governor still expects to win the presidential nomination. He described Reagan as "disappointed but not completely surprised." But Reagan's campaign director acknowledged that it would be an uphill battle.

After a decisive 1,180-1,069 victory in the first major test of this 31st GOP convention, Ford's strategists worked out a compromise that avoided another floor fight over the foreign policy plank in the party platform.

Backers of both sides arrived at the convention hall Tuesday knowing that before the session ended they would have a clear indication of which man had the strength to prevail. It was an emotional night. The noise and the politics had escalated from the opening day sessions on Monday. The demonstrations when Mrs. Ford and then Mrs. Reagan arrived in the hall were louder and longer than they had been the night before.

Speakers were interrupted as partisans for both candidates tried to shout each other down.

The crucial vote came on Reagan's proposal to require Ford to name his running mate before the balloting for the presidential nomination. Ford's victory by a 111-vote margin was all the more impressive because the President had allowed Reagan to choose the issue and then trounced him in the ultimate test of political power: who can get the votes.

Ford's margin of victory margin was far wider than most observers expected.

That vote was taken within hours of the time the Associated Press delegate survey showed Ford had moved past the 1,130 majority of delegate votes he would need to win the presidential nomination.

Ford's strength continued to climb through the night.

The latest AP tally, based on legal commitments and publicly stated preferences, gave Ford 1,139, Reagan 1,039, with 81 un-

Philippines Quake Toll Soars Over 3,000 Dead

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — The official toll of dead and missing in the earthquakes and tidal waves in the southern Philippines soared to more than 3,000 today, with nearly 30,000 reported homeless. The National Disaster Coordinating Center (NDCC) said 3,103 deaths had been confirmed and that there were at least 2,282 missing, 688 injured and 28,716 homeless following Tuesday's catastrophes.

The casualties were concentrated in the towns and cities along Mindanao island's 500 miles of coastline around the Moro Gulf, on the northern side of the Celebes Sea. The Philippine Air Force was shuttling tons of medicine, food and other supplies to Cotabato, on the eastern shore of the gulf, and Zamboanga, across the gulf at the tip of the Zamboanga peninsula. They were among the hardest hit cities.

Navy ships stationed in Zamboanga were ferrying relief goods to other stricken areas along the coast. President Ford sent President Ferdinand E. Marcos a message expressing sorrow and offering U.S. aid.

Casualties were reported in the provinces of North and South Zamboanga, Basilan, North and South Lanao, Cotabato and Misamis Oriental, and the cities of Zamboanga, Basilan, Cagayan de Oro and Cotabato. Other provinces in the central Philippines and on southern Luzon Island also felt the tremors, but there were no reports of casualties in those areas.

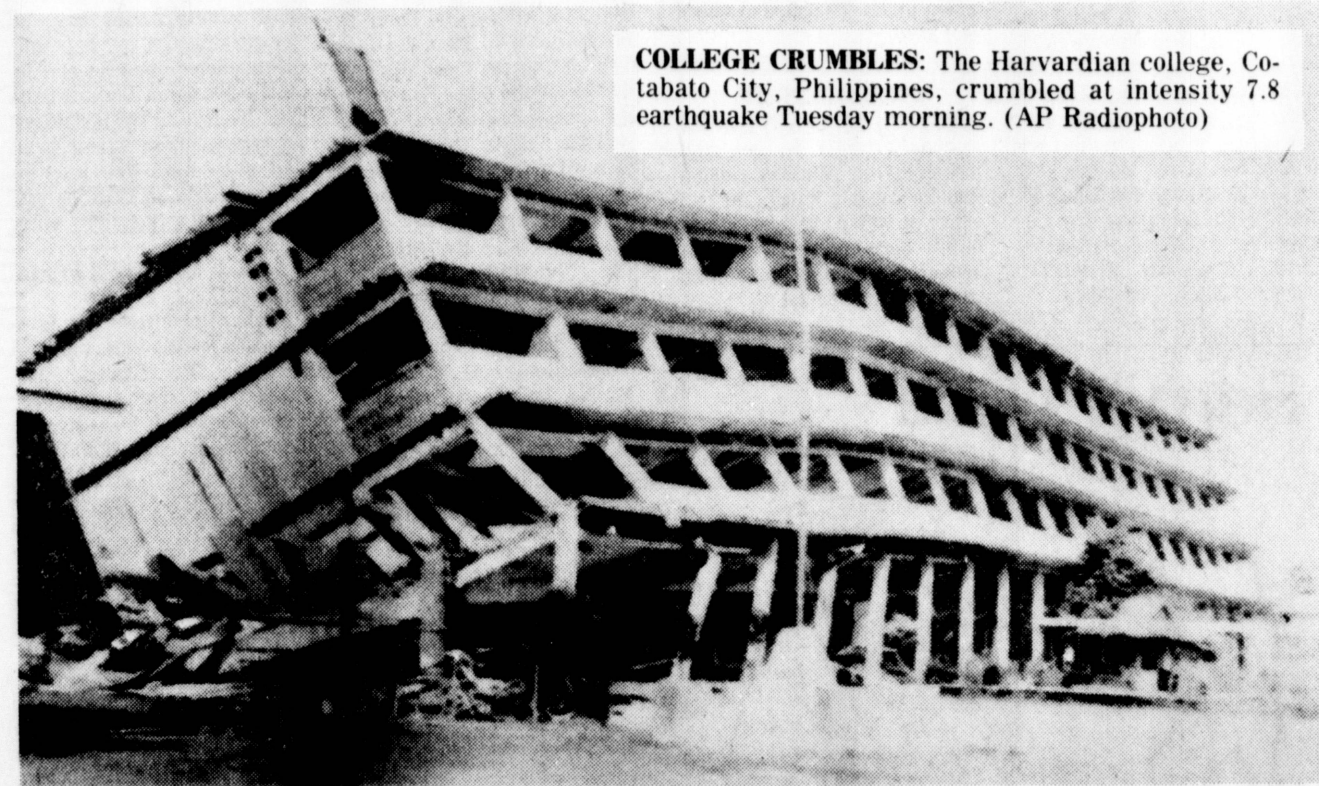

The first quake struck shortly after midnight Monday, while the people of Mindanao were sleeping. It was centered in the Celebes Sea between Mindanao and Indonesia's Celebes island and sent 24-foot-high tidal waves crashing ashore, carrying away fishermen's stilt shacks as far as 100 yards inland. The first quake was followed by the usual aftershocks, and shortly after noon Tuesday another major tremor hit. But by then the survivors of the first quake had moved into the streets and other open spaces, and it was not likely that there were more casualties.

The National Geophysical Observatory said the first quake registered 7.8 on the Richter Scale, while the U.S. earthquake center in Golden, Colo., got a reading of 8.0. The second quake registered 6.8 on U.S. seismographs in Honolulu. The Richter Scale is a measure of ground motion, and every increase of one whole number means the ground motion is 10 times greater. A tremor registering 6 indicates severe damage; a reading of 7 is a major quake, capable of widespread, heavy damage, and 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.3.

Meanwhile, Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, reported that the major earthquake in the mountains of central China Monday night caused only slight damage because it had been predicted and officials had taken precautions. It occurred about two hours before the first Philippine quake about 700 miles southwest of Peking and registered 7.9 on the Richter Scale, Hsinhua said.

North Korea Gang Kills Yank Officers

SEOUL, North Korea (AP) — About 30 North Korean guards armed with axes and metal pikes killed two U.S. Army officers and wounded four American enlisted men and five South Koreans in the demilitarized zone today, the United Nations Command announced.

The U.N. Command said the two American officers were "brutally murdered in an unprovoked assault." The announcement made no mention of any North Korean casualties.

The U.N. Command gave this account of the attack:

The two American officers, a South Korean officer and several American enlisted men were escorting five Korean service corps workers who were trimming trees in Panmunjom, the truce village in the center of the buffer zone between North and South Korea.

Two North Korean officers and several North Korean guards came to the area in mid-morning as the South Koreans were "routinely trimming branches" from a tree in the joint security area. The tree was about 35 to 40 yards from a U.N. Command checkpoint at the south side of the Bridge of No Return, over which prisoner exchanges took place after the Korean armistice.

After some discussion during which one of the North Korean officers expressed objection to the tree trimming, the North Koreans demanded that the South Koreans stop the work.

Shortly after, a North Korean vehicle brought additional guards, and one of the North Korean officers was heard to tell them to "kill" the Americans and South Koreans. The attack followed.

The two Americans died from massive head injuries and stab wounds, a Pentagon spokesman said in Washington.

Navy ships stationed in Zamboanga were ferrying relief goods to other stricken areas along the coast. President Ford sent President Ferdinand E. Marcos a message expressing sorrow and offering U.S. aid.

Casualties were reported in the provinces of North and South Zamboanga, Basilan, North and South Lanao, Cotabato and Misamis Oriental, and the cities of Zamboanga, Basilan, Cagayan de Oro and Cotabato. Other provinces in the central Philippines and on southern Luzon Island also felt the tremors, but there were no reports of casualties in those areas.

people of Mindanao were sleeping. It was centered in the Celebes Sea between Mindanao and Indonesia's Celebes island and sent 24-foot-high tidal waves crashing ashore, carrying away fishermen's still shacks as far as 100 yards inland. The first quake was followed by the usual aftershocks, and shortly after noon Tuesday another major tremor hit. But by then the survivors of the first quake had moved into the streets and other open spaces, and it was not likely that there were more casualties.

The National Geophysical Observatory said the first quake registered 7.8 on the Richter Scale, while the U.S. earthquake center in Golden, Colo., got a reading of 8.0. The second quake registered 6.8 on U.S. seismographs in Honolulu. The Richter Scale is a measure of ground motion, and every increase of one whole number means the ground motion is 10 times greater. A tremor registering 6 indicates severe damage; a reading of 7 is a major quake, capable of widespread, heavy damage, and 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.3.

Meanwhile, Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, reported that the major earthquake in the mountains of central China Monday night caused only slight damage because it had been predicted and officials had taken precautions. It occurred about two hours before the first Philippine quake about 700 miles southwest of Peking and registered 7.9 on the Richter Scale, Hsinhua said.

North Korea Gang Kills Yank Officers

SEOUL, North Korea (AP) — About 30 North Korean guards armed with axes and metal pikes killed two U.S. Army officers and wounded four American enlisted men and five South Koreans in the demilitarized zone today, the United Nations Command announced.

Shortly after, a North Korean vehicle brought additional guards, and one of the North Korean officers was heard to tell them to "kill" the Americans and South Koreans. The attack followed.

The two Americans died from massive head injuries and stab wounds, a Pentagon spokesman said in Washington.

The identifications of the dead

The U.N. Command gave this account of the attack: The two American officers, a South Korean officer and several American enlisted men were escorting five Korean service corps workers who were trimming trees in Panmunjom, the truce village in the center of the buffer zone between North and South Korea.

Two North Korean officers and several North Korean guards came to the area in mid-morning as the South Koreans were "routinely trimming branches" from a tree in the joint security area. The tree was about 35 to 40 yards from a U.N. Command checkpoint at the south side of the Bridge of No Return, over which prisoner exchanges took place after the Korean armistice.

After some discussion during which one of the North Korean officers expressed objection to the tree trimming, the North Koreans demanded that the South Koreans stop the work.

Battling The Postal Establishment

Because possibly the public has come to look upon the Postal Service in the vein of a mother-in-law joke, neither the Democratic nor Republican national conventions felt compelled to nail a plank on the subject to their platforms this year.

This silence, however, cannot be taken as any implication that the mails are improving or even holding their own.

Indeed a news dispatch from Pittsburgh, Kansas, this week indicates the reverse is gaining.

Five months ago Robert E. Black founded Alternate Systems, Inc., as a private carrier of first class mail.

He theorized he could deliver a letter in and around Pittsburgh for a nickel and make money in the process.

The Postal Service charges 13 cents for the identical service and depending on how its cost accounting procedures can be accorded a for accuracy it may or may not do better than break even on the operation.

Magazine publishers heavily depend upon mail circulation claim they are being penalized to subsidize all other services performed by the Service. PS inferentially says the letter writer is being rapped to carry the total load.

Wherever the truth mayfall, Black's program moved PS to ask the Justice Department to put Alternate Systems out of business.

The U.S. District Attorney at Kansas City hailed Black and his company into federal court under a Congressional enactment making it a criminal offense to compete with the Postal System.

The Court found both defendants guilty and fined them $500 apiece. He suspended the fine against AS for as long as it does not deliver mail and Black's fine is being held up pending an appeal.

At issue is that section in the U.S. Constitution which says, among other things, "the Congress shall have power to establish post offices and post roads."

Although there is no clearcut court ruling on the matter, Congress and the Postal System for generations have taken the position this endows Uncle Sam with a monopoly in the field.

There are a few limited exceptions to that interpretation.

The Railway Express Agency was created years ago to charter a railroad owned and operated handling of freight and baggage within specified areas and between designated point to point cargo spots.

The REA began falling apart at the seams two decades ago, probably because it functioned with the rigidity characterizing their railroad owners and went into bankruptcy recently.

It has been replaced by United Parcel Service which has also snapped up much of the parcel post function provided by the Postal Service. UPS has accomplished the feat through the mechanism of delivering faster at a cheaper rate and with better handling of the cargo.

If bets are to be laid on Black's appeal, the odds would have to run against him.

The government monopoly concept on the mails is well nigh universal throughout the world, certainly for privately composed messages and the Constitution's wording is sufficiently elastic for a court to find that the federal government must exercise certain functions to the exclusion of all others.

The difficulty in our legal procedure is that the court may not or at least should not draw upon a comparison between the American standard of service as against that of foreign nations.

If it did, the court could not escape concluding that the only excuse for a monopoly is its quality of performance.

Measured by that standard, Black could resume his business.

After Larry O'Brien who served briefly as Postmaster General in LBJ's Cabinet threw up his hands at the job, Congress thought it had found a winner by converting the Postal Department into a government owned corporation styled the Postal System.

The theory and the hope was that by divorcing the Service from the Congressional apron strings, it would become self supporting and more efficient.

The transition was one in name only.

All of the fundamental ills in the Postal Department simply moved into a new office and today the Postal Service is farther behind the procession than PD ever dreamed possible.

The decline does not affect Postal Service where life, if somewhat humdrum, is not unpleasant.

It just leaves the public limping farther to the rear each passing day.

Carter Campaign Faces A $2,000 Explanation

A hardened politician, so the story goes, one time was explaining to a novice the difference between an honest man and a dishonest one. The honest man, said the pro, is a man who once bought stays bought.

Money still buys votes, sorry to say, and most politicians who have made more than one trip around the block know it. One modern difference is that presidential campaigns which accept matching funds from the federal Treasury, under the new campaign financing law, may be violating the law by dishing out "street money," as vote-buying funds sometimes are called.

An Oakland, Calif., black minister, an influential political force among his congregation, has gotten the Jimmy Carter organization in difficulty by accepting $2,000 for his services in holding a Carter rally in his church prior to the primary.

This sum was listed by campaign officials as church rental, but the minister was more explicit. "I don't work for no damn politician for nothing," was his reported explanation.

That $2,000 is part of some $150,000 the Carter people may have to refund to the Treasury from the $3 million in matching funds so far received. A relatively minor item in an undertaking as expensive as a presidential campaign, but it serves to illustrate the new rules which go along with the federal funds.

"Street money" may be the source of many an old political joke. But under the new rules the man caught doing it out may find the joke is on him.

RECYCLING FLAG WRONG, SHE SAYS

I also am writing in regard to the flag quilt. I have read the original article and quite frankly I was shocked. I've also read Mr. Atkinson's letter and Mrs. Burke's reply; my feeling and facts in this matter are as follows. The lady is completely wrong in her attempts to, as she says, recycle the flag, as Mr. Atkinson so stated.

She said she asked for permission to take these flags out of the trash container. As we all know, these flags are placed on graves of veterans just prior to Memorial Day, to honor our war dead on this day. In our community, the American Legion takes care of this at 3 local cemeteries. These flags are left on the graves until the day after Flag Day, then they are removed and taken back to the post home. They are either stored for later use or held for disposal at a later date at a proper flag burning ceremony.

If the cemetery rules state that the flags be removed by a certain date, it is then the obligation of the veterans organization who placed the flags to remove them, no one else. If they are late in doing this, the cemetery sexton or the cemetery board chairman should contact that organization to remind them. This is according to the flag law and interpretations, Public Law 829, Seventy-Seventh Congress, Chapter 806, Second Session H.J. Res. 359, approved June 22, 1942. I could write the entire resolution but this can be obtained I'm sure from your Congressman.

The following sections, I do believe, pertain to the grave flags and the lady's quilt. The flag should never be used as drapery of any sort whatsoever, never festooned, drawn back, nor up, in folds, but always allowed to fall free. The flag should never be fastened, displayed, used, or stored in such a manner as will permit it to be easily torn, soiled, or damaged in any way. Do not use the flag as a portion of a costume or athletic cushions, handkerchiefs, or the like. The flag should never be displayed with the union down, save as a signal of dire distress. The flag, when it is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning.

When should small flags displayed on graves on Memorial Day be removed? The flags should be removed, beginning the next day; however, if the staffs have been firmly inserted into the ground, or securely fastened to the cross or tombstone, so that they will not fall on the ground or be displayed with the staff at an angle other than vertical, the flags need not be removed for several days. To permit them to remain until they become soiled and torn shows flagrant disrespect to the flag.

There are a lot of citizens of our great country who do not know or care about the flag law and interpretations. I do think this lady does love and respect our country. I feel she didn't know any better, but now that she does, the flags in that quilt should be burned in proper respect for our flag.

System Could Be Life Saver

WASHINGTON — You're in bed and you hear a noise in the living room. Is it the cat or the Boston Strangler? Quickly you reach for the phone, only to remember that you've forgotten the police number. You dial the operator. "Help!" You say, "Emergency!"

"What town are you in?" she asks.

"This town," you growl in a whisper.

"I'm sorry," she explains, "I'm a regional operator. I'll have to have the name of your town. If you live in a rural area, I'll have to have the name of the nearest town. If you live too far from any town, I suggest you give me the name of your county. Now, which is it? Sir? Sir? Hello, sir, are you still there..."

According to surveys not one in a thousand Americans knows the number of his police department, and so the fiction above is all too often a reality. Police files are stuffed with the tragic consequences of the telephone help that was never summoned: Rapes, robberies, murders. In a few of the latter instances corpses have been found near unheeded receivers, their hands futilely clutching the white pages.

And it needn't be. Technology is easily available which can transform nearly every community phone system in the nation into a simplified emergency tool consisting of three numbers: 911. Already the process has been established in almost 600 systems serving 35 million people. With remarkably little effort and expense it could be expanded rapidly to cover and protect almost everyone.

Pioneered in Europe, and especially in Britain where the digits 999 have united the Isles since 1937, the emergency telephone system has served several nations well in both war and peace. Help was only three numbers away during the Nazi bombings of World War II.

And as far as crime prevention goes, according to Rep. J. Edward Roush (D-Ind.), the technology has doubtless cut crime at least somewhat. Roush says British police tell stories of burglars nabbed almost before the potential victims have hung up their phones.

With this good history as the rationale, it was Roush who with others brought the system to America. In 1967 he joined American Telephone and Telegraph in a campaign to establish the program in every village. A town in Alabama, Haleyville, was the first on line. Roush's own town of Huntington, Ind., was second. Then came New York City where emergency calls doubled with the new centralization. And what has proved to be a long haul was underway.

The system has had unarguable success. Not only have police, fire and ambulance aid been simply put at people's fingers, but in some cases other emergency agencies such as Civil Defense have hooked in as well. AT&T coordinator Warren Jacoby says uncounted lives have been saved or at least secured. Roush gives the example of an 83-year-old woman in Chicago who just had time to dial 911 before an intruder grabbed her. Police got there in time to rescue her and arrest him.

And yet the 911 conversions are by no means an American priority. Aides to Roush say that many people still do not know of the system and its potential. AT&T's Jacoby says that many towns mistakenly believe conversion to be prohibitively expensive (according to best estimates, national conversion would cost a total of $130 million, or 62 cents per capita).

Finally, and most unfortunately, there are inter agency rivalries which have blocked 911 in some communities. The police chief may want the central phone, so, too, the fire chief, or perhaps the mayor feels it would be best located under his control.

Politicians' Kin Get Into The Act

KANSAS CITY —

"Republicans can have a vision, they can be above personalities" — President Ford, speaking in the White House rose garden two months ago.

"Sometimes I think he'd rather win a convention than win an election" — Ronald Reagan, discussing his rival in Los Angeles two months ago.

It's been, oh, such fun, all that meaningful Republican rhetoric. But at last the party is getting down to business this week, and in the meantime the Democrats and other folk in the capital are carrying on as usual.

ITEM: Those who claim Jimmy Carter doesn't have a sense of humor weren't present for his first meeting last week with the new Democratic National Committee Campaign Steering Committee. He pulled a fast one on Chairman Robert Strauss, who is a champ at one-upmanship himself.

Carter began with a long, serious-sounding discussion of Strauss' reputation for being obstreperous and aggressive. Carter said he worried about how to control that political machine of enormous energy and ability. Strauss began to look uncomfortable.

Then, said Carter, he found the perfect way to keep Strauss in line. He suddenly held up a giant poster photograph of a very stern-looking elderly woman — the chairman's mother-in-law.

Strauss and Carter laughed so hard tears came in their eyes. It seems there was a real basis for the gag. Carter once spent an hour and a half trying to reach Strauss by telephone; the line was continually busy because Strauss was talking to his mother-in-law.

ITEM: Ronald Reagan's associates insist that if he loses the GOP nomination he will cooperate with the Ford campaign because he is not a vindictive man. Few, however, say the same about his wife Nancy.

Years ago, I wrote a column criticizing Reagan's campaign for the California governorship. One of his advisors later sidled up to me and observed that the candidate probably wasn't bothered by it but warned, "Never go into a ladies' room alone with Nancy."

ITEM: Sen. Edmund Muskie denies my report that he refused to fill out the questionnaire Jimmy Carter gave all vice-presidential hopefuls, asking about finances and intimate details of their private lives. He says he was not offered a questionnaire by Carter or his staff until several days after his visit to Plains and that he answered all the questions when asked.

So much for good old RELIABLE SOURCE.

ITEM: Rep. Bella Abzug is notorious for being the toughest employer on Capitol Hill. Staffers can seldom take her blunt manner and excessive job demands for more than a few months.

But she has a rival who is coming up fast. Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., elected in a special election only a year ago, also has had a constant staff turnover. The word is out that his office is a bad place to work.

ITEM: Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., ruefully describing Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long's ability to get what he wanted in the tax bill, "He starts to paint a picture, 'telling us this loophole is a thing of great beauty... and after six hours go by and has convinced the Senate 'That ain't no loophole you see there, that is an optical illusion.'"

"Why, that is just a great big beautiful halo," and everybody can vote for a halo."

Not only have police, fire and ambulance aid been simply put at people's fingers, but in some cases other emergency agencies such as Civil Defense have hooked in as well. AT&T coordinator Warren Jacoby says uncounted lives have been saved or at least secured. Roush gives the example of an 83-year-old woman in Chicago who just had time to dial 911 before an intruder grabbed her. Police got there in time to rescue her and arrest him.

And yet the 911 conversions are by no means an American priority. Aides to Roush say that many people still do not know of the system and its potential. AT&T's Jacoby says that many towns mistakenly believe conversion to be prohibitively expensive (according to best estimates, national conversion would cost a total of $130 million, or 62 cents per capita).

Finally, and most unfortunately, there are inter agency rivalries which have blocked 911 in some communities. The police chief may want the central phone, so, too, the fire chief, or perhaps the mayor feels it would be best located under his control.

Politicians' Kin Get Into The Act

KANSAS CITY — "Republicans can have a vision, they can be above personalities," — President Ford, speaking in the White House rose garden two months ago.

"Sometimes I think he'd rather win a convention than win an election" — Ronald Reagan, discussing his rival in Los Angeles two months ago.

It's been, oh, such fun, all that meaningful Republican rhetoric. But at last the party is getting down to business this week, and in the meantime the Democrats and other folk in the capital are carrying on as usual.

ITEM: Those who claim Jimmy Carter doesn't have a sense of humor weren't present for his first meeting last week with the new Democratic National Committee Campaign Steering Committee. He pulled a fast one on Chairman Robert Strauss, who is a champ at one-upmanship himself.

Carter began with a long, serious-sounding discussion of Strauss' reputation for being obstreperous and aggressive. Carter said he worried about how to control that political machine of enormous energy and ability. Strauss began to look uncomfortable.

Then, said Carter, he found the perfect way to keep Strauss in line. He suddenly held up a giant poster photograph of a very stern-looking elderly woman — the chairman's mother-in-law.

Strauss and Carter laughed so hard tears came to their eyes. It seems there was a real basis for the gag. Carter once spent an hour and a half trying to reach Strauss by telephone; the line was continually busy because Strauss was talking to his mother-in-law.

ITEM: Ronald Reagan's associates insist that if he loses the GOP nomination he will cooperate with the Ford campaign because he is not a vindictive man. Few, however, say the same about his wife Nancy.

Years ago, I wrote a column criticizing Reagan's campaign for the California governorship. One of his advisors later sidled up to me and observed that the candidate probably wasn't bothered by it but warned, "Never go into a ladies' room alone with Nancy."

ITEM: Sen. Edmund Muskie denies my report that he refused to fill out the questionnaire Jimmy Carter gave all vice-presidential hopefuls, asking about finances and intimate details of their private lives. He says he was not offered a questionnaire by Carter or his staff until several days after his visit to Plains and that he answered all the questions when asked.

So much for good old RELIABLE SOURCE.

ITEM: Rep. Bella Abzug is notorious for being the toughest employer on Capitol Hill. Staffers can seldom take her blunt manner and excessive job demands for more than a few months.

But she has a rival who is coming up fast. Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., elected in a special election only a year ago, also has had a constant staff turnover. The word is out that his office is a bad place to work.

ITEM: Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., ruefully describing Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long's ability to get what he wanted in the tax bill: "He starts to paint a picture, telling us this loophole is a thing of great beauty... and after six hours go by he has convinced the Senate 'That ain't no loophole you see there, that is an optical illusion.'"

"Why, that is just a great big beautiful halo," and everybody can vote for a halo."

Chimney Death Case Is Dropped

By JOHN FENNELL
Staff Writer

A murder charge was dismissed Monday in Berrien Fifth District court against Gregory Prince, accused in the death of his wife, whose body was found in 1974 stuffed inside the chimney of a Lincoln township home. Prince was committed to a mental institution earlier this month.

The dismissal was granted by District Judge John T. Hammond at the request of the Prosecutor's office. Prosecutor John A. Smietanka said the charge was dismissed without prejudice, which means the state can reinstitute it at any time.

Smietanka said the murder charge would most likely be reinstated against Prince if he is freed from the Kalamazoo state hospital where he was committed by Probate Judge Ronald Lange Aug. 4.

"If he is out in a reasonable amount of time, yes, we'll bring the charge against him again," Smietanka said. "But if it is in 10 or 20 years from now it would be a different story. It would be just too difficult to predict," he added.

Judge Lange ordered Prince, 27, committed for 60 days, after which time he will be eligible for a series of reviews, and could conceivably be released at any time. However, it is not expected that Prince will be released in the near future, Smietanka said.

Prince is accused of murdering his wife Linda, 22, whose decomposed body was found stuffed inside the chimney at the residence of restaurateur Emil Tosi, Two months before that, in June, 1974, Prince reported to police that his wife had disappeared from their home at 4328 Ridge road, Lincoln township.

Dr. Charles Payne, a St. Joseph psychiatrist, who examined Prince testified during the commitment hearing that on July 23, 1976, the day of Prince's arrest, Prince gave a statement to police admitting he killed his wife.

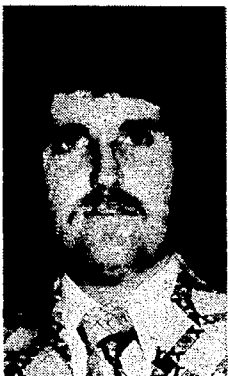

Prince later retracted the statement, and told his father he had made the admission because he "wanted help," according to Payne's testimony.

Judge Lange said at the time of the hearing that he found Prince to be "a person mentally ill and who requires treatment," adding that Prince met all the criteria for commitment.

Prince is eligible for another hearing 90 days from the time of the first to determine if he is still mentally ill. If he is still found to be mentally ill, he gets another hearing in 90 days, then six months, and then an annual review of his case, according to Lange.

If the hospital where Prince is committed fails to send notice to the court before any of the scheduled hearings saying Prince needs continuing treatment, Prince will be released, Lange said.

An autopsy at the time Mrs. Prince's body was discovered failed to establish a cause of death.

WHFB Speaker Honored

Earl Nightingale, radio commentator on human behavior who is aired daily over Radio Station WHFB, was to be awarded the 1976 Golden Gavel award of Toastmasters International today in New Orleans.

His daily program, "Our Changing World", has been called one of the most-listened-to radio and television series. It is now sponsored commercially on nearly 1,000 stations throughout the United States, Canada, and 10 other countries.

As winner of the annual Toastmasters award, Nightingale was to be honored as the Speaker of the Year during the Golden Gavel luncheon of the Toastmasters 45th annual convention in New Orleans.

His commentary is broadcast in this area every Monday through Saturday at 8:20 a.m. over WHFB. His recording, "The Strangest Secret", earned a Gold Record for sales exceeding a million copies—reportedly the only recording of its kind to receive that award.

BOARD WILL APPEAL CETA FINDING

Benton To Reinstate 1 Mill Tax Levy

The Benton township board of trustees last night voted unanimously to re-instate a 1-mill property tax levy to help meet payments of water revenue bonds.

The board also voted 5 to 1 to appeal to the U.S. Department of Labor the findings of a hearing officer that allege discrimination in township employment practices under the federally-funded Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program.

Board action on the added tax was recommended by Township Controller Elden G. Piontek and will be levied with next December's tax bill. Piontek said:

"As of March 31, 1976, the Berrien County Water Supply

System Number 1 account had a fund balance of $221,128.84. This fund is established solely for the retirement of water debt. Debt obligations to be met before the 1977 tax year total $268,869, which leaves a deficit of $47,740.16.

"Although some revenue will be realized during the year to offset the possible deficit, I would recommend that 1 mill be levied on the tax roll for water debt retirement. I believe that according to the ordinance, the township has the authority to reinstate a levy for water debt retirement."

Township Clerk Catheryn Sirk said the 30-year bonds run to 1998. Mrs. Sirk said the township levied a debt retirement tax, up to 2 mills between the start of bond payments in 1968 to 1973. She said the tax was then dropped because of a large surplus of money. She said the surplus had dwindled, largely because of continuing extension of the water system in the township.

The township installs water lines and purchases water from Benton Harbor. The township then re-sells the water to customers. The township keeps one-third of the re-sale income and Benton Harbor receives two-thirds, it was reported. The township last year received about $40,000 from its one-third share.

Mrs. Sirk said the 1-mill would be billed next December and probably would be kept on the rolls in years to come. She said township residents authorized the tax in 1968. The township tax rate will increase from the present 7 mills to 8 mills. Each mill currently brings in about $100,000. The 7 current mills include 1 for general operating and 3, each, for police and fire protection.

The CETA issue stemmed from a hearing last month, conducted by Atty. Richard B. Lindenfeld, St. Joseph. He wrote the opinion that there was merit to some charges by past and present employees. The opinion went to the Berrien county CETA board July 23.

Township Atty. Thomas N. Robinson last night said he would contact the U.S. Department of Labor, Chicago, to find out when an appeal can be heard and what the format would be—a hearing or trial. Robinson said he doesn't yet know.

Robinson told the board the county CETA hearing officer found the township guilty of assigning two blacks to inferior jobs and fired two whites without cause. Robinson claimed there was "no justification in the findings." He said the local hearing took no sworn testimony and included hearsay remarks. He said people present "popped off" verbally during the 1½-day hearing.

Charges were originally filed early this year against township Treasurer Joseph Postelli who then also headed the parks department. The township board's executive committee ruled there was no justification to the charges. Charges then were filed against the township.

Postelli was absent from last night's meeting and was reported by Mrs. Sirk to be ill. Opposition to the appeal was by Trustee Ken Malkin. After the meeting, Malkin said he didn't want to comment, until after the appeal process was over. All others supported the appeal, proposed by Trustee Chester Jullay and seconded by Trustee Walter Slowik.

The board in other matters: —Hired Architect Richard A. Schramm, Kalamazoo, to make initial drawings for a proposed new central fire station, later to be expanded to also house the police department behind the township hall. The township currently has $213,000 in federal revenue sharing money for the project.

—Voted to sell the township-owned former Model Cities neighborhood center building, 1655 Highland avenue, to Kechkaylo Real Estate Co., for $10,000. Citizens approved the sale at the annual meeting.

—Authorized the executive committee to prepare a contract to help support a dental clinic operated by Dr. Harzel Taylor, and to advance the clinic $7,000. It was reported that the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce will be the umbrella agency for the clinic and handle bookkeeping and administration. This previously was done by the Berrien county health department. The township and Benton Harbor each would contribute monthly support payments to the clinic, it was reported. The township's share is yet to be determined and will come from Community Development money.

—Heard a request from Daniel Banks, 942 Chicago avenue, for Community Development funds to help bring his home up to code. Banks said he is a senior citizen who needed help. Judd Spray, CD director, said Banks' home is not in the present CD area for rehabilitation. Spray said it possibly might be included next year, but a citizens' advisory committee would have to help decide.

—Approved a street sale Sept. 17-18 for the Disabled American Veterans organization.

Benton Candidate Asks For Recount

A candidate who was defeated by seven votes for the Democratic nomination for Benton township treasurer has filed papers with the Berrien county clerk's office asking for a recount.

Clerk Forrest H. Kesterke said Willie C. Askew, Sr., filed for the recount yesterday, the deadline for such requests. Kesterke noted the recount probably won't be held for several weeks because the state board of canvassers still has to finish its canvass of the August primary.

Askew was defeated in his bid for the treasurer's nomination by Trustee Ken Malkin by a 549-542 margin. Unofficial vote totals had given Malkin the edge 569-542, but the Berrien board of canvassers dropped 20 votes from Malkin's unofficial totals because of error in absentee ballots.

Kesterke noted Askew was the only candidate to file recount papers with his office.

In another Benton township matter dealing with the election, the two candidates for the Democratic nomination for supervisor filed campaign expense reports with the county clerk's office. Winner Catheryn Sirk listed $300 expenditures and $225 in receipts, while her opponent, Joseph Postelli, listed $142 spent and $40 received.

An unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for Lincoln township supervisor also filed his reports, with Ronald W. Schultz listing $197 expenditures and no receipts. Winner Bernice Tretheway and a committee for her election previously filed reports listing $1,506 in expenses and $1,044 in receipts.

ASSUMES DUTIES: Warren C. Andrews, 41, has assumed duties as group director of personnel and labor relations for the Benton Harbor school district. A graduate of Benton Harbor high school, Andrews was hired to the $26,500 a year post last July. He recently held similar post with Sault Ste. Marie public schools. Andrews replaces John Fehsenfeld, who resigned to accept post with another school district.

Stephen Docter Family Leaving

Atty. and Mrs. Stephen Docter, residents of the Twin Cities for the past 10 years, are moving with their three daughters to a 40,000 acre cattle ranch 75 miles north of Phoenix, Ariz.

MRS. BEVERLY DOCTER

The couple will become part of the administration and faculty at The Orme school, a coed boarding school for about 200 students in grades 8-12, which is located in the middle of, and is a part of the ranch.

They will begin their jobs next month and will be leaving from their present home at 2809 Evergreen drive, St. Joseph, on Aug. 27. Their new address will be Quarter Circle V Bar Ranch, Mayer, Ariz., 86333.

Docter, 42, will join the school's administration and his wife, Beverly, 36, will teach 10th grade history.

Docter has been trade regulations counsel for Whirlpool Corp. for 10 years. He also served as chairman of the St. Joseph Public School Citizens Advisory council the past two years.

Mrs. Docter has been active in numerous school related activities in St. Joseph, including the Jefferson school Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) and the art history program.

ATTY. STEPHEN DOCTER

The couple first met at the ranch when they were counselors at the camp during their college years.

Docter said, "We greatly enjoyed our 10 years in the Twin Cities and plan to return periodically to visit friends and keep up on the growth of the area. We especially appreciated the opportunity we had to work with the administrators and teachers of the St. Joseph school system."

The Docters' children are Laura, 12, Karen, 9, and Cathy, 6.

Women Win Flag Request

The women's "lib" movement won its request last night, and the Benton township hall flag on Thursday, Aug. 26, will fly at half mast. Berrien county chapter of the National Women's Organization (NOW) made the request in a letter to the board of trustees. It says half the population (women) lack full citizen rights. NOW's Action day is Aug. 26, and the flag at half mast should focus attention to the group's desired equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution. However, the clerk mast flag idea brought differing votes from the township board's two women members. Mrs. Catheryn Sirk supported it, while Trustee Margaret Crisnal opposed. Other members (men) supported the request, but there was scant comment.

KARATE TEACHER'S MURDER TRIAL STARTS

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A murder trial began yesterday in Berrien Circuit court for a Benton Harbor karate school owner accused of killing a teenage girl and leaving her body in a rural pine grove. Five prosecution witnesses took the stand during the first of the scheduled eight days of trial for Charles Edward Neal, 25, of 1260 East Empire avenue, Benton township. Neal is the owner of Mr. Neal's Karate school on Pipestone street.

Neal is charged with killing Laverne Cornelius, 17, who disappeared from her home at 1823 Eastland avenue, Benton township, on Feb. 7, 1975. Parts of the girl's decomposed body were discovered April 1, 1975, in a pine grove off True road in Berrien township.

Two witnesses described finding parts of the body of the girl, who was reportedly eight months pregnant at the time of her death. Another police officer testified he took pictures at the scene, and a fourth witness described the location where the body was discovered.

The main witness Tuesday was Dr. Robert Sundick, a professor of anthropology from Western Michigan University. Sundick testified he had examined the bones and skull but was unable to find a cause of death. He noted, however, that all the bones came from a female.

He also testified that the skull was broken at the base where the sections of a skull are joined together, but he said the break could have occurred because of decay rather than a blow.

She said prosecution witnesses will testify that Neal was seen with a girl at the pine grove on the night Miss Cornelius was reported missing; that Neal was the father of the unborn child and was upset because of the pregnancy; and that Neal had been dating Miss Cornelius for a substantial length of time but broke off relations when he learned the girl was pregnant.

She said other witnesses will show Miss Cornelius had said she would be right back when she left her home on Feb. 7; that a girl wearing the same type of coat as Miss Cornelius was seen getting into or out of a car near the pine grove on Feb. 7; and that Neal made alibi statements which are false.

Defense Atty. Peter Kosick, of St. Joseph, said he would show a number of prosecution witnesses each gave differing statements to authorities. He also said he would show Neal was a non-violent man and indicated an alibi defense would be used, with Neal claiming to have been at his karate school on the night of Feb. 7. Kosick also charged the facts presented by the prosecution would not support a guilty verdict.

The eight women and six men on the jury in Judge William S. White's court will resume hearing testimony this morning. After all testimony is concluded, two jurors will be excused to make a 12-member jury.

They will begin their jobs next month and will be leaving from their present home at 2809 Evergreen drive, St. Joseph, on Aug. 27. Their new address will be Quarter Circle V Bar Ranch, Mayer, Ariz., 86333.

Docter, 42, will join the school's administration and his wife, Beverly, 36, will teach 10th grade history.

Docter said, "We greatly enjoyed our 10 years in the Twin Cities and plan to return periodically to visit friends and keep up on the growth of the area. We especially appreciated the opportunity we had to work with the administrators and teachers of the St. Joseph school system."

Women Win Flag Request

The women's "lib" movement won its request last night, and the Benton township hall flag on Thursday, Aug. 26, will fly at half mast. Berrien county chapter of the National Women's Organization (NOW) made the request in a letter to the board of trustees. It says half the population (women) lack full citizen rights. NOW's Action day is Aug. 26, and the flag at half mast should focus attention to the group's desired equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution. However, the half mast flag idea brought differing votes from the township board's two women members. Clerk Cathryn Sirk supported it, while Trustee Margaret Crisnal opposed. Other members (men) supported the request, but there was scant comment.

KARATE TEACHER'S MURDER TRIAL STARTS

BY SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A murder trial began yesterday in Berrien Circuit court for a Benton Harbor karate school owner accused of killing a teenage girl and leaving her body in a rural pine grove. Five prosecution witnesses took the stand during the first of the scheduled eight days of trial for Charles Edward Neal, 25, of 1200 East Empire avenue, Benton township. Neal is the owner of Mr. Neal's Karate school on Pipestone street.

Neal is charged with killing Laverne Cornelius, 17, who disappeared from her home at 1923 Eastland avenue, Benton township, on Feb. 7, 1975. Parts of the girl's decomposed body were discovered April 1, 1975, in a pine grove off True road in Berrien township.

Two witnesses described finding parts of the body of the girl, who was reportedly eight months pregnant at the time of her death. Another police officer testified he took pictures at the scene, and a fourth witness described the location where the body was discovered.

The main witness Tuesday was Dr. Robert Sundick, a professor of anthropology from Western Michigan university. Sundick testified he had examined the bones and skull but was unable to find a cause of death. He noted, however, that all the bones came from a female.

He also testified that the skull was broken at the base where the sections of a skull are joined together, but he said the break could have occurred because of decay rather than a blow.

She said prosecution witnesses will testify that Neal was seen with a girl at the pine grove on the night Miss Cornelius was reported missing; that Neal was the father of the unborn child and was upset because of the pregnancy; and that Neal had been dating Miss Cornelius for a substantial length of time but broke off relations when he learned the girl was pregnant.

She said other witnesses will show Miss Cornelius had said she would be right back when she left her home on Feb. 7; that a girl wearing the same type of coat as Miss Cornelius was seen getting

Defense Atty. Peter Kosick, of St. Joseph, said he would show a number of prosecution witnesses each gave differing statements to authorities. He also said he would show Neal was a non-violent man and indicated an alibi defense would be used, with Neal claiming to have been at his karate school on the night of Feb. 7. Kosick also charged the facts presented by the prosecution would not support a guilty verdict.

The eight women and six men on the jury in Judge William S. White's court will resume hearing testimony this morning. After all testimony is concluded, two jurors will be excused to make a 12-member jury.

CANNING AND PRESERVING

Preserving Food
Time Is NOW

The traditional homemaking skills of preserving foods and making pickles, fruit butters, tomato products, jams and jellies has been heightened in the past few years.

Perhaps it is growing because of the interest in home gardening and home orchards and the increasing amount of time devoted to home crafts. All have contributed to the awareness of the old-time goodness of foods preserved at home.

Jar and utensil firms have developed new and improved utensils to make home canning easier and quicker. The supply of canning lids and jars should be adequate throughout the season.

Extension Service Home Economists have updated information from state agricultural colleges and the USDA. They are our nearest authoritative source for details with which we are not familiar, being able to advise on equipment, tools, utensils and procedures. For example, some states are now recommending that all tomato products be pressure-processed in the interest of safety.

Tomato products and apple and peach products are probably the most popular. Regardless of the recipe used, a food mill and a few convenient tools such as a wire rack for processing in a hot water bath, a wide mouth funnel for filling jars and a jar lifter for lowering and removing hot jars from the canner all make for faster easier work.

APPLE BUTTER

Three quarts strained apple pulp (about eight pounds apples)

Six cups sugar
One tablespoon ground cinnamon

One-fourth teaspoon ground cloves

One cup fresh orange juice
One-fourth cup fresh lemon juice

To prepare the strained apple pulp, wash apples and quarter without peeling or coring. Remove blossom ends and stems. Place apples in a large kettle. Add just enough water to keep apples from scorching (about one-half cup). Cover and cook over low heat until apples are soft, stirring occasionally.

Spoon cooked apples, a portion at a time, into a food mill placed over a bowl. Measure three quarts strained apple pulp into a large kettle.

Add sugar, spices, orange and lemon juices. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until very thick. This may take two or more hours depending on how fast it cooks and the type of utensil used. (It is the long slow cooking that gives the apple butter its flavor.) To keep apple butter from spattering too much toward end of cooking, use very low heat.

Pour hot apple butter into clean, dry, but hot canning jars leaving one-fourth-inch headspace. Wipe top of jars; cover and seal following manufacturer's directions for type of jar and lid used. Process in boiling water bath 10 minutes. Makes two and one-half pints apple butter.

PEACH BUTTER

Four pounds ripe soft peaches (14 or 15)

One cup water
Five cups sugar

Two tablespoons lemon juice
One-half teaspoon ground nutmeg

One-fourth teaspoon ground cinnamon
One-fourth teaspoon ground allspice

Wash peaches, removing fuzz with cloth. Cut into quarters; remove pits. Place peaches and water in large kettle over moderate heat. Bring to boil; reduce heat and cook until peaches are soft. Place a food mill over a bowl; strain peaches to make pulp. Measure; there should be seven cups.

Place in kettle; add sugar and spices. Cook over moderate to low heat until thick, stirring occasionally, about one and one-fourth hours. Stir constantly and reduce heat toward end of cooking.

Spoon hot peach butter into clean, dry, but hot canning jars leaving one-fourth-inch headspace. Wipe top of jars and seal according to jar manufacturer's directions. Process in boiling water bath 10 minutes. Makes about three pints.

Note: If a fresh peach flavor is desired, omit all spices.

HOMEMADE TOMATO JUICE
For each quart of tomato juice, allow three to four pounds firm, red-ripe tomatoes. Wash and rinse tomatoes; quarter and remove any white core and stems. Place in a large kettle and simmer over low heat, stirring occasionally, until soft.

Spoon tomatoes into a food mill placed over a bowl. Strain through mill. Add one teaspoon salt for each quart juice. Reheat juice just to boiling point. Pour the hot juice into clean hot jars, allowing one-fourth-inch headspace. Adjust lids.

Pressure process at 10 pounds 30 minutes following manufacturer's directions for your pressure utensil. Allow pressure to return to normal. Remove jars from kettle and set two or three inches apart on a folded towel and let cool, about 12 hours. Test for seal, following jar manufacturer's directions.

Note: If using very ripe tomatoes, put them through the food mill without cooking. If using within a short time, refrigerate. Fresh juice may be frozen for later use.

TOMATO CATSUP

Eight pounds tomatoes (20 to 24 large)

Two cups chopped onion
One cup chopped celery

One-half cup chopped sweet red pepper

One tablespoon whole pickling spice

One stick (two inches) cinnamon

One cup firmly packed light brown sugar

One tablespoon salt
One and one-half cups red wine vinegar

One tablespoon mild paprika

Wash and rinse tomatoes; quarter and remove stems and white core. Place in large kettle. Add onion, celery and red pepper. Cover and cook over moderate heat until vegetables are soft, stirring occasionally.

Spoon a small amount of tomato mixture into food mill placed over a bowl; strain. Continue until all mixture has been strained; discard pulp. As bowl fills with juice, pour juice into another container. Rinse kettle and pour juice into it.

Note depth of juice, then cook over moderate to high heat until juice has reduced about one-half. Tie pickling spice and spices and cinnamon stick in a small square of cheesecloth. Add to tomato mixture. Add brown sugar, salt, vinegar and paprika. Cook over low heat, stirring often, until thick, about one hour. Pour boiling-hot catsup into clean hot canning jars allowing one-fourth-inch headspace.

Wipe rims and tops of jars with a clean, hot cloth. Place on lids and bands and seal according to jar manufacturer's directions. Pressure process at 10 pounds pressure 30 minutes following manufacturer's directions for your pressure utensil. Allow pressure to return to normal. Remove jars from kettle and set two or three inches apart on a folded towel and let cool. Test for seal. Makes about two pints catsup.

"Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers. How many pickled peppers did Peter Piper pick?" So goes the renowned tongue twister. But the untwisted fact remains that Peter couldn't possibly have picked pickled peppers. Most probably he picked peppers for pickling, because they're one of the easier vegetables to preserve.

A peck of peppers, picked and pickled now, while available, will enliven the "football-watcher's sandwich snack" in the fall. But however you plan to use your pickled product, now is the time to get ready, set and start pickling.

To help you pack perfect peppers, here are some hints from home economists:

— Select fresh, firm, well-shaped peppers with a uniform glossy color.

PICKLED GREEN PEPPERS AND PEPPER RELISH

— Follow the recipe directions exactly; make small batches; never increase the recipe by doubling, tripling, etc.

— Do not use jars and lids from commercially-packed foods. They are not suitable for home preserving.

The following recipes use fresh green peppers as a major ingredient.

PICKLED GREEN PEPPERS

Three pounds green peppers (seven to nine large)

Boiling water

Two and one-half cups distilled white vinegar

Two and one-half cups water

One and one-fourth cups granulated sugar

Eight cloves garlic
Four teaspoons salad oil

Two teaspoons salt

Remove seed pods and white "seams." Cut lengthwise into three-fourths inch strips. Place pepper strips in bowl; cover with boiling water. Let stand five minutes; drain. Combine vinegar, water and sugar in saucepan; simmer five minutes. Pack peppers in clean, hot jars. To each jar add two cloves garlic, one teaspoon oil and one-half teaspoon salt. Pour hot liquid over peppers to within one-half inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers peppers.

Cap each jar at once. Process five minutes in boiling water bath. Makes four pints.

When made from tender young peppers, the following recipe for Pepper Relish will retain a fresh flavor longer. To enjoy the fullest flavor, it is recommended that the relish be used within six months.

PEPPER RELISH

Four pounds green peppers (eighteen to twenty medium)

One pound onions (three to four large)

Two cups distilled white vinegar

One and one-fourth cups granulated sugar

Two tablespoons salt
One teaspoon mustard seed

One teaspoon ground cinnamon

One-half teaspoon ground allspice

One-half teaspoon ground ginger

One-half teaspoon ground cloves

Wash, trim and quarter peppers and onions. Put vegetables through food grinder, using coarse blade; drain, discarding liquid. Combine vinegar and remaining ingredients in saucepot; heat to boiling. Add vegetables; simmer five minutes, stirring occasionally.

Continue simmering while quickly packing one clean, hot jar at a time. Fill to within one-half inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers vegetables. Cap each jar at once. Process five minutes in boiling water bath. Makes four pints.

One and one-half teaspoons dry sweet basil leaves

One and one-half teaspoons celery seeds

Six salt tomato canning tablets

CANNING AND PRESERVING

Time Is NOW

The traditional homemaking skills of preserving foods and making pickles, fruit butters, tomato products, jams and jellies has been heightened in the past few years.

Perhaps it is growing because of the interest in home gardening and home orchards and the increasing amount of time devoted to home crafts. All have contributed to the awareness of the old-time goodness of foods preserved at home.

Jar and utensil firms have developed new and improved utensils to make home canning easier and quicker. The supply of canning lids and jars should be adequate throughout the season.

Extension Service Home Economists have updated information from state agricultural colleges and the USDA. They are our nearest authoritative source for details with which we are not familiar, being able to advise on equipment, tools, utensils and procedures. For example, some states are now recommending that all tomato products be pressure-processed in the interest of safety.

Tomato products and apple and peach products are probably the most popular. Regardless of the recipe used, a food mill and a few convenient tools such as a wire rack for processing in a hot water bath, a wide mouth funnel for filling jars and jar lifter for lowering and removing hot jars from the canner all make for faster easier work.

APPLE BUTTER

Three quarts strained apple pulp (about eight pounds apples)

Six cups sugar
One tablespoon ground cinnamon

One-fourth teaspoon ground cloves

One cup fresh orange juice
One-fourth cup fresh lemon juice

To prepare the strained apple pulp, wash apples and quarter without peeling or coring. Remove blossom ends and stems. Place apples in a large kettle. Add just enough water to keep apples from scorching (about one-half cup). Cover and cook over low heat until apples are soft, stirring occasionally.

Spoon cooked apples, a portion at a time, into a food mill placed over a bowl. Measure three quarts strained apple pulp into a large kettle.

Add sugar, spices, orange and lemon juices. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until very thick. This may take two or more hours depending on how fast it cooks and the type of utensil used. (It is the long slow cooking that gives the apple butter its flavor.) To keep apple butter from sputtering too much toward end of cooking, use very low heat.

Pour hot apple butter into clean, dry, but hot canning jars leaving one-fourth-inch headspace. Wipe top of jars; cover and seal following manufacturer's directions for type of jar and lid used. Process in boiling water bath 10 minutes. Makes two and one-half pints apple butter.

PEACH BUTTER

Four pounds ripe soft peaches (14 or 15)

One cup water
Five cups sugar

Two tablespoons lemon juice
One-half teaspoon ground nutmeg

One-fourth teaspoon ground allspice

One-fourth teaspoon ground cinnamon

Wash peaches, removing fuzz with cloth. Cut into quarters; remove pits. Place peaches and water in large kettle over moderate heat. Bring to boil; reduce heat and cook until peaches are soft. Strain peaches to make pulp. Measure; there should be seven cups.

Place in kettle; add sugar and spices. Cook over moderate to low heat until thick, stirring occasionally, about one and one-fourth hours. Stir constantly and reduce heat toward end of cooking.

Spoon hot peach butter into clean, dry, but hot canning jars leaving one-fourth-inch headspace. Wipe top of jars and seal according to jar manufacturer's directions. Process in boiling water bath 10 minutes. Makes about three pints.

Note: If a fresh peach flavor is desired, omit all spices.

HOMEMADE TOMATO JUICE

For each quart of tomato juice, allow three to four pounds

firm, red-ripe tomatoes. Wash and rinse tomatoes; quarter and remove any white core and stems. Place in a large kettle and simmer over low heat, stirring occasionally, until soft.

Spoon tomatoes into a food mill placed over a bowl. Strain through mill. Add one teaspoon salt for each quart juice. Reheat juice just to boiling point. Pour the hot juice into clean hot jars allowing one-fourth-inch headspace. Adjust lids.

Pressure process at 10 pounds 30 minutes following manufacturer's directions for your pressure utensil. Allow pressure to return to normal. Remove jars from kettle and set two or three inches apart on a folded towel and let cool, about 12 hours. Test for seal, following jar manufacturer's directions.

Note: If using very ripe tomatoes, put them through the food mill without cooking. If using within a short time, refrigerate. Fresh juice may be frozen for later use.

TOMATO CATSUP

Eight pounds tomatoes (20 to 24 large)

Two cups chopped onion

One cup chopped celery

One-half cup chopped sweet red pepper

One tablespoon whole pickling spice

One stick (two inches) cinnamon

One cup firmly packed light brown sugar

One tablespoon salt

One and one-half cups red wine vinegar

One tablespoon mild paprika

Wash and rinse tomatoes; quarter and remove stems and white core. Place in large kettle. Add onion, celery and red pepper. Cover and cook over moderate heat until vegetables are soft, stirring occasionally.

Spoon a small amount of tomato mixture into food mill placed over a bowl; strain. Continue until all mixture has been strained; discard pulp. As bowl fills with juice, pour juice into another container. Rinse kettle and pour juice into it.

Note depth of juice, then cook over moderate to high heat until juice has reduced about one-half. Tie pickling spice and spices and cinnamon stick in a small square of cheesecloth. Add to tomato mixture. Add brown sugar, salt, vinegar and paprika. Cook over low heat, stirring often, until thick, about one hour. Pour boiling-hot catsup into clean hot canning jars allowing one-fourth-inch headspace.

Wipe rims and tops of jars with a clean, hot cloth. Place on lids and bands and seal according to jar manufacturer's directions. Pressure process at 10 pounds pressure 30 minutes following manufacturer's directions for your pressure utensil. Allow pressure to return to normal. Remove jars from kettle and set two or three inches apart on a folded towel and let cool. Test for seal. Makes about two pints catsup.

"Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers. How many pickled peppers did Peter Piper pick?" So goes the renowned tongue twister. But the untwisted fact remains that Peter couldn't possibly have picked pickled peppers. Most probably he picked peppers for pickling, because they're one of the easier vegetables to preserve.

A peck of peppers, picked and pickled now, while available, will enliven the "football-watcher's sandwich snack" in the fall. But however you plan to use your pickled product, now is the time to get ready, set and start pickling.

To help you pack perfect peppers, here are some hints from home economists:

— Select fresh, firm, well-shaped peppers with a uniform glossy color.

PICKLED GREEN PEPPERS AND PEPPER RELISH

— Follow the recipe directions exactly; make small batches; never increase the recipe by doubling, tripling, etc.

— Do not use jars and lids from commercially-packed foods. They are not suitable for home preserving.

The following recipes use fresh green peppers as a major ingredient.

PICKLED GREEN PEPPERS

Three pounds green peppers (seven to nine large)

Boiling water

Two and one-half cups distilled white vinegar

Two and one-half cups water

One and one-fourth cups granulated sugar

Eight cloves garlic

Four teaspoons salad oil

Two teaspoons salt

Remove seed pods and white "seams." Cut lengthwise into three-fourths inch strips. Place pepper strips in bowl; cover with boiling water. Let stand five minutes; drain. Combine vinegar, water and sugar in saucepan; simmer five minutes.

Pack peppers in clean, hot jars. To each jar add two cloves garlic, one teaspoon oil and one-half teaspoon salt. Pour hot liquid over peppers to within one-half inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers peppers.

Cap each jar at once. Process five minutes in boiling water bath. Makes four pints.

When made from tender young peppers, the following recipe for Pepper Relish will retain a fresh flavor longer. To enjoy the fullest flavor, it is recommended that the relish be used within six months.

PEPPER RELISH

Four pounds green peppers (eighteen to twenty medium)

One pound onions (three to four large)

Two cups distilled white vinegar

One and one-fourth cups granulated sugar

Two tablespoons salt

One teaspoon mustard seed

One teaspoon ground cinnamon

One-half teaspoon ground allspice

One-half teaspoon ground ginger

One-half teaspoon ground cloves

Wash, trim and quarter peppers and onions. Put vegetables through food grinder, using coarse blade; drain, discarding liquid. Combine vinegar and remaining ingredients in saucepot; heat to boiling. Add vegetables; simmer five minutes, stirring occasionally.

Continue simmering while quickly packing one clean, hot

jar at a time. Fill to within one-half inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers vegetables. Cap each jar at once. Process five minutes in boiling water bath. Makes four pints.

HERBED TOMATOES

Seven pounds ripe tomatoes

Boiling water

One and one-half teaspoons dry sweet basil leaves

One and one-half teaspoons celery seeds

Six salt tomato canning tablets

Spear tomatoes, one at a time, on lines of a fork inserted in stem end. Plunge into boiling water for about fifteen seconds. Then peel off skin of tomatoes. Cut out core. Pack tomatoes tightly into three hot, sterilized quart jars to fill half full. Add one-fourth teaspoon basil, one-fourth teaspoon celery seed and one salt tablet to each quart jar. Fill jars with more peeled whole tomatoes. Add one-fourth teaspoon basil, one-fourth teaspoon celery seed and one salt tablet on top of tomatoes in each quart.

Cook remaining tomatoes in large kettle until soft, about fifteen minutes. Press hot tomatoes through a food mill or sieve to make juice. Pour tomato juice into each jar of tomatoes to fill to within one inch from top. If necessary, add boiling water. Wipe top rim of each jar with a damp cloth to clean the rim.

Heat lids in clean boiling water. Place hot lids on jars; immediately screw on rings. Or follow manufacturer's directions for other type of jar closing. Process quarts in a pressure canner at five pounds pressure for ten minutes. Let pressure return to normal. Follow pressure canner manufacturer's directions for specific operating directions. Remove hot jars of tomatoes; set on towels to cool. Store in cool, dark, dry place.

Makes three quarts.

QUARTERED TOMATOES

(WATER PACK)

Eight pounds ripe tomatoes

Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Pawing Males Should Be Told

Dear Ann Landers: A great deal of professional counsel, as well as a unique and special kind of parental love, were required before we were able to accept our son's homosexuality. He lives with his "friend" in a nearby city and they visit us frequently. We like his "friend" very much and have tried to make him feel welcome in our home. The problem is that they hold hands, caress one another, and sometimes even kiss in the presence of our friends, neighbors and relatives. My husband and I have learned to accept this, but it does make others uncomfortable. We've heard critical comments and unkind remarks about our son's lifestyle and his "outlandish" behavior with his "lover."

Asking him to visit us alone in the future would certainly bring about the alienation we have tried so hard to avoid. Is there a solution? — Parents homosexuals. If your son isn't aware of this you might tell him. If you're afraid to, hand him this column. I'm not.

Doctors Needed

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 62-year-old grandmother, in complete agreement with Santa Fe's three sons — the young men who were turned off by modern medicine. I say Nature will heal anything in time, with a little patience.

These modern-day doctors are only experimenting. They don't know nearly as much as people give them credit for. Also, their fees are a disgrace. How can they associate life and death with money?

I'll bet you don't print this letter because of the pressure you will undoubtedly receive from your medical consultants. Time will tell. — Ex-Nurse

Dear Ex: It has been known for some time that certain diseases are self-limiting — which means if you do nothing they will disappear without

ANN LANDERS

Of course physicians' fees are high. What isn't? As an ex-nurse, check and see what your employed colleagues are making per hour.

People should be paid for their labor, and salaries must keep up with the cost of living, which is out of sight. If you know of a solution to the problem called "inflation" write to Washington.

Who's Right?

Dear Ann Landers: Our son's wife gave birth to a son. Before the child was born I wrote and asked them to include my maiden name on the birth certificate.

I explained it would serve only as a record, that they could call the child by any name they chose. My father who passed away a few years ago lost four sons — two in World War II. He was the last to carry the name.

My son and his wife let me know they felt I was "presumptuous" that I should not have had the nerve to ask such a treatment. (The common cold is the best example.) However, I hope you won't count on "time and patience" if you should have a ruptured appendix, or get gonorrhea, or high blood pressure, or diabetes, or breast cancer. These are just a few of the medical problems that a doctor can do something about.

TV Reruns Are Necessary

Around this time of year, a lot of people complain that reruns are getting through to them. They say they feel the side effects of watching the same TV shows again. Again. Again.

I don't know what they're talking about. I accept reruns as a necessary part of television to give performers some time off, to give people a chance to see something they've missed, and of course to keep the cost down.

A friend of mine confessed that he watched "The Wizard of Oz" for the 18th time the other night and this time when the tornado sucked up Toto and Dorothy, he actually giggled.

I don't know what they're talking about. I accept reruns as a necessary part of television to give performers some time — oh, did I say that before?

When "The Maltese Falcon" was being shown again recently, I set a tuna casserole in front of the family and handed out TV trays.

"We had this casserole two nights ago and once last week," the family complained.

"But I always serve my tuna casserole when 'The Maltese Falcon' is being shown. It's traditional."

Some people contend reruns will eventually rip the American family to shreds. They cite the case of a viewer who isn't quite sure if he has seen a segment of "Medical Center" or not.

"Is this the one where Joe Cannon has the rich Arab for a patient who wants to buy him a hospital, but falls in love with the mother of a kid on a dialysis machine?"

"No, no. This is the one where the young girl patient is put in a home for the elderly and incites them to riot."

"No! No! It's the girl who leads the old people to protest."

"Then I've never seen it before."

"You'll love it. The girl dies in the end."

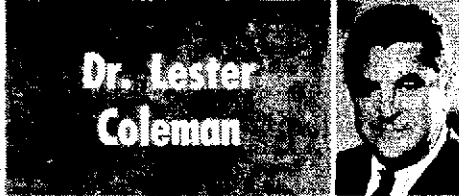

One of the most dangerous side effects of reruns is that people tend not to watch them as closely as they did the first time. This can lead to all kinds of situations.

"When did your hair turn gray, Doris?"

"Sixteen years ago, Fred. You mean you're just noticing?"

"This is the first time I've looked at you since 'Gunsmoke' went into reruns."

I don't know what they're talking about. I accept reruns as a necessary part of television to give performers some time off, to give people a chance to see... did I say that before?

Dr. Lester Coleman

Emergency rooms in hospitals have reported a marked increase in the number of eye injuries caused by tennis balls.

The high speed with which a tennis ball travels can cause severe injury. It is estimated that a powerfully hit tennis ball can reach a velocity of more than 60 miles an hour.

Thus it becomes a lethal weapon to those who are not trained in the proper protection against such injuries.

Young tennis players should be taught to protect the face with their racquet as they rush up to the net.

Also, if such an injury occurs, the injured person should immediately bring it to the attention of a doctor for early treatment.

The American Cancer Society has sponsored a study of cigarette smoking among teenage girls between the ages of 13 and 15, and young women between 16 and 25.

The study shows four major trends:

1) A dramatic increase in smoking by teenage girls and an increase of really heavy smokers (more than a pack a day) among young women.

2) A great awareness of the anti-smoking message, but:

3) An all-pervasive smoking environment which overwhelms what these two groups have seen, heard or read about the dangers of smoking.

4) Changing youth values — which emphasize the emotional over the rational, making it easier to resist arguments against smoking.

Other points brought out by the study:

1) Cigarette smoking among teenage girls seems to be tied in with rebelliousness.

2) Since cigarette commercials have been banned from TV, the excellent anti-smoking messages have disappeared, too.

3) The teenage girl smoker is apt to be a "C," or "D" student; the non-smoker is apt to be an "A," or "B" student.

4) Housewives are more likely to be heavy smokers than working women.

Tooth Banks Now

Swedish dental scientists have reported finding a method of keeping alive extracted teeth and attached root tissue by a freezing technique.

In the experiment, 21 healthy teeth survived for more than a year while stored at temperatures as low as minus 197 degrees Centigrade.

The proposed creation of "tooth banks" would allow for matching of donor and recipient's teeth, just as organs such as eyes and kidneys are matched for transplantation. Delay in reimplanting a tooth back into the mouth of a patient with diseased jaws or gums would afford needed time for the extraction site to heal.

Pawing Males Should Be Told

Dear Ann Landers: A great deal of professional counsel, as well as a unique and special kind of parental love, were required before we were able to accept our son's homosexuality.

He lives with his "friend" in a nearby city and they visit us frequently. We like his "friend" very much and have tried to make him feel welcome in our home. The problem is that they hold hands, caress one another, and sometimes even kiss in the presence of our friends, neighbors and relatives.

My husband and I have learned to accept this, but it does make others uncomfortable. We've heard critical comments and unkind remarks about our son's lifestyle and his "outlandish" behavior with his "lover."

Asking him to visit us alone in the future would certainly bring about the alienation we have tried so hard to avoid. Is there a solution? — Parents homosexuals. If your son isn't aware of this you ought to tell him. If you're afraid to, hand him this column. I'm not.

Doctors Needed

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 62-year-old grandmother, in complete agreement with Santa Fe's three sons — the young men who were turned off by modern medicine. I say Nature will heal anything in time, with a little patience.

These modern-day doctors are only experimenting. They don't know nearly as much as people give them credit for. Also, their fees are a disgrace. How can they associate life and death with money?

I'll bet you don't print this letter because of the pressure you will undoubtedly receive from your medical consultants. Time will tell. — Ex-Nurse

Dear Ex: It has been known for some time that certain diseases are self-limiting — which means if you do nothing they will disappear without treatment. (The common cold is the best example.) However, I hope you won't count on "time and patience" if you should have a ruptured appendix, or get gonorrhea, or high blood pressure, or diabetes, or breast cancer. These are just a few of the medical problems that a doctor can do something about.

Of course physicians' fees are high. What isn't? As an ex-nurse, check and see what your employed colleagues are making per hour.

People should be paid for their labor, and salaries must keep up with the cost of living, which is out of sight. If you know of a solution to the problem called "inflation" write to Washington.

Who's Right?

Dear Ann Landers: Our son's wife gave birth to a son. Before the child was born I wrote and asked them to include my maiden name on the birth certificate.

I explained it would serve only as a record, that they could call the child by any name they chose. My father who passed away a few years ago lost four sons — two in World War II. He was the last to carry the name.

My son and his wife let me know they felt I was "presumptuous," that I should not have had the nerve to ask such a favor. They refused to honor my request. Was I out of line? If you say so, I'll apologize. — L.S.S.

Dear L.S.S.: You were not out of line. They were.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement, Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TV Reruns Are Necessary

Around this time of year, a lot of people complain that reruns are getting through to them. They say they feel the side effects of watching the same TV shows again. Again. Again.

I don't know what they're talking about. I accept reruns as a necessary part of television to give performers some time off, to give people a chance to see something they've missed, and of course to keep the cost down.

A friend of mine confessed that he watched "The Wizard of Oz" for the 18th time the other night and this time when the tornado sucked up Toto and Dorothy, he actually cheered.

I don't know what they're talking about. I accept reruns as a necessary part of television to give performers some time off, to give people a chance to see

When "The Maltese Falcon" was being shown again recently, I set a tuna casserole in front of the family and handed out TV trays.

"We had this casserole two nights ago and once last week," the family complained.

"But I always serve my tuna casserole when 'The Maltese Falcon' is being shown. It's traditional."

Some people contend reruns will eventually rip the American family to shreds. They cite the case of a viewer who isn't quite sure if he has seen a segment of "Medical Center" or not.

"Is this the one where Joe Gannon has the rich Arab for a patient who wants to buy him a hospital, but falls in love with the mother of a kid on a dialysis machine?"

"No, no. This is the one where the young girl patient is put in a home for the elderly and incites them to riot."

"No! No! It's the girl who leads the old people to protest."

"Then I've never seen it before."

"You'll love it. The girl dies in the end."

One of the most dangerous side effects of reruns is that people tend not to watch them as closely as they did the first time. This can lead to all kinds of situations.

"When did your hair turn gray, Doris?"

"Sixteen years ago. Fred. You mean you're just noticing?"

"This is the first time I've looked at you since 'Gunsmoke' went into reruns."

I don't know what they're talking about. I accept reruns as a necessary part of television to give performers some time off, to give people a chance to see . . . did I say that before?

Dr. Lester Coleman

Emergency rooms in hospitals have reported a marked increase in the number of eye injuries caused by tennis balls.

The high speed with which a tennis ball travels can cause severe injury. It is estimated that a powerfully hit tennis ball can reach a velocity of more than 60 miles an hour.

Thus it becomes a lethal weapon to those who are not trained in the proper protection against such injuries.

Young tennis players should be taught to protect the face with their racquet as they rush up to the net.

The American Cancer Society has sponsored a study of cigarette smoking among teenage girls between the ages of 13 and 1, and young women between 18 and 25.

The study shows four major trends:

1) A dramatic increase in smoking by teenage girls and an increase of really heavy smokers (more than a pack a day) among young women.

2) A great awareness of the anti-smoking message, but;

3) An all-pervasive smoking environment which overwhelms what these two groups have seen, heard or read about the dangers of smoking.

4) Changing youth values — which emphasize the emotional over the rational, making it easier to resist arguments against smoking.

Other points brought out by the study:

1) Cigarette smoking among teenage girls seems to be tied in with rebelliousness.

2) Since cigarette commercials have been banned from TV, the excellent anti-smoking messages have disappeared, too.

3) The teenage girl smoker is apt to be a "C," or "D" student; the non-smoker is apt to be an "A," or "B" student.

4) Housewives are more likely to be heavy smokers than working women.

"Second-hand low" is one of the old bridge adages. It is generally correct. But as with all adages, there are plenty of exceptions.

One holding that generally calls for second-hand high is when dummy holds queen and one small of the suit led. Most of the time the only way you can get any value out of that queen is to rise with it at trick one.

Today's hand shows an exception West opens the eight of diamonds against South's three-notrump contract.

If West holds the king of clubs, South can get a lot of tricks by rising with dummy's queen of diamonds, coming to his hand with the ace of hearts and taking the club finesse.

Suppose East holds that king? He just happens to hold it this time and if South takes this line of play he will wind up two tricks short at three notrump.

What happens if South ducks that diamond lead in both hands? If West holds a six-card suit, South is sure of nine tricks. He will get five clubs, one diamond, one spade and two hearts. It must be worth while to give himself this extra chance to win the rubber, so he plays low and collects his nine tricks.

ASK THE JOCKEYS

With 40 high-card points and just 13 tricks each, three points represents one trick yet an ace is valued at four points. The reason is that you expect your ace both to take one trick and in addition help promote a second trick.

Similarly, a king counts three points or one trick even though it may fall to an adverse ace. In their initial point count, the Jacobys and experts in general recognize that a hand such as:

♠ A K x x x ♥ A x x x x ♦ x x x x ♣ A K ♠ A is better than:

♠ x x x x x ♥ x x x x x ♦ A K ♠ A although each has the same high-card points and same three probable quick tricks.

SUPPORTED PRESIDENT IN CRUCIAL VOTE

State Delegates Not Likely To Switch

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Having helped deal a serious setback to Ronald Reagan, Michigan Republicans are slated to cast an identical vote today for the nomination of President Ford.

As expected, the Michigan delegation voted along candidate lines in joining the rejection of the Reagan effort to force Ford to name a running mate today.

That vote, along with the subsequent adoption of the "justice resolution" which commits states to cast legally bound votes as officially allocated, ended any notion that Michigan delegates would switch from one side to the other on the presidential nomination.

In the crucial test vote Tuesday night, all 55 Ford delegates opposed the Reagan attempt to force Ford's hand on a running mate. And all 29 Reagan delegates vainly voted for it.

The tally followed a podium appearance by Michigan Sen. Robert Griffin, Ford's floor manager, who stirred up a convention storm by his vehement opposition of the proposed rule.

"I see it as a basic divisive proposal," he shouted. He argued it would prevent Ford from naming Reagan as his running mate or from consulting with him over the choice.

"A vote for 16-C (the proposed rule) tonight would be a vote against party unity," Griffin declared.

The outcome was greeted with jubilation in the Ford camp and with gloom by Reagan backers, who said their man's long campaign for the White House may be ended.

State Notes

nomination locked up, and Rep. Marvin Esch commented, "This is the convention — now we have to select a vice president."

Reagan supporters refused to admit absolute defeat, but acknowledged their chances, in the words of state Rep. Kirby Holmes of Ulica, "are very slight."

Almost unnoticed after the key vote was the adoption of a rule which reinforces the Michigan law that binds delegates to their candidates for at least two ballots. Under it, the state will cast its votes as determined by the presidential primary, whether or not a delegate is present.

That means 55 Michigan votes will go to Ford tonight, and 29 to Reagan. Prior to the adoption of the rule there had been discussion of attempts to alter votes even in legally bound delegations.

"They're going to obey the law," Fletcher said. Welborn agreed: "Nobody's going to flaunt the law, and we're not encouraging them to."

Detroit's Crackdown On Gangs
Awaits Passage Of Curfew Law

DETROIT (AP) — Despite promises this week of a strict new juvenile curfew and increased downtown police patrols, Detroit city officials Tuesday said they would enforce existing policies before waging a full-scale crackdown on teenage gangs.

Hundreds of police officers recalled from layoff were being placed back in the precincts rather than in the special tactical units the mayor's office had announced Monday.

A police spokeswoman said city streets were "extremely quiet" Tuesday night, in contrast to what Police Chief Philip Tannan called a "near riot" Sunday by youth gangs which started at a Cobo Hall rock concert.

Nearly 200 police officers were on duty near Cobo Hall Tuesday night where another rock concert was held. The 200 officers were four times the number on duty Sunday. Police said there were no reports of violence at Tuesday's concert.

In response to assaults, robberies, rapes and window-mashing by gangs, Deputy Mayor William Beckham Jr. Monday announced the recall of 450 laid-off police officers two weeks ahead of their scheduled call-back. He also called for a new curfew to allow police to pick up anyone under 18 on the streets after 10 p.m.

But police spokesman Sgt. Don Nash said Tuesday that police officers have been instructed instead to strictly enforce the existing, staggered curfew.

Nash said the new curfew cannot be enforced until the City Council enacts it as a new law.

City Attorney Richard Manetta said Tuesday he is working on such an ordinance to present to the council at its meeting tonight.

MSU Power Plant
Verdict Is Delayed

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The verdict on a polluting Michigan State University power plant will be delayed several months while a hearing examiner tries to resolve a dispute between the school and the state.

Officials of the university refused Tuesday to sign an agreement with the Department of Natural Resources to install expensive pollution control equipment on the coal-burning plant.

They also refused to agree to burn natural gas, a cleaner but more expensive fuel.

The state Air Pollution Control Commission filed a complaint against the school last month, charging the 10-year-old plant with excessive emissions.

Tuesday it sent the matter to a hearing examiner, who will be asked to review the facts and recommend action to the commission.

But a spokesman for the DNR said it will likely be several months before a recommendation is made. He said it is very possible that by then MSU will have received federal or state funds it says it needs to fund the project.

The university claims it has wanted to install the pollution control equipment for years, but cannot afford the estimated $11 million to buy and install the equipment.

It says it repeatedly has asked the legislature to give it state aid, but only recently got hints that state money could come in the future.

The commission and DNR Director Howard Tanner also have written letters to Gov. William Milliken and legislative leaders seeking state aid for the MSU project.

Ted Simon, assistant MSU vice president for the physical plant, said the university does not want to burn natural gas in the 10-year-old plant because it is almost twice as expensive as coal, and future gas supplies are uncertain.

SUPPORTED PRESIDENT IN CRUCIAL VOTE

State Delegates Not Likely To Switch

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Having helped deal a serious setback to Ronald Reagan, Michigan Republicans are slated to cast an identical vote today for the nomination of President Ford.

As expected, the Michigan delegation voted along candidate lines in joining the rejection of the Reagan effort to force Ford to name a running mate today.

That vote, along with the subsequent adoption of the "justice resolution" which commits states to cast legally bound votes as officially allocated, ended any notion that Michigan delegates would switch from one side to the other on the presidential nomination.

In the crucial test vote Tuesday night, all 55 Ford delegates opposed the Reagan attempt to force Ford's hand on a running mate. And all 29 Reagan delegates vainly voted for it.

The tally followed a podium appearance by Michigan Sen. Robert Griffin, Ford's floor manager, who stirred up a convention storm by his vehement opposition of the proposed rule. "I see it as a basic divisive proposal," he shouted. He argued it would prevent Ford from naming Reagan as his running mate or from consulting with him over the choice.

"A vote for 16-C (the proposed rule) tonight would be a vote against party unity," Griffin declared.

The outcome was greeted with jubilation in the Ford camp and with gloom by Reagan backers, who said their man's long campaigned for the White House may be ended.

"I think we landed a knockout punch," said Ford's state campaign chairman, Peter Fletcher of Ypsilanti. "We bowled them over." Party Chairman William McLaughlin declared Ford's nomination lock'd up, and Rep. Marvin Esch commented, "This is the convention — now we have to select a vice president."

Reagan supporters refused to admit absolute defeat, but acknowledged their chances, in the words of state Rep. Kirby Holmes of Utica, "are very slight."

Almost unnoticed after the key vote was the adoption of a rule which reinforces the Michigan law that binds delegates to their candidates for at least two ballots. Under it, the state will cast its votes as determined by the presidential primary, whether or not a delegate is present.

That means 55 Michigan votes will go to Ford tonight, and 29 to Reagan. Prior to the adoption of the rule there had been discussion of attempts to alter votes even in legally bound delegations.

"They're going to obey the law," Fletcher said. Welborn

Detroit's Crackdown On Gangs Awaits Passage Of Curfew Law

DETROIT (AP) — Despite promises this week of a strict new juvenile curfew and increased downtown police patrols, Detroit city officials Tuesday said they would enforce existing policies before waging a full-scale crackdown on teenage gangs.

Hundreds of police officers recalled from layoff were being placed back in the precincts rather than in the special tactical units the mayor's office had announced Monday.

A police spokeswoman said city streets were "extremely quiet" Tuesday night, in contrast to what Police Chief Philip Tannian called a "near riot" Sunday by youth gangs which started at a Cobo Hall rock concert.

Nearly 200 police officers were on duty near Cobo Hall Tuesday night where another rock concert was held. The 200 officers were four times the number on duty Sunday. Police said there were no reports of violence at Tuesday's concert.

In response to assaults, robberies, rapes and window-mashing by gangs, Deputy Mayor William Beckham Jr. Monday announced the recall of 450 laid-off police officers two weeks ahead of their scheduled call-back. He also called for a new curfew to allow police to pick up anyone under 18 on the streets after 10 p.m.

But police spokesman Sgt. Don Nash said Tuesday that police officers have been instructed instead to strictly enforce the existing, staggered curfew.

Nash said the new curfew cannot be enforced until the City Council enacts it as a new law. City Attorney Richard Manetta said Tuesday he is working on such an ordinance to present to the council at its meeting tonight.

No Coverup, Says Lab Chief

PBB Test Records Discarded

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A state laboratory routinely threw out gas chromatogram analyses of samples tested for PBB until March, a spokesman said Tuesday.

"I'm afraid it's not a coverup," said Donald Muentener, acting chief of the state agriculture department's laboratory division.

"They were thrown away because there was no reason to expect they should be maintained." He said the graphs alone can't prove an animal is or is not contaminated.

PBB, or polybrominated biphenyl, was mixed accidentally in Michigan cattle feed in 1973. Since the poisoning was disclosed in 1974, 25,000 to 30,000 cattle, 1.5 million chickens and hundreds of hogs have been destroyed.

Cattle and produce with low levels of PBB can be sold legally for human consumption.

Some farmers contend that state lab tests show their cattle aren't contaminated while private labs show they are.

Muentener said the test results alone would not be sufficient to solve such a dispute since different chemical analysts looking at a gas chromatogram chart by itself might come out with different interpretations.

Muentener said the lab started saving the charts in March at the request of the attorney general's office. Up until March, 18,000 to 19,000 gas chromatograms were run on animal and feed samples being tested for PBB.

"I told them to stop so they would have the proofs left. We wanted to have the records to be able to prove our findings. I wasn't charging them with doing anything wrong," said Asst. Atty. Gen. Harry Iwasku.

Gas chromatography is a test that helps chemists determine what chemicals are contained in a sample of tissue from an animal or feed. After changing the sample to a gas, a machine prints out a curve on a graph. Chemists are able to tell from analyzing the curve, called a chromatogram, what the sample is made of.

Claims arising from the live-stock poisoning are pending against the Michigan Farm Bureau, which distributed the feed, and Michigan Chemical Co., manufacturer of the fire retardant.

Gary Schenk, a Grand Rapids attorney representing some farmers in PBB-related suits, said the charts might have shown that reports labeling a large number of samples undetected "may well have been wrong, that in fact there were detectable amounts. But now we can't know that."

Schenk said he understands that the lab has routinely thrown out chromatograms in all kinds of tests for the past several years.

"Obviously, they were following their usual procedure," he said.

Schenk said he considers the lack of the chromatograms "a serious problem but not an insurmountable one." He said he would have preferred to have been able to have a chemist of his own choosing analyze the chromatograms.

But he said physical evidence, proof of exposure to PBB and evidence of symptoms probably will suffice in the cases he is representing and "in the long run will be more important than these chromatograms."

Regarding allegations that private labs show PBB present when the state lab doesn't, Muentener said he has yet to see any actual results from private labs to prove these claims. And he said saving the test results would not necessarily make it any easier to decide the question.

He said two chemical analysts looking at the same chromatogram reading might come out with different results because from day to day, a given chromatogram must be readjusted. An analyst must know what adjustments were made before he or she can interpret the results of the test, Muentener said.

State Lottery Sets All-Time Sales Record

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Lottery set an all-time sales record in the 12 months ending June 30, officials announced Tuesday.

The lottery also maintained its No. 1 position among the 13 lottery states, a spokesman added.

Net revenues were up 65 percent and the lottery earned $106.8 million for the state's general fund, the spokesman said, compared to $64.8 million for the same period in fiscal 1974-1975.

Total sales were for $226.7 million, $90 million above the state's previous one-year record.

The spokesman said that the success of three instant lottery games boosted gross revenues to more than $4 million a week — which meant more than $2 million a week for the state general fund's share.

Since the lottery began in 1972, it has earned a net revenue of $274.4 million, the spokesman said.

In those four years, he added, the equivalent of more than one billion 50-cent tickets has been sold.

Ruling Will Hurt Building Quality--State Official

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A new legal decision will make it harder to find and punish financially risky builders and contractors and could affect the quality of homebuilding in Michigan, officials say.

In a formal opinion Tuesday, Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said the Residential Builders and Maintenance and Alteration Contractors Commission may not suspend or revoke a builder's license solely because he has filed for bankruptcy.

Kelley said a state law allowing such action against unsound builders is unconstitutional because it conflicts with federal bankruptcy law.

He cited court decisions that say the purpose of the federal laws is to give debtors "a new opportunity in life and a clear field for future effort."

Relying on a California court opinion, Kelley indicated the Michigan law would deprive a builder of his means of livelihood and "sternly deny (him) a fresh start" by removing his license to operate.

The opinion "will have an effect on our enforcement, and will make it more difficult," said Herman Fishman, chief deputy director of the Department of Licensing and Regulation. The builders commission is under his jurisdiction.

"One of the basic reasons why people get in trouble in the building area is that they spread their money out too thin, and the quality doesn't go in because they don't have the money to perform as they should," said Fishman.

"It's one problem we've identified consistently as being a large problem," he said. By curtailing the department's ability to put risky builders and contractors out of business, the opinion "will have some kind of negative affect on the quality of homebuilding," he said.

The commission revokes or suspends licenses for about 70 to 80 builders and contractors each year, he said. He guessed that 33 to 40 per cent of those actions are because the individuals filed for bankruptcy.

Some 28,000 residential builders and contractors in Michigan are licensed by the commission. Contractors under its jurisdiction include those involved in heating, air conditioning, carpentry, masonry and excavating.

Fishman said the opinion will force the department to seek greater legislative authority to conduct routine audits of builders, in efforts to halt their operations before they go bankrupt.

State law now permits the department to audit a builder's finances under certain conditions, then revoke or suspend his license for specific reasons.

But Fishman and other department officials say that procedure is much more difficult and demands more time and staff than ferreting out builders who go bankrupt.

Offshore Atlantic Oil Tracts

Industry Bids $1.13 Billion For Leases

NEW YORK (AP) — The oil industry has bid $1.13 billion — nearly twice what the Interior Department expected — to search for oil and natural gas off the Atlantic Coast for the first time.

Interior Department officials had estimated the Atlantic Coast tracts would bring between $400 million and $600 million in bids.

The oil industry has been waiting for years to search beneath Atlantic Coast waters. The bidding was to have started at 10 a.m. Tuesday, but had to wait until 6 p.m. when Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall denied a request to block the sale.

"The government is quite pleased with the results," Mike Basile, manager of Interior's Outer Continental Shelf Office in New York, said after the sealed bids were opened in the blue-carpeted ballroom of the Statler Hilton Hotel.

The 870,730 acres opened to bids are 45 to 90 miles off of New York's Long Island, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

The Interior Department estimates 400 million to 1.4 billion barrels of oil are under the seabeds there. But the companies, all of them American, were bidding without the guidance of previous drilling in the area.

The companies bid on only 101 of the 154 tracts. High bidder on each tract won the right to search for oil and natural gas.

Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, was an aggressive bidder. Company officials said Exxon offered about $348.5 million as apparent high bidder on 34 tracts. The highest bid for one tract was $107.7 million offered by a group of companies led by Mobil Oil Corp.

The highest total ever bid for offshore leases was $2.06 billion in a 1974 Gulf of Mexico oil lease sale.

The last two sales of offshore leases had produced bids considerably less than the government predicted. In December 1975, Interior Secretary Thomas S. Kleppe estimated that bids on California offshore leases would bring up to $2 billion. They totaled $438.2 million. And last April, offshore tracts in the Gulf of Alaska brought $500 million in bids after Kleppe had predicted up to $1 billion in bids.

There has been criticism that the government is selling offshore leases for less than they are worth. The critics contend that in addition to income from bids, taxes and royalties, the government should get some share of the revenue from the oil and natural gas that is produced.

In addition to the bids, any company producing oil in the area will pay the federal government a royalty of at least 16.66 per cent of the value of the oil or gas. Some of the tracts thought to have a high chance of producing oil carry a 33.33 per cent royalty.

The Interior Department must still approve the high bids after checking them against what it thinks each tract is worth. Whether actual drilling will be allowed depends on the outcome of a hearing next month in the U.S. Court of Appeals Court in New York.

That court, while allowing the sale to occur, said it will study the environmental issues raised by New York State, several counties and local environmental groups and oceanfront communities. They had asked Marshall to override the Appeals Court decision to allow the sale, which he refused to do.

If they are allowed to drill, it will take the oil companies four to six months to move rigs into the area, and it could be four years or more before the first oil is sucked from beneath the ocean floor.

Issues Still Block Rubber Accord

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Negotiating committees for the United Rubber Workers and the four major rubber companies being struck Tuesday to iron out noneconomic issues that must be resolved before the 119-day-old walkout is settled.

Some URW members, however, got bad news Tuesday when the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. announced that it will lay off about 300 employees at its New Bedford, Mass., plant which is the only Goodyear plant that makes bicycle tires and tubes.

A company spokesman in Akron said Goodyear was going out of the bicycle tire and tube business immediately because most of the business already goes to foreign firms and because the rubber strike exacerbated that disadvantage.

The New Bedford plant manager, Glenn Johnson, said about 85 per cent of all bicycle tires are sold by foreign manufacturers. He added that the New Bedford plant hires a total of 800 workers.

The plant has been manufacturing bicycle tires since 1946. It will continue to make motorcycle tires and graphic arts products.

URW President Peter Bommarito said Tuesday he had not heard of the decision yet and he didn't know if it would affect the strike.

The strike by more than 60,000 rubber workers began April 21 against the Firestone, Goodyear, Goodrich and Uniroyal tire and rubber companies.

All sides agreed last week to accept an economic package that would give workers at least a $1.35 an hour wage increase over three years. The average rubber worker now makes about $5.50 an hour.

The agreement included a cost-of-living adjustment of one cent an hour increase for every four-tenths increase in the consumer price index. The formula would change to a one-cent increase for every three-tenths increase in the index during the third year of the contract.

Offshore Atlantic Oil Tracts Industry Bids $1.13 Billion For Leases

UP IN SMOKE: Clouds of black smoke could be seen for miles around Ypsilanti Tuesday afternoon when bundles of plastic waste caught fire behind Thermofil plant. No cause has been determined as yet. Fire blazed out of control for over an hour before foam units were able to contain it. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — The oil industry has bid $1.13 billion — nearly twice what the Interior Department expected — to search for oil and natural gas off the Atlantic Coast for the first time.

Interior Department officials had estimated the Atlantic Coast tracts would bring between $400 million and $600 million in bids.

The oil industry has been waiting for years to search beneath Atlantic Coast waters. The bidding was to have started at 10 a.m. Tuesday, but had to wait until 6 p.m. when Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall denied a request to block the sale.

"The government is quite pleased with the results," Mike Basile, manager of Interior's Outer Continental Shelf Office in New York, said after the sealed bids were opened in the blue-carpeted ballroom of the Statler Hilton Hotel.

The 875,750 acres opened to bids are 45 to 90 miles off of New York's Long Island, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

The Interior Department estimates 400 million to 1.4 billion barrels of oil are under the seabeds there. But the companies, all of them American, were bidding without the guidance of previous drilling in the area.

The companies bid on only 101 of the 154 tracts. High bidder on each tract won the right to search for oil and natural gas.

Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, was an aggressive bidder. Company officials said Exxon offered about $348.5 million as apparent high bidder on 34 tracts. The highest bid for one tract was $107.7 million offered by a group of companies led by Mobil Oil Corp.

The highest total ever bid for offshore leases was $2.09 billion in a 1974 Gulf of Mexico oil lease sale.

The last two sales of offshore leases had produced bids considerably less than the government predicted. In December 1975, Interior Secretary Thomas S. Kleppe estimated that bids on California offshore leases would bring up to $2 billion. They totaled $438.2 million. And last April, offshore tracts in the Gulf of Alaska brought $560 million in bids after Kleppe had predicted up to $1 billion in bids.

There has been criticism that the government is selling offshore leases for less than they are worth. The critics contend that in addition to income from bids, taxes and royalties, the government should get some share of the revenue from the oil and natural gas that is produced.

In addition to the bids, any company producing oil in the area will pay the federal government a royalty of at least 16.66 per cent of the value of the oil or gas. Some of the tracts thought to have a high chance of producing oil carry a 33.33 per cent royalty.

The Interior Department must still approve the high bids after checking them against what it thinks each tract is worth. Whether actual drilling will be allowed depends on the outcome of a hearing next month in the U.S. Court of Appeals Court in New York.

That court, while allowing the sale to occur, said it will study the environmental issues raised by New York State, several counties and local environmental groups and oceanfront communities. They had asked Marshall to override the Appeals Court decision to allow the sale, which he refused to do.

If they are allowed to drill, it will take the oil companies four to six months to move rigs into the area, and it could be four years or more before the first oil is sucked from beneath the ocean floor.

Congressional Rivals At Odds On Health Care

NILES — Republican David Stockman and Democrat Richard "Mike" Daugherty, rivals for the Fourth District Congressional seat in the November election, last night disagreed on establishment of a national health care program. Confronting each other in public for the first time since their August primary victories, the two candidates outlined their positions before the Niles township taxpayers association at Brandywine high school here.

Bell Rate Boost Is Backed By Union

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Supporting Michigan Bell's request for $178 million in higher phone rates, an official of the Communications Workers of America said Tuesday he is glad the union does not bargain directly with the company on economic issues.

"We don't want to be faced with a company that is in no position to negotiate properly because of inadequate earnings," said Herman Shelton, assistant vice president of the union's Michigan and Ohio division.

"I'm not going to ask phone workers to give up deserved wage and fringe benefit increases to subsidize rates for Michigan customers that are lower than those in other states," said Shelton at a public hearing before the Public Service Commission staff on Bell's new rate request.

Shelton also urged the commission to grant Bell the $21 million interim rate increase it sought to cover pay hikes granted earlier this month to Bell employees under a new union contract.

The CWA bargains with the national Bell System for over 20,000 Michigan Bell employees. Shelton said although Michigan Bell is one of the "most efficient" in the Bell System, its customer rates are lower than those in other states. For example, he said, the rate for one-party residence service is only $7.50 a month in Detroit compared with $11.95 in Cleveland.

Higher rates are needed to maintain good telephone service and jobs for union members, Shelton said.

Daugherty, 55, of Sister Lakes, said he wanted "intelligent programs" established for a national health care program.

"Many people cannot afford health care," Daugherty said, "but something has to be done about it. I don't know what the answer is, but the present administration doesn't have the answer."

Stockman, 29, of St. Joseph, stated he would not support any present legislation on compulsory health care, calling it a "drastic mistake."

"There is no such thing as a free lunch," Stockman said. "For a program of health care the people would have a very heavy cost to pay in tax increases. It would establish a monster bureaucracy."

When asked by Daugherty to be specific and propose a program, Stockman answered by saying he would endorse a "tough reform of medical malpractice abuse which forces medical costs to skyrocket" and urged that people filing "frivolous and unfounded" suits against doctors be penalized by the courts.

"The average family is already turning over more than one-third of their hard earned income to the government and a national health insurance policy, as proposed, would become even more of a burden," Stockman said.

Comparing views on the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), Daugherty said all it amounts to is taking "one person off a job and putting on a person who needs a job. We need to stimulate small business again and make a free enterprise system," he said.

Stockman said he supported the original philosophy of CETA, but said it was adopted with a deficit. "I support the creation of jobs for those on welfare and unemployment, but under present conditions public employees can be laid off and re-hired 15 days later with the public sector's money," he said.

Both candidates supported programs which would bring tax dollars paid by local citizens, back to their local units of government.

Yank Officers Slain In Korea

and wounded Americans were withheld until their families could be notified.

A North Korean broadcast claimed later that "U.S. imperialist aggression troops" with lethal weapons beat North Korean guards who had gone to protest that the trees were in a joint security area under North Korean control.

The official Korean Central News Agency broadcast, monitored in Tokyo, said the North Korean guards "were compelled to take a step in self defense to counter the reckless provocation of the scoundrels." It said nothing about casualties on either side.

The broadcast said the "provocation" was planned "by the U.S. imperialist aggressors to further aggravate the prevailing situation," and insisted the United States "punish those who committed the provocative act."

A South Korean government spokesman called the attack "premeditated, inhumane murder" and said it proved what "cruel and unreasonable hooligans" the North Koreans are. He said it also showed North Korea is bent on provoking an invasion to such an extent as to lose all reason.

The U.N. Command called a meeting of the Military Armistice Commission Thursday to protest the attack, but it was not learned immediately if the North Koreans agreed.

The two Americans were the first persons ever killed in the joint security area in which the joint armistice meetings between the U.N. Command and the North Koreans were held.

The U.N. Command said the North Koreans also damaged three U.N. Command vehicles in the attack.

It was the second violent incident in the demilitarized zone this month. On Aug. 8, the U.N. Command reported a six-minute exchange of fire between North and South Korean troops, but no casualties or damage was reported. Each side accused the other of shooting first.

A Funny Thing Happened...

Talking Plant Stand

CHICAGO (AP) — A talking plant stand is the rage of the National Hardware Show this week. Press a button and you have a sex pot. From a small sound box on the stand, the soft female voice coos: "This is your plant speaking. I'm so happy in my home. You take such good care of me. You feed me when I'm hungry. You water me when I'm thirsty. You make sure that I'm happy and healthy in the nice warm sunshine. 'This is why I love you. Thank you for taking such good care of me. You are so nice. I love you, I love you, I love you.'" Marshall Bedol, co-owner of a Cleveland company making the talking holders, said the invention makes a good conversation piece for a room full of guests. Bedol said his company is planning a half dozen different kinds of tapes. "We also are thinking of an x-rated tape that could be the voice of a dirty, old plant. That may go over after a few cocktails," he said.

Robbed Of His Clothes

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A Pennsylvania traveler fell asleep in the men's room at a bus terminal here. He awoke colder, but wiser. When Russell G. Warner, 51, of North East, Pa., awakened about 6 a.m. Tuesday following a short nap, he noticed that he was no longer wearing his shoes, jacket, hat or sweater, police said. He spotted his wallet, minus $15, on the floor as he headed downstairs to the waiting room. One of the first men he encountered was wearing some very familiar articles of clothing. Probably aided by Warner's shoes, the stranger outpaced him to an exit and disappeared. Police estimated the loss at $70.

How About Some Bee Pets

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tired of seeing your dog blunder into priceless antiques or the cat shared your $1,000 sofa? Louis Dubay has the perfect pet for you — a swarm of buzzing bees. "It is time somebody spoke out for the bee, often misunderstood and mistreated," said Dubay. "Bees are gentle and patient." He insists bees are fine for apartment dwellers, though he concedes, "It isn't always easy to explain your bees to your landlord or your neighbors." Dubay heads an organization called San Francisco Beekeepers. He dedicates most of his time to bees — explaining them, defending them, finding homes for homeless swarms and supplying gifts of homegrown honey to hospitals and other organizations. He also heads the one-man squad that answers most of San Francisco's emergency bee calls from the police and fire department. When summoned, Dubay rumbles to the scene in a truck equipped with hives and ladders and scoops the insects into hives. Often, he is able to convince people troubled by a swarming hive to let the swarm stay and join the Beekeepers. "Bees seem to sense where to settle where people will like them," he said. "If they don't want the bees, I take them away and find a home for them."

vice-presidential nomination.

"Ronald Reagan will not be under any circumstances a vice president on any ticket," he told a delegate caucus on Tuesday. If he doesn't get the presidential nomination, he'd rather go back to his radio program and newspaper column, he told the delegates. "I want to advocate the cause I believe in, the conservative cause," Reagan said.

With Reagan's failure to force the President to disclose his choice earlier, the convention probably will have to wait, as is customary, until Thursday morning. Only a surprise victory by Reagan, who has said he would designate Sen. Richard S. Schweiker as his running mate, would change that.

After the vote on the rules proposal, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford "is delighted with the victory and he believes it is a good indication of how the vote will turn out when the convention votes on the presidential nomination."

Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, convention floor manager for Ford, said the rules vote "clearly demonstrates President Ford is in control of this convention."

After the vote on the vice presidential rule, there still was a possibility of a fight over the abortion and foreign policy planks in the platform. But neither came to a roll call vote. The attempt to delete platform language supporting those working for a constitutional amendment to prohibit abortions was defeated on a voice vote.

Throughout the day, representatives of the Ford and Reagan camps had been negotiating, trying to reach a compromise over the "Morality in Foreign Policy" statement Reagan wanted to insert in the platform.

In the end, Ford accepted the proposed statement, with its implied criticism of his and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's policy of détente with the Soviet Union.

"In the interest of party unity and harmony, we will not oppose this amendment," Sen. Roman Hruska of Nebraska, a Ford backer who was chairman of the subcommittee that drafted the foreign policy plank, told the delegates.

The featured speaker of the evening was Connally, who was attending his first Republican convention after a long career as a Democrat.

With the zeal of a convert, he lashed out at his former party. He accused the Democrats of unleashing "the curse and abomination of government which today careers about, so clearly out of effective control."

As for Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential nominee, Connally asked the delegates:

"Do you want to entrust the leadership of this land for the next four years to a man of whom you never heard one year ago?"

"Are you willing to place at the helm in these times a commander in chief who will not say — and may not know — where he intends to steer this ship of state?"

Then in a jibe at the softball games in which Carter plays in Plains, Ga., Connally added:

"Let me remind you: In the big leagues of world leadership, they rarely play softball."

Two other tall ships are still scheduled to visit South Haven this weekend, Anderson said. The Danish barque "Maritree" and the Panamanian ship "Erawan" are scheduled to arrive Saturday. Public tours on the "Erawan" are scheduled for Sunday and Monday morning while hours for tours of the "Maritree" have not been confirmed.

Light Will Be Changed

COLOMA — Coloma Police Chief Kenneth Unruh said yesterday that the traffic light at the intersection of Church street and Red Arrow highway in Coloma would be removed Thursday.

Unruh said the intersection would become a four-way stop intersection with a flashing light.

Removal of the light was ordered in June by the city commission.

CURTAIN TIME AT MILNER: Driver of this car told Benton Harbor police his foot slipped off brake and hit accelerator while backing from Milner hotel parking lot and backed in a circle into hotel manager's office, 250 East Main street, Tuesday. Robert Llewellyn James, 44, a hotel resident, was unhurt and he was issued a citation for careless driving, police said. No one in hotel was injured in crash at about 8 p.m. and police did not report if anyone was in office at time. (Staff photo)

Talking Plant Stand

CHICAGO (AP) — A talking plant stand is the rage of the National Hardware Show this week. Press a button and you have a sex pot. From a small sound box on the stand, the soft female voice coos: "This is your plant speaking. I'm so happy in my home. You take such good care of me. You feed me when I'm hungry. You water me when I'm thirsty. You make sure that I'm happy and healthy in the nice warm sunshine. 'This is why I love you. Thank you for taking such good care of me. You are so nice. I love you. I love you, I love you.' Marshall Bedol, co-owner of a Cleveland company making the talking holders, said the invention makes a good conversation piece for a room full of guests. Bedol said his company is planning a half dozen different kinds of tapes. "We also are thinking of an x-rated tape that could be the voice of a dirty, old plant. That may go over after a few cocktails," he said.

Robbed Of His Clothes

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A Pennsylvania traveler fell asleep in the men's room at a bus terminal here. He awoke colder, but wiser. When Russell G. Warner, 51, of North East, Pa., awakened about 6 a.m. Tuesday following a short nap, he noticed that he was no longer wearing his shoes, jacket, hat or sweater, police said. He spotted his wallet, minus $15, on the floor as he headed downstairs to the waiting room. One of the first men he encountered was wearing some very familiar articles of clothing. Probably aided by Warner's shoes, the stranger outpaced him to an exit and disappeared. Police estimated the loss at $70.

How About Some Bee Pets

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tired of seeing your dog blunder into priceless antiques or the cat shred your $1,000 sofa? Louis Dubay has the perfect pet for you — a swarm of buzzing bees. "It is time somebody spoke out for the bee, often misunderstood and mistreated," said Dubay. "Bees are gentle and patient." He insists bees are fine for apartment dwellers, though he concedes, "It isn't always easy to explain your bees to your landlord or your neighbors." Dubay heads an organization called San Francisco Beekeepers. He dedicates most of his time to bees — explaining them, defending them, finding homes for homeless swarms and supplying gifts of homegrown honey to hospitals and other organizations. He also heads the one-man squad that answers most of San Francisco's emergency bee calls from the police and fire department. When summoned, Dubay rumbles to the scene in a truck equipped with hives and ladders and scoops the insects into hives. Often, he is able to convince people troubled by a swarming hive to let the swarm stay and join the Beekeepers. "Bees seem to sense where to settle where people will like them," he said. "If they don't want the bees, I take them away and find a home for them."

Congressional Rivals At Odds On Health Care

Bell Rate Boost Is Backed By Union

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Supporting Michigan Bell's request for $178 million in higher phone rates, an official of the Communications Workers of America said Tuesday he is glad the union does not bargain directly with the company on economic issues.

"We don't want to be faced with a company that is in a position to negotiate properly because of inadequate earnings," said Herman Shelton, assistant vice president of the union's Michigan and Ohio division.

"I'm not going to ask phone workers to give up deserved wage and fringe benefit increases to subsidize rates for Michigan customers that are lower than those in other states," said Shelton at a public hearing before the Public Service Commission staff on Bell's new rate request.

Shelton also urged the commission to grant Bell the $21 million interim rate increase it sought to cover pay hikes granted earlier this month to Bell employees under a new union contract.

The CWA bargains with the national Bell System for over 20,000 Michigan Bell employees. Shelton said although Michigan Bell is one of the "most efficient" in the Bell System, its customer rates are lower than those in other states. For example, he said, the rate for one-party residence service is only $7.50 a month in Detroit compared with $11.95 in Cleveland.

Higher rates are needed to maintain good telephone service and jobs for union members, Shelton said.

Light Will Be Changed

COLOMA — Coloma Police Chief Kenneth Unruh said yesterday that the traffic light at the intersection of Church street and Red Arrow highway in Coloma would be removed Thursday.

Unruh said the intersection would become a four-way stop intersection with a flashing light.

Removal of the light was ordered in June by the city commission.

Daugherty, 55, of Sister Lakes, said he wanted "intelligent programs" established for a national health care program.

"Many people cannot afford health care," Daugherty said, "but something has to be done about it. I don't know what the answer is, but the present administration doesn't have the answer."

"There is no such thing as a free lunch," Stockman said. "For a program of health care the people would have a very heavy cost to pay in tax increases. It would establish a monster bureaucracy."

When asked by Daugherty to be specific and propose a program, Stockman answered by saying he would endorse a "tough reform of medical malpractice abuse which forces medical costs to skyrocket" and urged that people filing "frivolous and unfounded" suits against doctors be penalized by the courts.

"The average family is already turning over more than one-third of their hard earned income to the government and a national health insurance policy, as proposed, would become even more of a burden," Stockman said.

Comparing views on the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), Daugherty said all it amounts to is taking "one person off a job and putting on a person who needs a job. We need to stimulate small business again and make a free enterprise system," he said.

Stockman said he supported the original philosophy of CETA, but said it was adopted with a deficit. "I support the creation of jobs for those on welfare and unemployment, but under present conditions public employees can be laid off and re-hired 15 days later with the public sectors money," he said.

Both candidates supported programs which would bring tax dollars paid by local citizens, back to their local units of government.

Two warrants charging assault with the intent to commit murder were authorized Monday but were returned to the prosecutor's office after Bowman died. The names are being withheld by The Herald-Palladium until arrests are made.

Bowman, 19, of 162 Vashti court, Benton township, died at Borgess hospital, Kalamazoo, where he had been transferred from Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor. A pathologist at Borgess hospital ruled that Bowman died from cerebral hemorrhage, according to police.

Police said Bowman was found about 1:15 a.m. Saturday on a grassy area near the Benton Harbor fire station, 200 Wall street.

The official Korean Central News Agency broadcast, monitored in Tokyo, said the North Korean guards "were compelled to take a step in self defense to counter the reckless provocation of the scoundrels." It said nothing about casualties on either side.

BH School Project Rated One Of Nation's Six Best

BY JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Project Conquest, a federally-funded reading program in Benton Harbor Area schools, has been named as one of six outstanding educational projects by the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare (HEW), school officials announced.

The Benton Harbor program and the five others were selected from a field of 2,000 educational programs submitted by state departments of education. The six programs will be described to school districts across the nation for possible inclusion in their curricula.

Adrienne Battistone, director of Project Conquest for Benton Harbor schools, said the program is to help elementary students who are reading behind their grade levels.

The project serves about 140 students in reading clinics at Fairplain Northeast, Martin Luther King and Morton schools. It will start its third year next month.

Students meet in clinics about 30 minutes each day. The clinics stress vocabulary, comprehension, phonics, academic reading and recreational reading. Mrs. Battistone said students in Project Conquest also take normal reading assignments from their regular classroom teachers.

She said students are generally reading one or two grade levels behind when they join the program and frequently are reading at grade level after only one year.

Benton Harbor Supt. Richard Heiser said he and the board of education are "very proud that another of the many positive things happening in our district has gained national attention. Each of the teachers and students who have participated in the program deserve congratulations for the notable achievements which bring attention to the Conquest effort."

His election came during the 89th annual convention of savings and loan associations at Mackinac Island, according to a spokesman for the group.

His Martinis No Reason For Retrial

The Michigan Court of Appeals has denied a convict's claim that he couldn't properly testify in Berrien Circuit court because he had drunk three to five martinis during a lunch break. The court upheld the armed robbery conviction of Roger Allen Craig, 44, South Bend, Ind., who was sentenced to 20 to 40 years in prison for armed robbery at Ken's Foodtown, Pipestone road, Benton township, in 1972.

Craig appealed that he was denied effective assistance of counsel at his trial because his attorney let him testify, although Craig claimed he had three to five martinis for lunch.

The appeals court noted that Craig's defense counsel, Atty. Richard Globensky of St. Joseph, had questioned Craig and found him in control of his faculties and able to testify.

The court also ruled the sentence imposed by Judge William S. White was proper and that "other allegations have been considered and found to be without merit."

The appeals court in 1975 reversed the conviction of a co-defendant in the grocery store robbery. The court overturned the conviction of George A. Caffray, 46, of Michigan City, ruling that it was inconsistent for the same attorney to represent both defendants because Craig had confessed to the robbery and Caffray denied any involvement.

Caffray's case was sent back to Berrien county for a new trial, but the prosecutor's office dropped the case because Craig's confession could not be introduced at trial, according to Asst. Prosecutor Sally Zack.

Police Get Streaking Pusher

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Police raided a house in Kuala Lumpur's Chinatown Tuesday and found two men — one in pants and one with a towel wrapped around him — making up small packets of heroin.

When the two men jumped through a window, the towel came off. For 200 yards along the busy street women screamed and men laughed as the police pursued the streaker and his companion.

The chase ended for the nude man when he paused at a clothesline to grab a sarong. The police grabbed him. The man in pants escaped.

The police said they seized $300 worth of heroin in the house.

Bicentennial Climbers A Mixture Of Personalities

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

ON THE TRAIL TO EVEREST, Nepal (AP) — The 12 members of the American Bicentennial Everest Expedition are as varied as the different shapes and sizes of the boots they hope will get them to the top of the world's highest mountain.

The 10 men and two women are experienced climbers with mountain conquests ranging from North America's highest, Mt. McKinley, to previously unclimbed ridges in the Peruvian Andes and perilous faces of the Alps.

The group now heading for the 29,028-foot peak of Mt. Everest includes two doctors, three lawyers, a dancer, a computer scientist, a pilot, a shipwright. There are Ph.D.s, summa cum laude graduates, a carpenter, a sky diver. Their ages range from 27 to 38.

"The most important key to the success of this expedition," said Phillip Trimble, the expedition leader and old man of the group, "is how everyone will get along. There has to be a level of tolerance. There is no room for big egos. It is a total team effort."

The nucleus of the expedition, which was mostly organized in the short space of only four months after permission to climb was received in March, is a group of five climbing friends—Trimble, Dan Emmett, Frank Morgan, Hans Bruyntjes and Arlene Blum—which expanded to 11 to include mountaineers with more technical experience. An American living in Nepal was recently added to complete the team.

"The success or failure of this expedition is not defined by whether or not we get to the top," said Trimble. "What I want most is for everyone to remember a happy experience. We want to give it the maximum effort and make it a trip we are proud of."

Trimble heads the legal affairs section of the U.S. State Department in Washington. A father of two, a Harvard Law School honors graduate and a Fulbright scholar, Trimble, 38, can more easily be pictured in his tent reading the paperback copy of "War and Peace" he brought along than slogging his way up the mountain.

But he said, "Climbing is a chance to do something that's a total contrast to my professional life."

—Dan Emmett, 36, a Beverly Hills, Calif., lawyer in the real estate business, married with two children, remembered the first mention of Everest.

"I told Trimble he was a fool to consider it, that it was not in the realm of reason and that of course we should go. We're mountaineers and it's the highest mountain, the ultimate challenge. It's a great goal to strive for. Sure there are a lot more important things to do in life, but what an opportunity!"

Frank Morgan, a native of Sacramento, Calif., is another Harvard Law School graduate like his two friends and now practices international corporate law in Jakarta, Indonesia. He is a bachelor who turned 38 on Sept. 8.

"I like the idea of a shared adventure like this. It's an intense experience. The totality of your existence is involved with these people for such a long period of time," said Morgan.

—Hans Bruyntjes, a 28-year-old former carpenter from The Netherlands, has the self-assurance of a man who's climbed some of the most difficult peak faces on the Alps. He said he'd rather be climbing sheer rock walls than the snow and ice of Everest and when he first heard about the climb, he hesitated three weeks before accepting.

"It's dangerous, that's why, he said, "On Everest you know you're going to risk a lot. It's a totally different mountain that involves 80 per cent endurance and 20 per cent experience. I think it'll be the hardest thing I'll ever do."

—Arlene Blum, 31, is a chemistry professor from Menlo Park, Calif., who started climbing while a student in college in Oregon.

"It was like discovering religion," she said. "Suddenly I knew that I belonged on top of a mountain." She organized the first all-women climb of Mt. McKinley in 1970 and has climbed peaks in Peru, Ethiopia and Kashmir. She has climbed higher than anyone else in this expedition—to a height of 23,700 feet in Afghanistan.

For this climb, Ms. Blum, who prefers Ms. to Miss, is putting off reporting to her teaching job at Wellesley College in Massachusetts until January.

—Mrs. Barbara Roach, who is making this trip with her husband, Gerald, is 32 and the first woman to climb Mt. Furaker in Alaska and the only woman to climb the south face of Chacaraju in Peru. In regular life she is a dancer and says she is probably happier at that than climbing mountains, which she started doing 10 years ago with her husband.

But Mrs. Roach said: "Actually the two interests go together nicely. I use my dance exercises to train for rock climbing. Both involve balance, strength and control, and stability."

—Gerard Roach, 32, a former peace Corps volunteer in India, now a scientist with the National Center for atmospheric Research, living in Boulder, Colo., has climbed eight of the 10 highest peaks in North America and has been around the world twice on climbing trips with his wife.

"Mountains are my life," said Roach. "You have to have the fire, that gut desire to get to the top. It's instinctive with me. And I'm physically prepared for the toughest thing I've done in my life."

—Rick Ridgeway of Malibu, Calif., who at 27 is the youngest and smallest member of the team. He has three steel pins in his leg, which he broke last October while climbing in Yosemite. A shipwright and now a freelance writer who hopes to write a book about Nepal's Sherpas guides, Ridgeway has day dreamed about Everest in the past but always dismissed it as an unlikely possibility. "It's a real ego trip to be here now," he said.

—Chris Chandler is 23, a divorced father of three, and a doctor with West Seattle General Hospital in Washington. He has made numerous first ascents and blazed new routes on peaks in North America and Peru.

Everest for him is "a real adventure. In one way, it's just another peak, but then there is that certain mystique about the place. And like any other mountain, if I don't have to kill myself, I'd like to get to the top. It would still be a good trip, an adventure, if I don't make it."

—Dee Crouch, an emergency medical doctor in Boulder, brought along more than 400 pounds of medical supplies on the mountain to treat everything from hemorrhoids to broken limbs. He also is conducting some cognitive tests, to be followed up over the next few years, to determine the possibility of brain damage from the effects of high altitude.

"The summit is not that important to me," said Crouch, 33, father of two sons. "It has not been my life-long goal to climb Mt. Everest. Yes, I would like to get to the top but my first purpose is to care for the people on the mountain."

—Robert Cormack, 30, is a pilot, the owner of a rooming house in Boulder, and an occasional physics tutor when he is not scrambling up mountains. When Gerry Roach proposed that he join the team, Cormack said he wasn't sure he really wanted to go. "I figured it would be one big hassle...but then I decided yes—it was a once in a lifetime opportunity.

"Getting to the summit is my goal but I'm not prepared to die or lose my toes and fingers for it."

—Joe Reinhard, 32, from New Lenox, Ill., is a cultural anthropologist who has been living in Nepal for the last five years and is fluent in Nepali. "Everest has been on my mind ever since I got here so I jumped at the opportunity to join the expedition but I try not to think about being able to climb it," said Reinhard. As advance base camp manager, he figures his chances of getting an opportunity to reach the summit are small. He is responsible for working with the Sherpas and porters in getting clothing, food and equipment to the higher camps.

An expert sky diver and Scuba diver, whose first mountain conquest was Europe's highest, Mt. Blanc, Reinhard sees Everest as another learning experience. "At the end, I want the team to say they're glad that I came along."

Woman Runs Into Side Of Automobile

A 70-year-old woman was injured Tuesday when she ran into the side of a car while chasing two dogs and a goat that had escaped, according to state police of the Benton Harbor post.

Marcel Johnson, 3495 M-139 Royalton township, was reported in "fairly good" condition today with multiple fractures of both legs at Memorial hospital, St. Joseph. Troopers said the accident occurred shortly before 11 a.m. Tuesday on M-139 Royalton township.

Driver of the car was Jack Lee Walkden, 23, of 1010 Rynearson road, Buchanan. No tickets were issued.

Witnesses told troopers the woman was "darting" after the animals and the Walkden car was unable to avoid her. The police report did not state what happened to the animals.

Buchanan Planners Approve Expansion

BUCHANAN — Plans for an estimated $20,000 project to expand Kayak Specialties Inc., here received conditional approval from the Buchanan city planning commission last night.

William Smoke, president of the firm, said the project involves building a two-story addition to the north side of the present two-story structure housing the firm and adding a new front to the entire building.

The addition, Smoke told the commission, would contain 800 square feet of office space on the second floor and 700 square feet of space for retail sales on the first floor.

The building is located at 320 North Red Bud Trail and also serves as the office for the Sports Corner, a firm selling and renting sports equipment, including canoes and kayaks manufactured by Smoke's firm. Sports Corner rents space from Kayak Specialties, Smoke said.

Approval of the site plan for the expansion was made conditional on submission of a second copy of architect's drawings of the project and a landscape plan.

Rev. Keith Morrow, commission chairman, said that Smoke must still appear before the city's board of zoning appeals to settle a question on whether a variance is needed to construct the addition and obtain a building permit before construction can begin.

Smoke said he hopes to begin construction as soon as the variance matter is solved and the permit is issued.

Thieves Get Cash, Wine At Sawyer

SAWYER — An estimated $300 in cash and another $175 worth of wine and cigarettes were reported taken in a break-in of the White Lamb grocery store, Red Arrow highway and Brownstown road, here yesterday morning.

Police said the front door had been pried to gain entry.

Body Found In BH May Be Ohio Man

Benton Harbor police were attempting today to determine the cause of death and verify the identity of a man whose badly decomposed body was found Tuesday in a wooded area off the 300 block of North Shore drive.

Police tentatively identified the man as Fred Blow, 65, Dayton, Ohio, from a wallet found in a knapsack near the body.

Police said autopsy was to be performed today to determine cause of death. Verification of the man's identity was being sought through fingerprints sent to the state police crime laboratory in Holland.

Police were directed to the location of the body by Cornelius Van Warden, 115 Water street, Benton Harbor, who found the body about 2 p.m. Police reported it was apparent the man had been dead "for some time."

The body was found face down near what police described as a lean-to built by vagrants. He was black and dressed in coveralls, police said.

A check by Benton Harbor police with Dayton police revealed that a Fred Clyde Blow, whose description matched that of the man found yesterday, has been sought since 1960 in connection with a burglary in Dayton. Dayton police also said the man reportedly had not been in that area for 10 to 12 years and they had no record of any relatives.

Convention Notes

Esch Seeks Unity Among Republicans

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rep. Marvin Esch is seeking unity among Michigan Republicans here — so he'll have a better shot of winning a Senate seat this fall.

Esch appeared before the Michigan delegation at the Republican National Convention Tuesday to plead for togetherness once the Ford-Reagan fireworks are over. Otherwise, he said, his chance of beating Democratic Rep. Donald Riegle would be hurt.

"We must come out of this convention united as never before," the Ann Arbor congressman and GOP Senate nominee told the delegates. "In the next two days we have to work together as a team — we need your help."

Esch said that only if Republicans worked together could they defeat the program of big government promised by "the Carter-Mondale-Riegle team."

Esch said there was a clear choice on the issues between Riegle and himself — accusing the Flint Democrat of "not believing that children should go to neighborhood schools," a thinly veiled reference to busing.

If the public is confronted with that choice, Esch said, they will understand the difference and vote Republican.

"Do we want government which dominates our lives in the Carter-Mondale-Riegle tradition, or do we want a government which serves the people," he demanded.

And he made it clear his chance of beating Riegle this November depends on Reagan and Ford forces uniting after this convention to work for his election.

Snowed under by the Reagan forces' white T-shirts the night before, Michigan Ford delegates showed up at Tuesday night's convention session decked out in white nylon windbreakers.

The combined effect, on the floor and with alternates in the stands, was that of two groups of ambulance attendants, or gas jockeys. When told he looked like part of an auto racing pit crew, state Chairman William McLaughlin retorted: "We're a Ford pit crew."

McLaughlin's jacket with its red Ford sticker on the back at least set off his bright red baseball cap, an adornment of all Ford floor leaders. But the net result approximated a Little League manager.

Wealthy Detroit financier Max Fisher also looked a little out of place in the jacket. Gov. William Milliken, however, wore a dignified gray suit.

Helen Milliken lost a chance to debate Pat Boone and "The FBI" Tuesday when the New York delegation canceled an appearance of Ford lobbyists. Mrs. Milliken, President Ford's son Jack, Commerce Secretary Elliott Richardson and a couple of others were to make a pitch for Ford to New York when a Reagan group also showed up, seeking equal time before the closed session.

Among the Reagan backers were Pat Boone and Eileen Zimbalist Jr., the star of the old TV show, "The FBI." Both California delegates.

The wife of Gov. William Milliken has joined Ford "caucus teams" which are appearing before various state delegations.

A Michigan reporter had little trouble establishing a rapport with John Dean, former White House lawyer and Watergate celebrity. Although Dean regarded his interviewer skeptically at first, he brightened immediately when the writer commented: "I understand you used to own a Porsche."

The relation established, on the secret bond of mutual Porsche ownership, Dean, covering the national convention for Rolling Stone Magazine, confided that "I had great fun with the press" during the Watergate months. "They could never catch up to me."

Reagan delegates from Michigan were booed down when they tried to affix a large picture of the candidate to the Michigan standard on the convention floor. They withdrew good naturedly, and a Ford delegate applied a sticker which caused no disagreement: A Marvin Esch for Senate banner.

BIG ROCKER: John Aartum moved from North Kingsville, Ohio, last March to tiny community of Sunset in Pickens County, S.C., to operate country store and build custom furniture in shed nearby. But business was sparse so Aartum built 30-foot rocking chair and placed it out front. It took him two and a half days to build chair and it cost $140. Now business is improving. # MARRIAGES ARE JUST AS HAPPY

Pre-Marital Conception No Problem?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Couples who conceive a child before they wed do not have a significantly higher breakup rate than those who wait until after the marriage ceremony to start a family, a government report shows.

The report said that 81.6 per cent of women in the last half of the 1960s who married after becoming pregnant still were with their husbands at the time of the 1970 census, compared with 85.5 per cent of women who were not pregnant when they wed.

"When I was growing up, girls were urged to keep their bodies pure and those who represented themselves as the moral arbiters of society enforced this feeling," said Henry Smith of the Census Bureau.

"Here the statistics seem to suggest that a girl who becomes pregnant before marriage and marries the father seems to make out as well as the girl who kept her body pure," he said.

The figures were contained in the Census Bureau's first report on premarital childbirth.

The report shows also that 32.6 per cent of first children born to black mothers in 1969 were illegitimate, compared with 10.1 per cent of first babies born to white mothers.

The survey also shows that illegitimate first babies increased in recent years among blacks but remained nearly stable among whites.

About 18 per cent of black women between the ages of 45 to 50 reported having their first child out of wedlock. Of black women 25 to 30 years old, 38.2 per cent reported illegitimate first births.

Among white women in the 45 to 50 age group, 5.7 per cent reported having their first child while single. The figure was 6.4

per cent for white women of the younger 25-30 generation.

Demographers, sociologists and social psychologists say that economic, social and cultural differences, and the availability of birth control methods explain differences in premarital child conception among races.

Joy Dryfoos of a Planned Parenthood's research group, the Alan Guttmacher Institute in New York, said that illegitimacy rates will drop as birth control becomes more widespread.

"The conventional wisdom is that the black culture is more accepting of illegitimacy than the white culture," she said. "I would also suggest that the differences are related to the availability of birth control, abortion and sex education. I would expect a decline in black illegitimacy in the next report because our studies show that blacks are using abortion services more than we expected."

Dr. Leslie Corsa, a professor of population planning at the University of Michigan, said a Detroit study shows that illegitimacy rates may be higher among blacks than whites because pregnant white women are more likely to get married than black women.

"The meaning of illegitimacy is different for blacks," he said. "Many blacks have grown up in situations where it is common for children to be born out of wedlock and see nothing wrong with it."

The census report also shows that almost 71 per cent of black mothers who were aged 15 to 20 in 1970 bore their first child out of wedlock. That compares with 22 per cent for white mothers of the same ages.

The census findings are in line with a report published in 1971 by demographers at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore that black girls aged 15 to 19 were more sexually active than white girls of the same

course, compared with 40 per cent of white girls of the same age.

MARRIAGES ARE JUST AS HAPPY

Pre-Marital Conception No Problem?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Couples who conceive a child before they wed do not have a significantly higher breakup rate than those who wait until after the marriage ceremony to start a family, a government report shows.

The report said that 81.6 per cent of women in the last half of the 1960s who married after becoming pregnant still were with their husbands at the time of the 1970 census, compared with 85.5 per cent of women who were not pregnant when they wed.

"When I was, growing up, girls were urged to keep their bodies pure and those who represented themselves as the moral arbiters of society enforced this feeling," said Henry Smith of the Census Bureau.

"Here the statistics seem to suggest that a girl who becomes pregnant before marriage and marries the father seems to make out as well as the girl who kept her body pure," he said.

The figures were contained in the Census Bureau's first report on premarital childbirth.

The report shows also that 52.6 per cent of first children born to black mothers in 1969 were illegitimate, compared with 10.1 per cent of first babies born to white mothers.

The survey also shows that illegitimate first babies increased in recent years among blacks but remained nearly stable among whites.

About 18 per cent of black women between the ages of 45 to 50 reported having their first child out of wedlock. Of black women 25 to 30 years old, 38.2 per cent reported illegitimate first births.

Among white women in the 45 to 50 age group, 5.7 per cent reported having their first child while single. The figure was 6.4

per cent for white women of the younger 25-30 generation.

Demographers, sociologists and social psychologists say that economic, social and cultural differences, and the availability of birth control methods explain differences in premarital child conception among races.

Joy Dryfoos of a Planned Parenthood's research group, the Alan Guttmacher Institute in New York, said that illegitimacy rates will drop as birth control becomes more widespread.

"The conventional wisdom is that the black culture is more accepting of illegitimacy than the white culture," she said. "I would also suggest that the differences are related to the availability of birth control, abortion and sex education. I would expect a decline in black illegitimacy in the next report because our studies show that blacks are using abortion services more than we expected."

Dr. Leslie Corsa, a professor of population planning at the University of Michigan, said a Detroit study shows that illegitimacy rates may be higher among blacks than whites because pregnant white women are more likely to get married than black women.

"The meaning of illegitimacy is different for blacks," he said. "Many blacks have grown up in situations where it is common for children to be born out of wedlock and see nothing wrong with it."

The census report also shows that almost 71 per cent of black mothers who were aged 15 to 20 in 1970 bore their first child out of wedlock. That compares with 22 per cent for white mothers of the same ages.

The census findings are in line with a report published in 1971 by demographers at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore that black girls aged 15 to 19 were more sexually active than white girls of the same

New Buffalo OKs Apartment Zoning Change

NEW BUFFALO — The New Buffalo city council last night unanimously approved a requested zoning change which will pave the way for phase-I construction of a $750,000 apartment project here.

The request from Grelec Real Estate Investment and Management firm, Kalamazoo, to change the zoning on the south side of Jefferson street from residential to multiple family planned unit development was approved despite the fact the city's planning commission had earlier rejected the proposal.

Phase-I construction would consist of three buildings containing a total of 48 one and two bedroom apartments. Phase-II would be another building containing 16 similar apartment units.

William J. Archambault Jr., a member of the real estate firm, said the apartments are to be geared for senior citizens and newly married couples. He said construction of phase-I could get underway as soon as 60 days or as late as one year from now, depending on the time it takes to get Federal Home administration application approval. The firm will be responsible for installation of city utilities.

In approving the rezoning, portions of Jameson, Madison and Bronson streets were vacated.

In other areas, for the city's proposed plans for a pavilion public park were presented by Mrs. Barbara Barickman, park board member. She presented plans for a 40 by 42 foot pavilion with fireplace which will be built and donated to the city by the New Buffalo Lions club.

Girl, 10 Accused Of Break-In

SOUTH HAVEN — A 10-year-old Grand Junction girl has been petitioned to Van Buren Probate court on a charge of breaking and entering of a Columbia township house trailer, according to state police from South Haven.

Troopers said the girl and a six-year-old companion are alleged to have ransacked a trailer owned by George Honis-tria of Chicago, last weekend.

Troopers said a window had been broken and the trailer left in disarray. The six-year-old will not be charged, police said.

SOUTH HAVEN — Salary increases for transportation and food service employees of the South Haven public schools system received approval from the board of education last night.

The district's bus drivers will receive an 8.5 per cent pay hike while food service employees will have their pay increased seven per cent, according to Supt. Harold Gaarde.

Under the new rates, a bus driver with a single route will receive $5.48 per trip. Regular cooks will be paid hourly rates ranging from $2.62 to $3.17.

Gaarde noted that the increase for the transportation employees was greater because they had received only a 3.5 per cent hike a year ago.

In other matters, the board approved the purchase of a two-way radio system for its buses for $6,715. Ten vehicles will be equipped with the radios and a base station will be established at the bus garage.

The board approved borrowing $45,711 from American National Bank West of South Haven for the purchase of three new buses.

The board accepted new guidelines for the governing subsidized hot lunch program in which children from moderate-income families can receive free lunches and milk. Information on the program is available at the superintendent's office.

The board approved the placement of a memorial on the Dale Patterson diamond of the Junior Athletic Association baseball complex in honor of local citizens who have supported the program since its inception in 1967.

The board authorized preparing an application to the state for funding a compensatory education program for low achieving elementary students. Gaarde said the South Haven system could receive up to $63,000 for the program.

Several coaching assignments were approved as follows: John Yelding, head girls' basketball and softball; Neil Mead, assistant jayvee football; Tom Pauley, boys' tennis; and Cheryl Runney, reserve girls' basketball.

Gaarde reported he would be willing to address local groups on the rationale for a building referendum bond issue to be presented electors on Sept. 11.

Lakes Winning Battle With Michigan Shoreline

EIGHTY HOMES LOST SINCE 1969

By SUSAN AGEY
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's Great Lakes are slowly eating her away, and in most cases the waves are more persistent and powerful than man's attempts to dull their blow on shoreline bluffs.

At least a foot of land, and in most cases several feet, are washed into the lakes annually along 500 to 600 miles of quickly eroding shoreline.

North of Port Huron, a half mile of land has been bitten off by Lake Huron since Michigan became a state in 1837, state officials say. And in Alger County's tiny Burt Twp. on Lake Superior's southern shore, about 10 feet disappear each year.

For lake property owners who see their bluffs falling away before their eyes, the advice of the state Department of Natural Resources is this: "Let nature take its course and move your house."

For the future, they are using the Shorelands Protection Act that bans development within a certain distance from the bluff edge, to guarantee that the home or building will last at least 30 years.

"Right now we're paying the price for unwise shoreline development," says Larry Hupakka, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers coastal-engineering chief in Chicago.

"Homes were constructed in critical erosion areas, just like people built in the past on flood plains due to ignorance," he says.

"Michigan is in bad shape," he says flatly. State officials say the state's 2,200 miles of Great Lakes shoreline is battered worse than states bordering on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Particularly hard hit by wave erosion are Berrien, Van Buren, Ottawa and Muskegon counties bordering on Lake Michigan, Lake Huron shoreline near Port Huron and Tawas City, and Lake Superior's southern shore.

Since 1969 in Michigan, more than 70 summer homes and cottages have slumped over the edge of eroded bluffs and fallen into the lakes.

Another 800 homes are teetering on the edge, so to speak. They are 10 to 15 feet from the bluff's edge, within easy reach of the lakes' bite.

Estimates by the University of Michigan's Coastal Zone Laboratory are that lake erosion caused over $70 million in property damage in 1972-74 and about the same from then to now. It estimates another $30 million was spent by property owners in often futile attempts to save their beaches and bluffs.

"There's room in the lakes for the whole state," is Fred Clinton's only half-joking way of describing the situation. He is head of shorelands management for the state Department of Natural Resources, and knows how hard property owners have tried, with seawalls and other means to stop the creeping erosion.

"One guy spent $12,000 on shoreline protection, and now he's going to go in and spend another $14,000," he says. "In many places you can see the remnants of four or five attempts to control erosion, and all have been destroyed."

"Part of the problem is lack of knowledge, and part of the problem is a lack of funds to do the job right the first time," he says.

Erosion control has been particularly difficult in this decade because lake levels have been higher than even in 1952, the earlier record for this century, officials say.

And there is no federal or state agency to help property owners finance shoreline protection. A properly built steel piling seawall will cost $150 to $200 per foot of shoreline, for example, but with careful maintenance could last 20 years, officials said.

A state law passed last year only allows homeowners to exempt the high cost of erosion control from their property assessment.

Efforts failed in 1972 to create a low-interest state loan authority to help shoreline homeowners. State officials say that was partly because due to inlanders' bias against the stereotypical lakeshore property owner.

"The general feeling was, 'If they are rich enough to have a cottage, why should we do anything about it with our tax money?'" says Bill Marks, chief of the DNR's water management division.

But, he says, "It doesn't stop with that first tier of cottages. An average six to eight feet comes off the land each year, and that's a net reduction of our land resources."

"If it was going to stop at 100 feet, that's one thing, but it's not," he says. Besides property damage, lakeshore counties suffer a loss in property tax base when houses disappear into the lakes, he says.

Others like Clinton say the low-interest loans might not be such a good idea anyway. "The question is if they try something, and it works for two years then fails and their house falls in, are you likely to repay that loan?" he asks. "We've seen so many things fail out there."

Officials say the problems in controlling erosion of Michigan's shoreline are multiple.

"Practically no public or state-owned land is protected from erosion, mainly due to the high cost and the thought that 'nature should take its course.'"

Lakeshore property owners who do have the money to build seawalls or groins often do not consult their neighbors. A string of various erosion controls may do more harm than good, officials say.

Other property owners in frustration throw tires, auto bodies and Christmas trees by the hundreds on their beaches and bluffs.

A bill signed this year allows local governments to create special assessment districts if more than half the shoreline homeowners want to pitch in to build some type of shore protection.

But Clinton says that law has not yet been used. Similar laws in 1923 and 1952 were never used at all, he says.

The DNR and the U-M Coastal Zone Lab have a $370,000 project underway to test 19 low-cost erosion techniques. At $50 to $100 a foot, the methods are more in line with the average homeowners' budgets, they say. But already, after two years, some of the projects have failed during heavy storms, including one that was protecting a road and beachhouse at Pere Marquette State Park near Ludington. The beach house was washed away.

Man Claims Killing Was God's Order

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit man who said he carried out instructions from God to find and slay a fat, false prophet dressed in red was in jail today on a first-degree murder charge.

Raymond Prophet Cooper, a five-foot-five, 239-pound self-styled minister in Detroit, was beaten to death Saturday.

His accused slayer is Richard Dunbar, 24.

Homicide officers said Dunbar told them that after getting his instructions from God, he drove about the city looking for a man who fit the description of the prophet.

By midafternoon, Dunbar spotted the red-robed Cooper on a street corner.

They said Dunbar got his carbine out of his car trunk and fired at the prophet but the gun misfired.

Homicide Det. Sgt. Carl Frederick said Dunbar then used his gun as a club, beating Cooper so severely that the gunstock and trigger guard were smashed.

Dunbar went to a nearby church and telephoned police to come get him.

Police said there was no evidence the two men knew each other.

Dunbar was arraigned in Recorder's Court on a first-degree murder charge Monday and stood mute pending a hearing.

Lakes Winning Battle With Michigan Shoreline

EIGHTY HOMES LOST SINCE 1969

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's Great Lakes are slowly eating her away, and in most cases the waves are more persistent and powerful than man's attempts to dull their blow on shoreline bluffs.

At least a foot of land, and in most cases several feet, are washed into the lakes annually along 500 to 600 miles of quickly eroding shoreline.

North of Port Huron, a half mile of land has been bitten off by Lake Huron since Michigan became a state in 1837, state officials say. And in Alger County's tiny Burt Twp. on Lake Superior's southern shore, about 10 feet disappear each year.

For lake property owners who see their bluffs falling away before their eyes, the advice of the state Department of Natural Resources is this: "Let nature take its course and move your house."

For the future, they are using the Shorelands Protection Act that bans development within a certain distance from the bluff edge, to guarantee that the home or building will last at least 30 years.

"Right now we're paying the price for unwise shoreline development," says Larry Hiipakka, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers coastal engineering chief in Chicago.

"Homes were constructed in critical erosion areas, just like people built in the past on flood plains due to ignorance," he says.

"Michigan is in bad shape," he says flatly. State officials say the state's 2,200 miles of Great Lakes shoreline is battered worse than states bordering on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Particularly hard hit by wave erosion are Berrien, Van Buren, Ottawa and Muskegon counties bordering on Lake Michigan, Lake Huron shoreline near Port Huron and Tawas City, and Lake Superior's southern shore.

Since 1969 in Michigan, more than 70 summer homes and cottages have slumped over the edge of eroded bluffs and fallen into the lakes.

Another 800 homes are teetering on the edge, so to speak. They are 10 to 15 feet from the bluff's edge, within easy reach of the lakes' bite.

Estimates by the University of Michigan's Coastal Zone Laboratory are that lake erosion caused over $70 million in property damage in 1972-74 and about the same from then to now. It estimates another $30 million was spent by property owners in often futile attempts to save their beaches and bluffs.

"There's room in the lakes for the whole state," is Fred Clinton's only half-joking way of describing the situation. He is head of shorelands management for the state Department of Natural Resources, and knows how hard property owners have tried, with seawalls and other means to stop the creeping erosion.

"One guy spent $12,000 on shoreline protection, and now he's going to go in and spend another $14,000," he says. "In many places you can see the remnants of four or five attempts to control erosion, and all have been destroyed."

"Part of the problem is lack of knowledge, and part of the problem is a lack of funds to do the job right the first time," he says.

Erosion control has been particularly difficult in this decade because lake levels have been higher than even in 1952, the earlier record for this century, officials say.

And there is no federal or state agency to help property owners finance shoreline protection. A properly built steel piling seawall will cost $150 to $200 per foot of shoreline, for example, but with careful maintenance could last 20 years, officials said.

A state law passed last year only allows homeowners to exempt the high cost of erosion control from their property assessment.

Efforts failed in 1972 to create a low-interest state loan authority to help shoreline homeowners. State officials say that was partly because due to inlanders' bias against the stereotypical lakeshore property owner.

"The general feeling was, 'If they are rich enough to have a cottage, why should we do anything about it with our tax money?'" says Bill Marks, chief of the DNR's water management division.

But, he says, "It doesn't stop with that first tier of cottages. An average six to eight feet comes off the land each year, and that's a net reduction of our land resources."

"If it was going to stop at 100 feet, that's one thing, but it's not," he says. Besides property damage, lakeshore counties suffer a loss in property tax base when houses disappear into the lakes, he says.

OREGON: Big State Has Two Climate Zones

By VIRGIL RUPP

PENDLETON, Oregon — (NEA) — Oregon is a people state. Not only do all the ocean beaches belong to the people, but more than half of the rest of the state is owned by federal and state governments. It's a state for people who like the outdoors, but culture isn't foreign.

It's the state that passed the unique "bottle bill" and thereby took a giant step toward ending roadside litter. It's the state

It's a land of contrasts — ocean and mountain — sheepherder and long-hair — wide-open spaces and metropolitan centers — rain forest and sagebrush — Hells Canyon and the gentle Willamette Valley — cowboys and Indians.

"For two centuries before the 'Oregon Country' had even a fur trading outpost, it was an area of legend..." says the Oregon Historical Society.

What's Oregon really like? You're likely to get a different Oregon would show you his thousands of acres of golden grain. One of the men turning desert into green fields by irrigating with water from the Columbia River might dig into his sandy soil and hold up a potato.

There's the Oregon of industry, the Oregon that sees itself as a center for foreign trade — most of the state's wheat goes to the hungry mouths of the Far East, for example; the Oregon of the elk hunter in the Blue Mountains, the Oregon of the Indian. Chief Joseph's Nez Perce tribe wandered through the valleys and mountains of Northeast Oregon. Red men harvested the Columbia River's great runs of salmon and left photographs on canyon walls.

There's the Oregon of the dim past — man has lived in the state perhaps 10,000 years, anthropologists say. But fossils from the Clarno country and elsewhere along the canyon of the John Day River show that three-toed horses, saber-tooth tigers and other fabled creatures once roamed here.

Are we getting anywhere? Let's try another tack — geography. While Oregon is a political entity, it's actually two widely different regions. There's western Oregon, cool, green and a little damp in winter, where the Japanese current keeps the climate mild.

Like a backbone, the Cascade Mountains, a spine of ancient volcanoes that includes Crater Lake, splits the state from north to south.

On the eastern side, the summers are hot and the winters are colder, although chinook winds usually head off any prolonged spell of bitter weather. Eastern Oregon is dry and much of it appears to be desert. That's because the Cascades, rearing more than 10,000 feet above sea level, intercept the moisture-laden winds.

The Columbia River marks Oregon's northern boundary and the Snake River in Hell's Canyon, its northeastern side.

Much of the state is mountainous and lonely. The first emigrants following the Oregon Trail headed for the fertile Willamette Valley. That's the population center today. The Willamette Valley looks a great deal like parts of the Midwest. But when you cross the Cascades into Eastern Oregon, you know at once you're "out west."

Eastern Oregon is a land of vistas, cattle and agriculture. The Oregon of industry begins more than 400 years ago when Spanish navigators sailed along the coast. But they didn't stop — unless it was to bury a treasure on Neahkahnie Mountain that treasure hunters still seek. Rare beaver from India of a kind carried by ships to Spain washes up now and again on Nehalem Spit and gives the treasure hunters inspiration.

What's the best time to see Oregon? It depends on what you like to do. In the winter you can watch Pacific storms lash the coast and beachcombs for Japanese fishing floats, ski among the snowy peaks, fish for steelhead in a fast-running stream.

The spring is a time of flowers, particularly in lush Western Oregon; farmers in fields, the opening of trout season.

Summer brings the Portland

Rose Festival, the Shakespearean Festival in the college town of Ashland, wheat harvest, ripening fruit, salmon fishing on the Pacific, hiking in the national forests and wilderness areas, ghost town exploring. Blood runs fastest in the fall — grouse hunting; the Pendleton Round-Up and its night show, Happy Canyon; the other bird seasons, big game hunting.

A Word Editor

The refusal of the Italian Christian Democrats (DC) to admit the Communists (PCI) to governmental office has been described as a massive blow for the cause of freedom.

Recall that before the recent general election, in which his party came in second with more than a third of the vote, PCI leader Enrico Berlinguer was calling for a "historic compromise": a coalition between the DC and the PCI to provide stability in Italy.

Yet I'm convinced that once the votes were counted, and it became clear that the DC could not form a stable majority government by working with the miscellaneous non-Communist fragments, Dr. Berlinguer — a shrewd strategist — wanted no part of government.

Look at it from his point of view. First, if the PCI joined the government, it would never get close to the levers of real power: the Foreign, Defense and Interior ministries. Instead, it would surely be handed the Ministry of Labor and other related social positions, with the implicit task of keeping the Italian workers on a short, anti-inflationary leash.

Second, if denied office, it could capitalize on Italian nationalism, claiming that the DC was receiving orders from Washington and its NATO "lackeys" to exclude the spokesmen for the "masses."

Third, outside the government the PCI could enjoy the best of both worlds — it would have the power to frustrate the government, but no responsibility for governmental actions.

Actually, in cold political terms, the "historic compromise" has been operating, virtually invisibly, for some time. The Christian Democrats and the Communists have had an odd, chummy relationship since the good old days of 1947 when — even after DC Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi kicked the PCI out of the Cabinet — the two parties combined to insert the Concor-dat with the Papacy into the draft Constitution.

Similarly over the last few years — the PCI has quietly cooperated with the DC in the parliamentary commissions (equivalent to our committees), though frequently objecting and abstaining in public debate in the Chamber of Deputies.

Curiously unnoticed is the fact that this present Communist stance of critical support is a reversion to the final posture of the French Communists (PCF) towards the 1935 French Popular Front government headed by Socialist Leon Blum.

PCF leader Maurice Thorez refused Cabinet responsibilities, but promised Blum parliamentary support as long as the Socialist behaved himself. Indeed, for a while (as Berlinguer doubtless knows) Thorez and the PCF were too loyal for their own proletarian good.

The election of Blum, viewed as the savior of the underpaid and oppressed French workers, triggered a tremendous wave of strikes. The Blum government moved immediately to institute social reforms such as the 40-hour week and vacations with pay. Unfortunately, these measures infuriated the "Patronat" (the bosses) and simultaneously failed to satisfy the demands of trade union militants.

The Socialists were left alone to face the financial crisis that resulted. The pay increases and fringe benefits contributed to a rise in unit costs, an unfavorable balance of trade, currency devaluation and general economic chaos. Members of the Patronat, many of whom were closely linked to French fascism, did everything in their power to worsen matters, and poor Blum was in no position to respond effectively.

Meanwhile the PCF was solidifying its position among the workers, driving the formerly predominant Socialists from control of the big trade union confederation, the C.G.T., and taking over the left.

The Nazi-Soviet Pact and World War II threw a monkeywrench into the PCF's strategy, but in today's Italy the Communists are sitting pretty. Their demands must be given attention by the government, they can claim credit for popular measures, but nobody can blame them for unpopular actions.

In short, they can work both sides of the street with gay abandon — a far more valuable political posture than ducking dung in exchange for the Ministries of Health, Labor and Education.

ble balance of trade, currency devaluation and general economic chaos. Members of the Patronat, many of whom were closely linked to French fascism, did everything in their power to worsen matters, and poor Blum was in no position to respond effectively.

Meanwhile the PCF was solidifying its position among the workers, driving the formerly predominant Socialists from control of the big trade union confederation, the C.G.T., and taking over the left.

The Nazi-Soviet Pact and World War II threw a monkeywrench into the PCF's strategy, but in today's Italy the Communists are sitting pretty. Their demands must be given attention by the government, they can claim credit for popular measures, but nobody can blame them for unpopular actions.

Fairplain Man Gets Motivation To Be Worker

BY SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A Berrien Circuit court judge this week gave a Fairplain man motivation for a "crash course" in job hunting — if the man isn't employed by next Monday he'll spend a year in jail. James Cleary, of Napier avenue, was taken before Judge Julian Hughes for $1,000 arrears for three children on ADC after making only one support payment since October, 1975.

Hughes did not sentence Cleary, but told him if he isn't employed by next Monday he will be held in contempt of court and sentenced to one year in the county jail.

In other cases before Hughes, Edward Pastrick, special investigator for the Berrien friend of the court's office, reported four men were held in contempt and each was placed on three years probation. They were:

Jessie Fester, of 446 North Crystal avenue, Benton township, got 30 days in jail for $2,258 arrears for one child on ADC and was told to find employment within 30 days of his release or he is to be brought back to court. Pastrick said Fester has not made a payment since October, 1972.

James Blue, of 121 Fredrick, Benton township, got the same sentence for $5,773 arrears for six children on ADC. Blue was also ordered to sign a wage assignment if he does find work of $42 weekly support and $5 each week on the arrearage.

Delbert Beshires, of 1284 Maynard, Benton township, was told to find employment in 30 days or spend 60 days in jail for $2,682 arrears for two children on ADC. Pastrick said Beshires has made only 13 payments since December, 1973.

Harvey Powell, of Paris, Tenn., received 30 days in jail for $7,268 arrears for three children on ADC, and was told to be employed in 30 days or he is to be brought back to court. Pastrick noted Powell has made 12 support payments since the order was entered in April, 1972.

Hagar Township Ambulance Drive Starting Tonight

A door-to-door drive to raise funds for the purchase of a new Hagar township ambulance will be launched tonight by members of the township fire department, according to Lt. Rick Martin of the fire unit.

Martin reported the drive will officially begin at 6 p.m. this evening and continue throughout the entire township Thursday and Friday until 9 p.m. each night.

According to Martin, firemen will be in uniform for easy identification.

The firemen hope to raise $3,000 during the three-day fund drive.

A new ambulance will cost $16,000 to $18,000. Last year, $5,000 was raised by members of the fire department auxiliary.

That money was raised to supplement a request for an $11,000 state grant which was subsequently denied.

The state's rejection of the grant application sparked the renewed efforts to raise funds locally, according to Martin.

The existing 1966 ambulance eventually will need to be replaced, said Martin, when new state requirements go into effect for ambulance operations across the state.

Under the township am-balance operation, fire department personnel operate the service as part of the fire department.

Motorcycle Flips; Rider Injured

SOUTH HAVEN — Claire Shoemaker, 19, Kalamazoo, was listed in fairly good condition today at South Haven Community hospital with injuries suffered yesterday in a motorcycle accident.

State police from South Haven, said Shoemaker lost control of the cycle on gravel at the intersection of Ruggles road and CR-380, South Haven township, at 3:20 p.m.

The driver was ticketed for careless driving, police said.

Paving Top BH Priority For Proposed U.S. Grant

The Benton Harbor city planning commission yesterday informally designated street paving as the top priority in seeking a proposed federal grant.

The selection is the city's first step in applying for a federal grant under the public works employment act recently passed by the U.S. Senate. Appropriations for the bill, projected at $2 billion, have not yet been approved.

Street paving projects identified by planning commissioners were an extension of Riverview drive north to connect with Klock road and an extension of Klock road east to connect with Waukonda avenue.

Lynn Meyer, city planning director, said the overall plan in the proposed building of the extensions is to eventually provide a direct route from US-33 and Riverview drive to M-139. M-139 currently does not run into Waukonda.

City Manager James Peeples, Jr., said the city commission will also make a recommendation on what project to apply for under the grant.

Present at the planning commission meeting yesterday were Chairman Ed Troffer, John Howard, Dr. Thomas Woodford, Mayor Joel Patterson, and Peeples. Absent was Rev. Rodney Gully.

Gas Mileage Bill Defeated

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation to levy a minimum gasoline mileage requirement on all state-owned passenger cars has been blocked again in the California Legislature, but the author says he'll try again. The bill would have required a fleet-weighted average of 20 miles a gallon in 1977, 22 in 1978, and thereafter a figure — not lower than 22 — set by the director of general services. It received a 64 vote in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, five too few for passage.

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 18, the 231st day of 1976. There are 135 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1587, Virginia Dare was born at Roanoke Island, N.C. She was the first child born in America of English parents.
On this date:
In 1708, British forces captured the Mediterranean island of Sardinia.
In 1870, Western Australia was granted representative government.
In 1914, President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed American neutrality in World War I.
In 1943, President Franklin Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill held a wartime conference in Quebec, Canada.
In 1954, Assistant Secretary of Labor James Wilms became the first black man to attend a meeting of the U.S. Cabinet.

In 1963, James Meredith became the first black to graduate from the University of Mississippi.
Ten years ago: An American spacecraft in orbit around the moon sent back the first pictures of the lunar surface.
Five years ago: A U.S. Army transport helicopter exploded in a flight in West Germany and crashed in flames, killing all 37 servicemen aboard.
One year ago: Maritime unions of the AFL-CIO called a boycott against U.S. grain shipments to the Soviet Union, demanding government action to guard against rising food prices as a result of grain sales.
Today's birthdays: Actress Shelley Winters is 53. Former Secretary of the Interior Walter Hickel is 57.

Paul Lynde-Buddy Hackett Feud Truly 'Much Ado About Nothing'

Q: What's this feud between Paul Lynde and Buddy Hackett? — T.W., Akron, Ohio
A: Hackett apparently charged that Lynde's show-stopping one-liners on TV's "Hollywood Squares" are carefully rehearsed. Paul responded by calling Hackett crude and vulgar. Well, "Hollywood Squares" admits, on its printed disclaimer, that the stars get prior hints on question topics. On the other hand, Hackett's material is not exactly Mary Poppins. So you're both right, fellows. What's the beef?

Q: What happens to those one-liner stars of early TV who are no longer on the tube? — J.D., Wichita, Kan.

A: Some are in comfortable retirement but a surprising number still haunt the network corridors trying to peddle program ideas that will resurrect their careers. ABC proxy Freddie Silverman is reported to have worked out a tactical way to let the hus-bens down gently. He tells them their ideas are just great but too far ahead of the times to be currently usable. The old-timers go away without a sale but with their egos glowing.

Q: I read that Kim Novak was lured back to make a movie with Charles Bronson called "The White Buffalo."

Was that pretty rough — she being rusty and Bronson being as tough as he is? — E.J., Raleigh, N.C.

A: Kim was nervous and out of practice but Bronson wasn't tough at all. What he did was pretend to bluff his own lines and act inept until Kim got her confidence back. Bronson is not the tough customer he appears to be on the screen.

Q: One final Elizabeth Ray question. Don't you think that it was an incredible coincidence that her book came out so soon after the scandal with Wayne Mays hit the front pages? — O.B., Alexandria, Va.

A: Elizabeth Ray is not a dumb lady. During the 18 months she was working with her ghost writer Yvonne Dunleavy, who did the Fagne Foxe book, she learned all about book promotion. Ray knew what kind of news would do her the most good and when to spill it.

Q: Is it true that Gore Vidal bribed away his inheritance and that he's quite poor since his books don't make big money? — M.L., N.Y., N.Y.

A: Totally untrue. Gore made about $300,000 last year from his writing. Besides that, he took most of his money out of the U.S. five or six years ago and put it in Swiss banks. We'd say he's a millionaire.

Q: For me, the star of the Olympics in Montreal was England's Prince Andrew. Why don't we read more about this divine looking young man? — T.K., Santa Barbara, Calif.

A: Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip's second son may be the star of Britain's royal family too. The 16 year old, who has been described as a cross between Paul Newman and Robert Redford, is also a fine athlete like his older brother and sister. You don't read much about him because his parents have made a concerted effort to keep him out of the public eye. But now that the world's teenagers have discovered him, he won't stay hidden much longer.

Q: You mentioned that interview that David Frost is going to have with former President Richard Nixon. How much is Frost paying Nixon? — L.T., Wilmington, Del.

A: Frost has kept that info pretty close, to his vest. However we hear that he paid no money up front but that Nixon agreed to take a 50-50 split on all profits from the sale of the TV interview.

U.S. Delays Michigan Power Rate Hike Bid For Dowagiac

DOWAGIAC — City Manager Henry Graper, Jr., said he has been advised that the federal Power commission has delayed a pending rate increase sought by Michigan Power Co. for 60 days.

According to Graper, the delay will result in an estimated $110,000 savings for individual customers, based on preliminary figures.

The electric firm sells wholesale power to the city for resale to individual customers. The firm has asked the commission for approval of a 108 per cent boost in the wholesale rate. It was to have gone into effect last night. The delay was ordered by the commission after a Washington, D.C., law firm hired by the city asked for the delay until Oct. 12, Graper said.

A final hearing on the rate increase request will be held by the commission Jan. 26, the city manager said.

Between Oct. 12 and Jan. 26, he said, the city will have to pass along to its customers in the form of a surcharge the amount the city needs to offset the rate increase being sought by Michigan Power.

The amount of the surcharge to be needed will be computed by the city's engineering firm between now and Oct. 12.

Any increases paid to the firm during the surcharge phase, but not granted ultimately by the commission will be refunded by the electric company along with eight per cent interest, Graper added.

Paul Lynde-Buddy Hackett Feud Truly 'Much Ado About Nothing'

Q: What's this feud between Paul Lynde and Buddy Hackett? — T.W., Akron, Ohio

A: Hackett apparently charged that Lynde's show-stopping one-liners on TV's "Hollywood Squares" are carefully rehearsed. Paul responded by calling Hackett crude and vulgar. Well, "Hollywood Squares" admits, on its printed disclaimer, that the stars get prior hints on question topics. On the other hand, Hackett's material is not exactly Mary Poppins. So you're both right, fellows. What's the beef?

Q: What happens to those one-time stars of early TV who are no longer on the tube? — J.D., Wichita, Kan.

A: Some are in comfortable retirement but a surprising number still haunt the network corridors trying to peddle program ideas that will resurrect their careers. ABC prexy Freddie Silverman is reported to have worked out a tactical way to let the has-beens down gently. He tells them their ideas are just great but too far ahead of the times to be currently usable. The old-timers go away without a sale but with their egos glowing.

Q: I read that Kim Novak was lured back to make a movie with Charles Bronson called "The White Buffalo."

Was that pretty rough — she being rusty and Bronson being as tough as he is? — R.J., Raleigh, N.C.

A: Kim was nervous and out of practice but Bronson wasn't tough at all. What he did was pretend to miff his own lines and act inept until Kim got her confidence back. Bronson is not

Q: Is it true that Gore Vidal frittered away his inheritance and that he's quite poor since his books don't make big money? — M.L., N.Y., N.Y.

A: Totally untrue. Gore made about $800,000 last year from his writing. Besides that, he took most of his money out of the U.S. five or six years ago and put it in Swiss banks. We'd say he's a millionaire.

Q: For me, the star of the Olympics in Montreal was England's Prince Andrew. Why don't we read more about this divine looking young man? — T.K., Santa Barbara, Calif.

A: Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip's second son may be the star of Britain's royal family too. The 16 year old, who has been described as a cross between Paul Newman and Robert Redford, is also a fine athlete like his older brother and sister. You don't read much about him because his parents have made a concerted effort to keep him out of the public eye. But now that the world's teenagers have discovered him, he won't stay hidden much longer.

Q: You mentioned that interview that David Frost is going to have with former President Richard Nixon. How much is Frost paying Nixon? — L.T., Wilmington, Del.

A: Frost has kept that info

the tough customer he appears to be on the screen.

Q: One final Elizabeth Ray question. Don't you think that it was an incredible coincidence that her book came out so soon after the scandal with Wayne Hays hit the front pages? — O.B., Alexandria, Va.

A: Elizabeth Ray is not a dumb lady. During the 18 months she was working with her ghost writer Yvonne Dunleavy, who did the Fanne Foxe book, she learned all about book promotion. Ray knew what kind of news would do her the most good and when to spill it.

U.S. Delays Michigan Power Rate Hike Bid For Dowagiac

DOWAGIAC — City Manager Henry Graper, Jr., said he has been advised that the federal Power commission has delayed a pending rate increase sought by Michigan Power Co. for 60 days.

According to Graper, the delay will result in an estimated $110,000 savings for individual customers, based on preliminary figures.

The electric firm sells wholesale power to the city for resale to individual customers. The firm has asked the commission for approval of a 108 per cent boost in the wholesale rate. It was to have gone into effect last night. The delay was ordered by the commission after a Washington, D.C., law firm hired by the city asked for the delay until Oct. 12, Graper said.

A final hearing on the rate increase request will be held by the commission Jan. 26, the city manager said.

Between Oct. 12 and Jan. 26, he said, the city will have to pass along to its customers in the form of a surcharge the amount the city needs to offset the rate increase being sought by Michigan Power.

The amount of the surcharge to be needed will be computed by the city's engineering firm between now and Oct. 12.

Any increases paid to the firm during the surcharge phase, but not granted ultimately by the commission will be refunded by the electric company along with eight per cent interest, Graper added.

Michigan Loaded With Talent Again

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Bo Schembechler's biggest concern isn't his heart, it's his middle guard and a little depth here and there.

The University of Michigan football coach underwent 6½-hour open heart surgery several months ago and he says he feels fine. He's not worried about his ticker any more.

Right now he's worried about finding a top-notch middle guard who can follow in the footsteps of other outstanding players the Wolverines have had at the position in recent years, like Henry Hill and Tim Davis.

Beyond that, Schembechler's coaching problems would seem laughable to the Big Ten's traditional doormat teams.

"We still have to find a couple backup defensive tackles," he said in a recent interview. "...Offensively our biggest concern is depth behind Ricky Leach at quarterback. And I'd like to get a wide receiver with great speed."

In other words, once again the Wolverines are loaded with talent. It would be safe to say they are bound to be on most forecasters lists as the No. 1 challenger to Ohio State once again for the conference crown — if not the favorite over the Buckeyes.

"Until proven otherwise, you have to go that route," Schembechler said. "But I think you'll see strong challenges from Michigan State, Minnesota, Purdue and Illinois."

Schembechler enters the 1976 season with the best regular season record of any active coach in college football: 66-6-3. His 1975 team was in its usual battle for the title last year with Ohio State before losing to the Buckeyes in the regular season finale, 21-14. It gave Michigan a 7-1 conference record.

While Ohio State went to the Rose Bowl for the fourth straight year, Michigan became the first Big Ten team to go to the Orange Bowl. The Maize and Blue lost to national champion Oklahoma, 14-6.

Leading the Wolverines this season are wingback Jim Smith, fullback-tailback Rob Lytle, defensive tackle Bo Morton, linebacker Calvin O'Neal and guard Kirk Lewis. All are bonafide All-American candidates, Schembechler said.

Left-handed quarterback Leach started as a freshman last year and should be much improved. Another sophomore-to-be, tailback Harlan Huckleby, is a speedster who showed flashes of brilliance in limited duty last season. He'll probably start if Lytle plays fullback.

Freshman John Wangler of Royal Oak, Mich., could become Leach's backup, while another freshman prospect who could see plenty of action is tailback Roosevelt Smith.

The only major position switch is of guard Walt Downing to center.

Regulars or near-regulars are back at just about every position and the Wolverines could be ready to dump Ohio State's Rose Bowl dominance.

Russian Diver Decides To Go Back Home

MONTREAL (AP) — Three weeks after his disappearance from the Olympic Village and apparent defection, Russian diver Sergei Nemtsanov has changed his mind and decided to return to his country after expressing concern for his grandmother in the Soviet Union.

An official at the Soviet consulate here said Tuesday that Nemtsanov was in the building but said he was "very tired and won't be in a position to make any comments."

The official would not say when the 17-year-old diver would return to the Soviet Union, but the next scheduled Aeroflot flight to Moscow from Montreal is on Thursday.

Although Nemtsanov made no public comments himself, two lawyers who acted for him said in a statement Tuesday that he had expressed concern in recent days about the grandmother who brought him up, and "accordingly wanted him to return."

Meanwhile, immigration department representative Eva Ludvig said Canadian officials had not tried to change Nemtsanov's decision.

"It was his choice to come here and his choice to go back," she said. "We had to respect his decision."

Another immigration department spokesman said that Nemtsanov had announced his decision to return home in a meeting with department officials Monday. But the youngster had said he wanted to "sleep on it" before meeting with Soviet authorities, the official said.

Nemtsanov met again with the immigration officials Tuesday afternoon and confirmed that he wanted to go home.

The officials, along with an interpreter and Toronto resident John Fleming — with whom the youth was staying while in Canada — then went to the coffee shop of a downtown hotel with Nemtsanov to meet with Soviet officials.

After talking for 15 minutes, he left with the officials from the Soviet consulate in Montreal.

This followed his stay with a young Toronto couple who cared for him for an unknown period of time after he left the Olympic Village July 29. Diver Skip Phoenix and his wife Mary initially went into hiding in the Montreal area with Nemtsanov, whom they had met at international competitions.

Kimm's Homer Hands Fidrych 14th Win 'Bird Catcher' Tiger Star

DETROIT (AP) — If it wasn't for Mark Fidrych, Bruce Kimm probably wouldn't be playing so much.

But there are some who contend if Kimm wasn't catching for fellow rookie Fidrych, "The Bird" wouldn't be winning so much.

Tuesday night, though, it wasn't Kimm's receiving ability that helped Fidrych to his 14th victory. It was his bat.

Ex-Angel property Kimm, the No. 9 batter in the lineup, slammed native Detroit Frank Tanana's first pitch in the eighth inning into the upper deck in left field for the first home run of his career. It gave the Detroit Tigers a 3-2 victory over the California Angels.

"There wasn't any doubt about it," Tiger Manager Ralph Houk said of the homer. "He hit the heck out of it."

It was a stunning climax to what is becoming a tradition when Fidrych pitches — a tight game, an exciting ending and resultant pandemonium from the inevitable huge crowd.

This time the crowd was 51,822 — largest of the year at Tiger Stadium, largest for a home night game in six years and largest day or night crowd in more than three years.

In his last 10 starts, home and away, Fidrych has drawn 478,389 spectators — an average of 43,317.

A pinch hit by Willie Horton in the ninth inning a week ago gave Fidrych a 4-3 victory over Texas in his previous start. There have been similar tight-game triumphs, usually involving pitching duels.

Tuesday's attraction was a natural draw: "The Bird" against Tanana, who went into the game leading the American League in complete games with 18 and second in strikeouts with 177.

There's another drawing card for tonight's game — fireballing Angel Nolan Ryan (9-15), who leads the league with 216 strikeouts. He's scheduled to pitch the "Navy Night" game against Vern Riffe (7-9).

Fidrych wound up with his 19th complete game in 19 starts and raised his record to 14-4. Tanana completed his 19th game in 25 starts but fell to 1-9.

"Two pitchers were out there who are having good years," southpaw Tanana said. "It's good to see that many people out at the park."

Then he turned his back and said, "I don't mean to be uncooperative, but I'm not in too good a mood now."

Kimm was sure in a good mood, though. Rounding the bases after his homer he looked like Neil Armstrong or Buzz Aldrin "moonwalking." His arms were raised in triumph and he leaped on the bases as if trying to stomp out a fire.

"I'm always excited when I do something great," he said. "I don't do something great very often. I'm just happy it came off a great pitcher and for Fidrych, who has gotten me in so many games."

Kimm has caught all Fidrych's starts — just under half the total number of games he's played. He shares the catching with Bill Freehan and John Wockenfuss.

What does Kimm mean to Fidrych's success?

"Just look at my record," The Bird said. But, he added, "he's my catcher just like Bill Freehan and John Wockenfuss. I have confidence in all of them."

Kimm walked his first two times up. The second began a two-run rally in the sixth that brought Detroit from a 2-0 deficit.

"I was looking for a fastball right down the middle of the plate because I had been taking a lot of pitches," Kimm said of Tanana's gopher ball in the eighth.

It was, in fact, a fastball, Tanana admitted. But it was only "half fast," he said.

Houk said he wasn't about to use a pinch hitter for Kimm, who was acquired by the Tigers from the Angel organization in March, 1973.

"He's good at leading off and getting on base," Houk said. "I didn't want to bring in another catcher for Fidrych in the ninth."

Angel Manager Norm Sherry moaned: "It was a good game, but the wrong team won."

"You don't count on a No. 9 hitter to give Frank trouble like that, but he did," Sherry said. "His second walk might have really been the difference. If he hadn't of walked they probably wouldn't have gotten those two runs in the sixth."

Kimm's walk came with one out and Ron LeFlore followed with a triple. LeFlore came home on a sacrifice fly by Alex Johnson.

California had taken a 1-0 lead with Ron Jackson's two-out homer in the fifth. The Angels added a run in the sixth when Dave Collins opened with a single, took second on Jerry Remy's sacrifice, third on a wild pitch and scored on a sacrifice fly by Bruce Bochte.

Remy opened the ninth with an infield single, took second on a ground out and third when first baseman Jason Thompson took his foot off the bag too soon on a throw from second baseman Pedro Garcia. But third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez threw out ex-Tiger Terry Humphrey to end the game.

California had taken a 1-0 lead with Ron Jackson's two-out homer in the fifth. The Angels added a run in the sixth when Dave Collins opened with a single, took second on Jerry Remy's sacrifice, third on a wild pitch and scored on a sacrifice fly by Bruce Bochte.

Remy opened the ninth with an infield single, took second on a ground out and third when first baseman Jason Thompson took his foot off the bag too soon on a throw from second baseman Pedro Garcia. But third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez threw out ex-Tiger Terry Humphrey to end the game.

Reds Drop Fourth Straight Contest

Chicago Bombed By Houston

From Associated Press
Sparky Anderson stays stoic and silent through losing streaks, so if you want to get the word from the Cincinnati Reds, you have to ask Pete Rose.

"We're not taking the game to them," says the Cincinnati third baseman in his usual direct observation. "This is not like the Big Red Machine."

The "Machine" hasn't been hitting on all four cylinders lately, and Tuesday night, the National League West leaders dropped their fourth straight game — a 3-2 decision to the Atlanta Braves. That's the longest losing streak of the year for Anderson's gang.

Anderson put it this way: "It doesn't mean anything more than if we had a 13-1 record. We're just not hitting — and that happens."

In the other National League games, Philadelphia whipped Montreal 11-3; Los Angeles trimmed the New York Mets 4-3; St. Louis routed San Diego 9-4; Houston turned back the Chicago Cubs 8-1 and San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 7-6.

Pinch-hitter Tom Paciorek's two-out, run-scoring single in the eighth inning led the way for Atlanta. Jerry Royster drew a one-out walk from Manny Sarmiento to start the rally, then stole second off reliever Will McEnaney. Royster went to third on Rowland Office's groundout and scored on Paciorek's single.

Adrian Devine, 2-3, got the victory, bailing the Braves out of a bases-loaded jam in the seventh. Sarmiento, 2-1, the Reds' 20-year-old reliever, took the loss.

Jay Johnstone ripped a double and three singles and batted in five runs while Greg Luzinski collected a homer and four RBI as Philadelphia battered Montreal. Winner Tommy Underwood, 8-3, allowed just four hits, striking out five and walking four.

Rick Rhoden doubled home the decisive run to cap a four-run Los Angeles rally in the fourth inning and the Dodger right-hander went on to post his 11th victory in 12 decisions by beating New York. The Mets took a 3-0 lead in the first on John Milner's 13th homer with two men on.

Hector Cruz drove in four runs with a grounder and bases-loaded double, while Lou Brock stole three bases and scored three runs to lead St. Louis over San Diego in a game featuring 19 walks.

J.R. Richard fired a five-hitter and Roger Metzger drove home a pair of runs with the fourth-inning single as the Houston Astros defeated the Cubs and ended a five-game losing streak.

Richard, 14-12, struck out nine and walked only one, giving up the only Chicago run of the night on Rick Monday's homer in the ninth. Chicago starter Steve Stone, 3-5, took the loss.

A walk to Bob Watson and Jose Cruz' double put Astros runners in scoring position with nobody out in the fourth. After Leon Roberts flied out, Cliff Johnson was intentionally walked preceding Metzger's two-run single to left, scoring Watson and Cruz.

Houston added a run in the fifth on a walk to Cesar Cedeno, a stolen base and Cruz' RBI single.

Enos Cabell's two-run triple and Cedeno's run-scoring single accounted for three Houston runs in the sixth and the Astros added two more runs in the eighth.

inning single as Houston defeated Chicago and ended a five-game losing streak. Richard, 14-12, struck out nine and walked only one, giving up the only Chicago run of the night on Rick Monday's homer in the ninth.

Gary Thomasson's two-out solo homer in the bottom of the eighth inning broke a 6-6 tie and powered San Francisco over Pittsburgh. Just prior to Thomasson's blast, the Giants had tied the game when Steve Ontiveros doubled and scored on shortstop Frank Taveras' wild relay throw into the Pirates' dugout.

Kelly Sparks Chicago Win In Opener

White Sox, Red Sox Split

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Montgomery drove in five runs with a three-run homer and a two-run double to lead the Boston Red Sox to an 11-7 victory over the Chicago White Sox and a split of Tuesday's two-night doubleheader.

The White Sox won the opener 2-1 as Pat Kelly singled home one run and then doubled in the ninth and scored on the winning run on a single by Bill Stein. That enabled Chicago to snap a four-game losing streak.

Montgomery, Boston's second-string catcher who had only five RBI going into the game, hit his second home run of the season in the second inning after Cecil Cooper and Dwight Evans beat out bunt singles off loser John "Blue Moon" Odom, 2-2.

Montgomery's two-run double featured a five-run fifth inning which clinched the game. Denny Doyle had a two-run double for the Red Sox in the fourth. Rick Burleson had seven hits in 10 times at bat for the Red Sox in the double header, three in the first game and four in the nightcap.

Despite the robust Red Sox attack in the second game, rookie Rick Kreuger was unable to last long enough to gain a victory in his first major league start. Kreuger was kayoed in the fourth after yielding three runs on five hits and six walks. Dick Pole, 5-5, earned the victory.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Detroit Tigers edged the California Angels 3-2. Kansas City edged Cleveland 4-3 on George Brett's steal of home in the 10th inning. Oakland nipped Milwaukee 5-4, the New York Yankees shaded Texas 2-1, Baltimore trounced Minnesota 10-3 and Boston split a doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox, losing the opener 2-1 and winning the nightcap 11-7.

Brett stole home with two out in the bottom of the 10th. He singled with one out, stole second and continued to third on a wild throw by catcher Rick Cerone. With Dave Nelson at bat, Brett broke for the plate and was two-thirds of the way home before reliever Dave LaRoche noticed him and he slid safely under the pitch.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Royals and enabled them to remain eight games ahead of second-place Oakland in the AL West.

Trailing 4-3, Phil Garner walked with one out in the seventh, stole second and scored on Bill North's single. North took second on the throw to the plate and came home with the winning on a single by Bert Campaneris.

Graig Nettles slammed his 19th home run of the season on rookie Tommy Boggs' first

Prestine Hurls Stroh's To Title

Michigan Bell Captures Class C Crown

Bob Prestine pitched a two-hitter Tuesday night as Stroh's topped Plangger's No. 2 team 6-1 to win the Class B district fast pitch softball championship at Plangger's Park.

Prestine struck out one and walked three as Stroh's upped its record to 21-8. It marked the second straight win by Stroh's over Plangger's. Stroh's had forced the extra championship game by nipping Plangger's 1-0 Monday.

Rich Robards took the loss for Plangger's, yielding eight hits, striking out five and walking three.

Mike Brown gave Prestine all the runs he needed in the first inning with a two-run single.

Ray Brooks' bases loaded triple in the sixth broke the game open.

Plangger's, which entered the game with a .302 team batting average, could muster just singled by John Pomeroy in the first and Steve Knuth in the sixth.

Frank Zavitz had a pair of doubles for the winners.

Michigan Bell nipped Clark's 3-2 for the Class C title.

Frenchy Roush hurled a four-hitter for the win. Jerry Rholff took the loss.

Michigan Bell clinched the win in the sixth. With the score tied at 2-2, Dan Griffiths, who collected three hits, doubled. Griffiths went to third on a groundout and then scored on a wild throw to third.

Millburg Takes Crown

NILES — Millburg Speedway let everyone know that it was tops in the class D women's fastpitch district here.

Millburg won the 'D' title by destroying Pawating 48-0 in a five-inning laughter at Plym Park Tuesday night.

In the only other game played, C and S topped Canady's 16-5 to move into the championship game against IMW of class C tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Winning pitcher Barb Mileski gave up just three hits in the game and added six hits to Millburg's attack. Roberta Salay had seven hits in the game, including three home runs in the second inning. Karen Letz also had seven hits and three homers in the game and Sue Johnson added five hits.

Tammy Jensen had four hits for C and S as Joan Aalfs got the win. Aalfs, Terri Wolford and Patty Couchman each smacked three hits for the winners.

NO SALE: Home plate umpire Marty Springstead isn't buying New York Yankees' Thurman Munson's argument that the ball did not strike his bat during Tuesday night's game in Yankee Stadium with the Texas Rangers. Springstead ruled the ball had foul tipped Munson's bat. Yankees won 2-1. (AP Wirephoto)

Bohannon Named

BUCHANAN — Jon Bohannon has a tough act to follow at Buchanan.

The former Clare high school basketball coach was named to the same post at Buchanan today, succeeding Bill Wilson. Bohannon will have a tough time topping Wilson's act last year. The Bucks finished with a perfect 28-0 record, won the Class C state championship and Wilson was picked Class C coach of the year by the Associated Press.

But he's up to the challenge. "I don't want to be compared to Bill Wilson," Bohannon said. "I know that every game from here on in is going to make or break the streak, but I love the challenge."

"I don't plan to make any big changes in what Buchanan has been doing. I understand that they like to run and use man-to-man full court pressure and that's what I've always done."

"I'm going to do the best job I can. I plan to put in a lot of hours and try to learn about the kids I will have. I work with the idea that attitude is what makes a winner. What will make or break us is how well I develop harmony between the coaches and the players."

Bohannon attended Three Oaks high school and was the school's entry for the Berrien County Athlete of the Year award in 1958.

Now 36, Bohannon has coached for 12 years, including five as a head coach. He posted a 17-17 record at Bryon in two years there. Bohannon has coached the past three years at Clare, copping a deceiving 30-36 mark. At Clare he took over a program which had not had a winning season in more than 20 years, including a state record 56-game losing streak in the late 50s.

During Bohannon's first year at Clare he posted just a 5-16 record, but followed that with a 15-9 mark in 1974-75, best in school history. That first year was sparked by a $100,000 law suit brought against Bohannon by one of his players, Dan Iacco.

"The season was frustrating for the players," Bohannon said. "They kept coming close but still lost. The last practice before tournaments, Iacco did some things that I didn't condone so I suspended him for a game. For suspending him, he sued me for $100,000."

An appellate court judge ruled in Bohannon's favor the same day that Wilson resigned the post at Buchanan. Bohannon called it fate. Buchanan is hoping it turns out that way.

Bertuca Takes Tourney Again

Winning the Bay County Northwest Little League Invitational is becoming a habit for the Bertuca Bonding team of St. Joseph.

Bertuca captured its third straight bloopersball tournament championship last weekend at Bay City by beating Village Inn 22-14 in the title game.

Bertuca, which outscored its foes 117-39 in posting seven straight wins in this year's affair, now has a 20-0 record in invitational action over three years. The Invitational is one of the largest 16-inch softball tournaments in the state with 40 teams entered from all over Michigan.

Jim Duscha of Bertuca also walked away with top honors as he was voted the Most Valuable Player of the tournament by the umpires. Duscha batted .654 with 10 homers.

Bertuca got off to a "smashing" start as it ripped 15 homers in creaming O'Hara's 31-1 in the first weekend of action. Duscha, Roy Armes and Tony Pastrick all socked three homers in the five-inning game.

Bertuca won the its second game 16-6 in six frames over Saint Hintz with Duscha and Jim Kesterke each getting two homers.

In the second weekend of play Bertuca started off with a 12-0 (five innings) win over Pullman Bar. Duscha then swatted three homers as Bertuca downed Frankenmuth 7-1 in the regulation seven innings. Ron Lange powered two round-trippers as the locals socked Whitey's Wheel 13-3 (six innings).

Bertuca Takes Tourney Again

Winning the Bay County Northwest Little League Invitational is becoming a habit for the Bertuca Bonding team of St. Joseph.

Bertuca captured its third straight bloopersball tournament championship last weekend at Bay City by beating Village Inn 22-14 in the title game.

Bertuca, which outscored its foes 117-39 in posting seven straight wins in this year's affair, now has a 20-0 record in invitational action over three years. The Invitational is one of the largest 16-inch softball tournaments in the state with 40 teams entered from all over Michigan.

Jim Duscha of Bertuca also walked away with top honors as he was voted the Most Valuable Player of the tournament by the umpires. Duscha batted .654 with 10 homers.

Bertuca got off to a "smashing" start as it ripped 15 homers in creaming O'Hara's 31-1 in the first weekend of action. Duscha, Roy Armes and Tony Pastrick all socked three homers in the five-inning game.

Bertuca won the its second game 16-6 in six frames over Saint Hintz with Duscha and Jim Kesterke each getting two homers.

In the second weekend of play Bertuca started off with a 12-0 (five innings) win over Pullman Bar. Duscha then swatted three homers as Bertuca downed Frankenmuth 7-1 in the regulation seven innings. Ron Lange powered two round-trippers as the locals socked Whitey's Wheel 13-3 (six innings).

Acc For Landeck

Bob Landeck of Benton Harbor shot a hole-in-one Monday at the Lake Michigan Golf Hills course. He used a No. 8 iron to record his ace on the 127-yard No. 3 hole. His playing partners were Ted Hamilton, Fred Bailey and Howard Brown.

Bertuca then edged Village Inn 16-14 in a game between the two lone unbeaten teams left. Marty Scherr clubbed three home runs and Armes two. Bertuca again tripped Village Inn in the title game 22-14 with Armes getting three homers and Lange two.

Rick Bloodworth had the high batting average at .714 but didn't play in all the games. Armes ended at .613 and 11 homers as Bertuca finished with 54 home runs. Zeke Zebell pitched all the wins.

Bertuca, which has a sparkling 58-15 overall mark, will seek more success when it goes to the nationals at Sioux Falls, S.D., on Labor Day weekend.

Bertuca is also hosting a 24-team tournament Aug. 27, 28 and 29 at Plangger's Park. Any teams interested in entering should contact Ted Bertuca at 983-4364 or Zeke Zebell at 925-7303.

Some NFL Teams Packing People In For Exhibition Games

From Associated Press
"It seems the National Football League preseason attendance is way, way down," someone in Buffalo said recently as he observed about 31,000 fans in 80,200-seat Rich Stadium for the Bills' exhibition game against New Orleans.

If he'd been in Washington last weekend, he'd have thought otherwise. The Redskins, who averaged about 22,000 for their exhibitions, drew better than 40,000 for their game, a loss to Pittsburgh.
If he'd been in Chicago to see the Bears beat Baltimore, he'd have been in the company of 54,398 fans. Last year the Bears' top preseason crowd was 42,503. If he'd been in Dallas, he'd have been one of 54,567 fans — about 10,000 more than last year — who saw the Cowboys lose to Denver.

Or maybe if he'd seen O.J.

Simpson on the field with the rest of the Bills, he'd have seen a lot more people in the stands, too. They were there last year, better than 51,000 a game — but then, so was O.J.
With three of the six preseason weekends completed, attendance is, in fact, down a bit at NFL exhibitions — an average of about 30,500 this year compared to last year's six-week average of 42,000.

But to leave it at that is misleading.
As the regular season gets closer, attendance rises. Fans stay away from the early exhibitions on the theory they'll be seeing a plethora of rookies and free agents doomed to be cut from the squad. They attend the later games, when the lineups are more likely to have most of the season's starters in them.

The exhibitions started earlier this year. That meant it was hotter in some cities. Football came out second-best to a day at the beach or in the park. It is, after all, a winter sport. Or it's supposed to be.

And, of course, some ticket prices have gone up a buck or two.

BENGAL BALDIES: Three members of the Cincinnati Bengals show off their shaved heads by striking the "bear, see, and speak no evil" pose. From top to bottom: Bo Harris, Ron Pritchard, and rookie Reggie Williams. "We did it to develop unity among the linebackers," said Pritchard. Shearer Jim LeClair said that Harris' hair was hardest to cut. "The clippers broke halfway through," LeClair said. (AP Wirephoto)

Spokesman Explains TV Switch

NEW YORK — (AP) — An ABC spokesman says no promotion or demotion was involved in the shuffling of broadcast teams for Monday night's baseball telecasts.

The trio of Bob Prince, Warner Wolf and Bob Uecker had been highly promoted as ABC's main baseball, broadcasting team. Monday night, Al Michaels joined Wolf and Uecker for the Baltimore at Minnesota game. Meanwhile, Prince was teamed with Bob Gibson and Norm Cash for the Texas at New York game.

The ABC spokesman said Tuesday the move was made because the network would be broadcasting three regional games next Monday and Boone Arledge, head of ABC sports, wanted to test the chemistry.

"It was just experimentation," the spokesman said. "We wanted to find out which two guys would work well with each other. There was no promotion or demotion involved at all."

The spokesman said he did not know what pairings would be for Monday's lineup of games: Philadelphia at Atlanta, Cincinnati at St. Louis and Oakland at Baltimore. He also did not know what combinations would be used when Monday night baseball returns to its two-game format the following week.

Wolf said after Monday night's broadcast he did not know why the change had been made.

"We just found out about the change last week," Wolf said. "I had no problems with Bob (Prince). None at all. Al Michaels is a real professional, a good play-by-play man. I thought everything went well the first time."

Mackin Aces Again

J.D. Mackin Jr. of St. Joseph recently recorded his second hole-in-one in as many years at Berrien Hills country club.

This year he got his ace on the par-3, 165-yard No. 13 hole using a No. 2 iron. The ace was witnessed by Ed Tiscornia, Atty. Michael Cook and David Thomas. Last year Mackin aced No. 13, another par-3 hole.

Ace At Hills For Bill Kulich

Bill Kulich gave his son, Steve, a little golf lesson Saturday.

Steve Kulich is the golf pro at Lake Michigan Hills but his father took the limelight there as he aced the par-3, 127-yard third hole, using a sand iron.

Witnessing the ace were his wife, LaVerne and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Delisle.

NFL Deciding Roster Limits Today

NEW YORK (AP) — With kicking and running specialists holding their breaths at training centers across the United States today, executives of the 28 National Football League teams met to decide the roster limits for this season — limits which may decide as many as 306 jobs.

NFL bylaws provide each team with a roster of 36 players, but that number has been amended each season since the law was written in 1962. Squads reached a high of 47 two years ago, with 43 the limit last season. It will take 21 votes to decide the controversial issue, but if agreement cannot be reached, squad sizes will drop to 36.

So the fringe players and hangers-on await the word that may cement their professional futures. Should rosters revert to 36, it's certain that they would be the first to go; should limits remain at 43, or even be extended to 47, as many as 11 players on each club may sigh in relief.

The coaches, meanwhile, continued to pare their preseason food bills Tuesday. The Cincinnati Bengals waived punter Greg Coleman and defensive tackle Richard Bishop; the Lions cut wide receiver George Farmer and linebacker Andre Roundtree; and Washington Redskins Coach GM George Allen traded three draft choices to Houston for guard Ron Saul. The Miami Dolphins didn't cut anyone, but they did suspend veteran safety Jake Scott — a move which will be investigated by the NFL Players Association.

Scott was suspended after refusing to test an injured shoulder in an exhibition game. Dolphins Coach Don Shula said he had scheduled Scott for action in the second half against the Philadelphia Eagles last weekend, but that the six-year veteran would not go in. Examination by team doctors exposed no shoulder separation, but did reveal a bone spur underneath the armpit. Shula said Scott's personal physician, Dr. Fred Allman, "feels cortisone could be injected if the shoulder is painful and Jake should be able to play without problem."

Scott reportedly said he didn't mind taking the pain killer before a regular season game, but objected to the treatment for an exhibition contest. The early indication was that Scott has the NFLPA's support in this regard. The union's executive director, Ed Garvey, said by phone Tuesday night that "there is a lot of controversy about using cortisone in joints, and I would say most doctors on NFL teams are opposed to it for this reason. We'll have to look pretty seriously at the circumstances."

Sun Devils Eye No. 1

By JIM HATTLEY
Associated Press Writer
TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — "76. A Year to Make History."

That's the prognostication carried on the cover of the 1976 Arizona State University Football Press Guide.

And it's more than wishful thinking as the Sun Devils, ranked No. 2 at the end of 1975, have the credentials and personnel to help them achieve the No. 1 spot and the mythical national championship this year.

Fifteen starters return from the 1975 team, which went 12-0 and capped the season with a 17-14 Fiesta Bowl victory over highly-ranked Nebraska. Of the returning starters, nine are on offense and fill what Arizona State Coach Frank Kush calls the skill positions.

"Potentially, we do have a fine football team," said Kush, who usually is very cautious in his praise for his teams. "I think that our youngsters are enthused about it — the possibility of having an opportunity of being contenders for the national title."

Kush is beginning his 19th season as head coach at Arizona State, and his 151-99-1 record ranks him as the second leading active major college coach in winning percentage.

Kush's teams never have sustained a losing season, but they've had a rough time gaining national recognition until recent years. The Sun Devils' first national acclaim came in 1970, when they beat North Carolina in the Peach Bowl and wound up the year with an 11-0 record and ranked No. 16. They've finished among the top 20 each year since then, except in 1974 when they went 7-5.

But those years with lean national recognition are gone, believes Kush. He notes the Devils are rated anywhere from No. 2 to 10th in preseason forecasts.

"That's fine with me," says the 47-year-old Kush, who was voted Coach of the Year in 1975 by his peers. "I just hope that we end up very high, because I think that's the important part about it."

Last season, it was the Devils' defense that kept the club in the game until the young offense could get things moving. This season, Kush says it will have to be the reverse.

Dennis Sproul, a 6-3, 215-pounder, started the last four games at quarterback in 1975 and appears to have the starting job nailed down this season. However, he'll be getting a lot of pressure from another junior, Fred Mortensen.

The Devils have four premier pass catchers in split end John Jefferson, wingback Larry Mucker and tight ends Bruce Hardy and Kirk Carter.

DETROIT (AP) — If Mark "The Bird" Fidrych isn't the leading candidate for the Cy Young Award as the American League's best pitcher he's sure among the top few candidates.

Detroit's 3-2 victory for him Tuesday night over California put the sensational rookie right-hander's record at 14-4. "I don't think about that," Fidrych said, sounding almost annoyed at the question of whether he felt he was a leading candidate for the Cy Young Award, along with Tuesday's opponent Frank Tanana and Baltimore's Jim Palmer.

"I don't think about myself," Fidrych said. "Ask me that question after the season is over."

California Manager Norm Sherry said there are four pitchers likely to be in the running for the Cy Young Award: Tanana, Fidrych, Palmer and New York's Ed Fingers.

Fidrych said he wanted to dedicate Tuesday's game to Tiger shortstop Tom Veryzer, who married Vivian Wiebalek on Monday.

"I never dedicated a game before," The Bird said.

Fidrych has a 10-2 record at home. Both losses were by 1-0 scores. His major league-leading earned-run-average remains at 1.97. "I've got no goals. I just want to keep it (ERA) as low as I can," The Bird said.

Catcher Bruce Kimm, who won the game with an eighth-inning homer off Tanana, said Fidrych "didn't have a very good slider tonight. But he had a good fastball and it was moving."

The "only real bad mistake" by Fidrych, Kimm said, was a slider which Ron Jackson hit for a homer in the fifth.

Kimm's homer was the first of his big league career. He said he has tried to hit homers before.

The crowd of 51,822 was the largest for a night game at Tiger Stadium since July 1, 1970 — Denny McLain's return from suspension. That crowd was 53,863.

Tuesday's gathering was the most overall since June 17, 1973, when 52,632 showed up to watch Mickey Lolich beat Minnesota.

Planners Search For Early Stand On Penetrator

By MARK BODIN
Staff Writer

St. Joseph township planning commissioners took a trip into history Tuesday night and came back empty handed — at least for the moment. With almost no formal business to conduct during its regularly scheduled monthly meeting, Commission Chairman Ernest Knauf sent his colleagues leafing through the pages of minutes and correspondence which went as far back as Aug. 10, 1955. They were trying to find an official position of the commissioners on the proposed I-44 penetrator across the township to the St. Joseph city limits.

Knauf explained the search was necessary to comply with the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation's request for submission of comments on the recently released environmental impact statement concerning the penetrator construction project. The department has established a 45-day deadline for submission of all comments so its staff can determine the next step.

But not even one word referring to the penetrator was uncovered after nearly 45 minutes of diligent searching by Knauf and five colleagues. However, Knauf and Commissioners June Rollinger and Dave Kempf said they recall the commission adopting at least one resolution expressing opposition to the project.

However, Knauf stated from memory that "the planning commission's feeling was the penetrator as proposed would split the township into two parts, making it hazardous for police and fire protection on an east-west basis. "There was no provision for east-west travel across the penetrator and emergency equipment would be delayed when a matter of minutes counts. The penetrator is going to be a limited access highway. "We definitely took a stand, there isn't any doubt about it."

Knauf said. "However you have to have it in writing, and it's in here somewhere," he added. "We're just going to have to search further."

The commission's only official business dealt with a lot at the intersection of Niles avenue and Lydia drive owned by St. Joseph contractor Ralph Post. Post was informed the commission would probably favor a recommendation to the township board of trustees allowing him a special use for the construction of professional offices.

Minutes of a special meeting held Aug. 10 which were read by Mrs. Rollinger, commission secretary, revealed the commission formally went on record favoring the special use. The offices could be rented to doctors, dentists, lawyers and accountants according to the township's zoning code.

Post has tried to have the lot rezoned twice since November. He has been unsuccessful both times, first with a request to rezone to B-2 commercial for a fabric shop and then to R-5 multiple dwelling for a 20-unit apartment building. The land presently is zoned two-family residential.

In light of previous opposition expressed to the commission by neighboring residents, Post asked the commissioners Tuesday night if their statement was a guarantee to recommend the special use regardless of any further objections.

"I don't know what would happen, but these minutes are saying these members right now would probably recommend approval," Knauf replied. Post said he would attempt to develop the property according to the commission's wishes, but added his only alternative would be to build low cost housing subsidized by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development if he was unsuccessful.

VAN BUREN CIRCUIT COURT Jury Gets Murder Case Today

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — The fate of Edwin Lamar Langston was scheduled to be decided by a Van Buren circuit court jury today.

Langston, 23, South Haven, is charged with murder during the commission of a felony in connection with the shooting death of Mrs. Arretta Lou Inghram, wife of South Haven Councilman Wilbur Inghram. She was slain last Dec. 1 as she attempted to call police during a holdup of the couple's neighborhood grocery store.

Defense Atty. Andrew Burch of Coloma was scheduled to make his closing statement this morning, with Judge Meyer Warshawsky following with his instructions to the jury before sending them out to deliberate. Burch rested the defense's case yesterday without calling a single witness to the stand.

During his summation, Prosecutor Ward S. Hamlin, Jr. claimed that while Langston did not actually shoot Mrs. Inghram, and was not in the store at the time of the robbery, he aided and abetted Ronald Wilson in the crime, and as such is just as guilty in the eyes of the law.

Wilson, 27, Gary, Ind., was convicted by a circuit court jury June 4 on a charge of first-degree murder, and was subsequently sentenced to life imprisonment.

Hamlin charged yesterday that Wilson and Langston drove to the store and that Langston went inside to "case" the job. After Langston returned, Wilson then went inside to rob the store, the prosecutor said. In the meantime, Hamlin maintained, Langston was moving the car to avoid detection.

Hamlin said several statements Langston made to Wilson following the robbery, which were overheard by Mrs. Alta Madry, Wilson's sister, indicated Langston's complicity.

He noted that Mrs. Madry testified that she overheard

Langston tell Wilson to move the car from behind the Madry home before they both "got busted." Hamlin also noted that Mrs. Madry testified that she heard Langston say he planned to "lay low and get out of town", and that he advised Wilson to burn a wallet and papers taken in the robbery.

The prosecutor also claimed there were a number of inconsistencies in a statement Langston made to Det. Sgt. John Karsen of the state police following his arrest. Langston told Karsen he was going to get some milk for his girlfriend at the store, Hamlin said, yet when the woman testified she said there was no such conversation about milk.

Langston also claimed to Karsen that he was afraid of Wilson, yet several times that night Langston went over to see Wilson at the Madry home, the prosecutor said.

Langston also claimed he planned to tell police about the robbery, but did not do so, even when there were officers all over town looking for the holdup man, Hamlin said.

Yesterday's only witness was Karsen, who under cross examination by Burch, said Langston never admitted to him that he participated in the robbery. Karsen also said that Langston told him that when Wilson went into the store he had planned to walk away from the car but did not.

Taylor Names Niles Chairman

Frank Prucci, Niles restaurateur and Niles mayor, has been named Niles area chairman of Judge Ronald J. Taylor's campaign for the new Berrien county Circuit court judgeship.

Prucci, 58, a decorated U.S. bomber gunner during World War II, in accepting the appointment said "During the many years that Judge Taylor has been involved in public life, he has been a vigorous voice for law enforcement as well as a highly experienced lawyer, prosecutor, and judge in all fields of law. During my term as mayor of Niles, Judge Taylor was especially effective in assisting Niles in dealing with very complex problems and in prosecuting the cases arising in this area to the fullest extent of the law.

District Judge Taylor faces Probate Judge Zoe Burkholtz in the November nonpartisan election for a new Circuit court judgeship recently created by the state legislature for Berrien county.

Detroit Mayor Raps German Film

DETROIT (AP) — In a searing letter to the West German Consul General, Detroit Mayor Coleman Young has denounced a German TV documentary about the city as a "classic hatchet job." The 45-minute film raised a storm of controversy when it was shown to a German-American group in Detroit in May, after being aired throughout West Germany a month earlier. The film depicts Detroit as a city largely deserted by the auto industry, the white middle class and business, and now occupied by an army of unemployed, criminals, and empty houses and skyscrapers.

'Witnesses' In African Nation Are Persecuted

Persecution of Jehovah's Witnesses is continuing in the African nation of Malawi, according to Awake magazine of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society.

Fred Swope, of Benton Harbor, who represents three congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses in the Twin City area, said worldwide protests are being mounted by people of many faiths to end the persecution.

Atrocities against Jehovah's Witnesses were reported from the east-central African country as early as 1967 because Jehovah's Witnesses refused to buy political cards of the ruling Malawi Congress party.

Jehovah's Witnesses believe that political affiliation is against their Bible training.

Awake reports they would not object to buying an identification card.

More than 20,000 Witnesses fled Malawi to Mozambique where instead of refuge they found further prosecution, Awake reports.

Swope said people concerned about the situation can file their protests by writing "His Excellency the Life President of Malawi; Ngwazi Dr. H. Kamuzu Banda; Central Government Offices; Private Bag 301; Capital City; Lilongwe 3; Malawi, Central Africa."

Buchanan Apartment Vacancies 'High'

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

BUCHANAN — Vacancies in Buchanan apartments are "considerably higher" than federal standards for a stable housing market, according to a study on the need for more apartments here.

Authorized by the Berrien county planning commission, the study is the latest development in a controversial two-year-old proposal by a Niles developer to build 200 more apartments in the city.

The 12-page document was presented to the Buchanan city planning commission by members of the county planning commission staff last night. It was prepared by Charles Eckenstahler, planning director; Brian Sodi, assistant planning director; and David Houseman, assistant planner.

Estimated vacancy rates for apartments in and near Buchanan was 12 per cent as of June 30, the study said.

"The estimated overall vacancy rate for these units of 12 per cent is clearly in excess of a five per cent standard utilized by HUD (federal department of Housing and Urban Development) as an indication of when a housing type may be in over-supply," the study said.

The study was requested by the city planning commission and approved by the county planning unit in April. City planning unit members' request for the study grew out of a proposal by Niles developer Fred Schaller to expand his West Wind apartment development on West Front street.

With completion of the study, a committee of community leaders can now meet with Schaller to further discuss the proposal, Rev. Keith Morrow, planning commission chairman for the city, said.

Rev. Morrow said the study was requested in order to give the city an objective evaluation of apartment needs in the city before meeting with Schaller.

The study also found that

Buchanan, "currently contains a larger portion of multi-family units in its housing stock than other communities of its size and characteristics in Berrien county."

According to the study, if 200 more apartments were built in Buchanan, the percentage of multi-family dwellings would be 40 per cent in the city. It said the city contains about 2,137 dwellings units now. Over one-third, or 701, are apartments.

Members of the planning commission noted that the 12 per cent vacancy rate included apartments located outside the city and asked if the figure of 701 apartments included 96 units in the Rymearson development located in Buchanan township.

The planning staff agreed to provide a supplement to the report at Rev. Morrow's request listing apartments inside the city and outside of it.

The study also said it had found there were no community standards for evaluating the "desirability of a large scale development," and such standards should be based on a clear sense of community goals and objectives.

If such goals had been established, Eckenstahler added, "...I don't think we'd be sitting here today."

The controversy surrounding Schaller's proposal began in 1974, when he first presented plans for some 15 acres of land for an apartment development.

A request for rezoning the land from single-family residential to multiple-family resident was approved by the city commission in May, 1974, but then overturned in a citywide election in November that same year.

Schaller then constructed 140 units on 7.7 acres of the site already zoned multiple-family and the controversy again surfaced early this year when Schaller again requested that the 15-acre portion be rezoned to allow expansion of his development.

After a stormy public hearing in February, Schaller withdrew the rezoning request on March 8 and requested the meeting with city leaders.

Opponents of the proposal have claimed that no further action should be taken until two years after the 1974 vote, there is no further need for apartments in the city and that additional apartments would strain city services and cause traffic problems.

Those in support of Schaller have claimed there is a need for more apartments in the city, that the vote was not binding, city services could handle the additional apartments and the apartments would add needed property tax revenue.

Ask Your Dentist

By ALFRED E. SEYLER, D.D.S.

Q. I have had pyorrhea for many years. I have had my teeth cleaned occasionally. The dentist I went to last told me I would have to have gum surgery if I want to keep my teeth. Do you think this a good treatment for my trouble?

A. I don't know, since you did not send me any more information than in the above paragraph. But I do believe that gum surgery in itself is not the answer to the problem you evidently have.

Today there are several acceptable methods of treating pyorrhea, more properly called periodontal disease. Gum surgery used to be considered a radical procedure, but nowadays many dentists recommend and perform such treatment. Prophylaxis by the dentist, involving scaling and scraping of the teeth below the gum is satisfactory in some instances, but in more advanced cases, gum surgery is the treatment of choice.

However, both you and your dentist must agree that there is a chance of failure, just as there is hope for a successful result.

There are reasons for your pyorrhea — perhaps your general systemic condition is poor and your nutritional and eating habits have contributed to the problem. You will have to recognize these possibilities and take the necessary steps to correct them.

If you have missing teeth or teeth which because of poor or improper fillings permit food to pack between them, you will have to have such things corrected by bridgework and new, properly shaped fillings.

One causative factor alone seldom produces pyorrhea.

Your dentist will have to consider all the possible reasons, such as tartar, tooth brushing and flossing, missing teeth, nutrition, your biting, chewing and the way your teeth meet, which we call occlusion.

Gum surgery is usually done in steps such as one-quarter of the mouth at each operation. While the procedure itself will probably be painless, since it is done under local anesthetic, the healing period for each area may vary from two weeks to a month or more.

Sedative dressings are usually used for the patient's comfort, but you must understand that your ability to chew food will be limited and that you will be on a restricted diet.

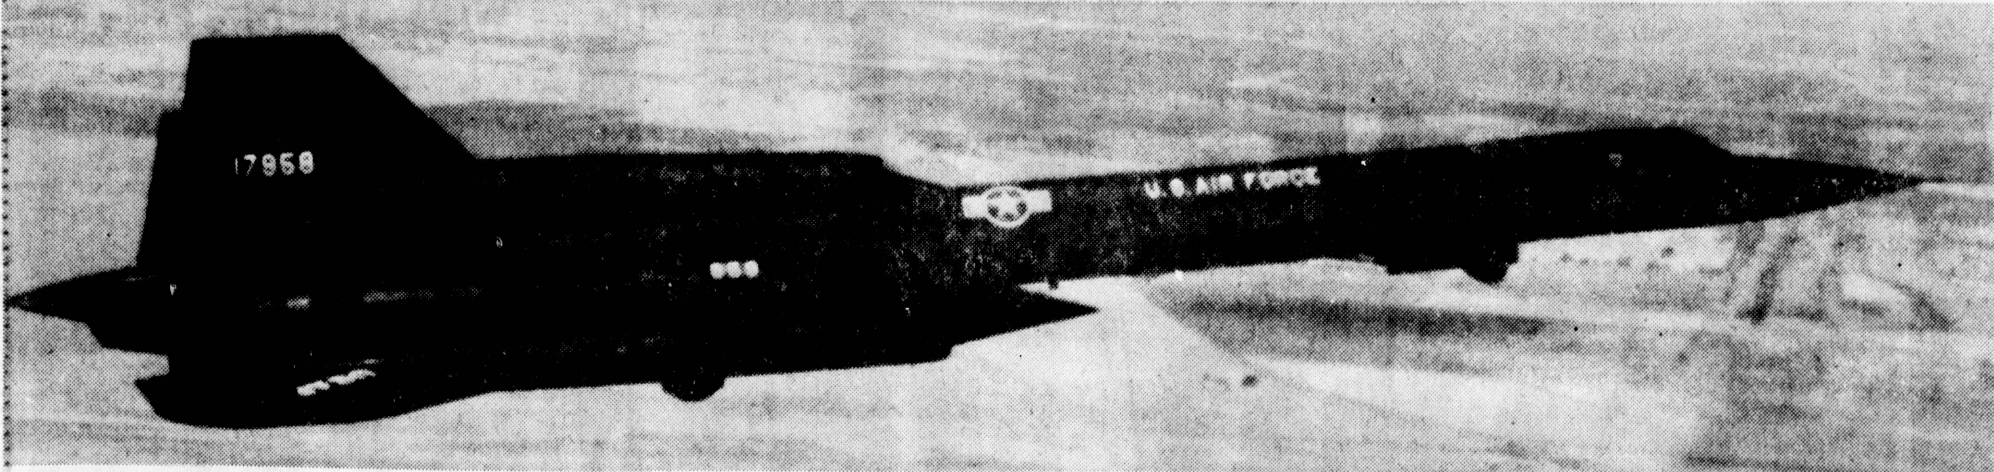

One of the comments made by most gum surgery patients is that the teeth are very sensitive to cold for quite a long time. Most periodontists will prescribe a tooth paste or mouth rinse which will tend to help this situation, but there is a period of adjustment you may expect.

Because so much depends on the daily care the gum surgery patient gives his mouth, you must agree to follow a definite program of oral hygiene. This doesn't mean simply using a toothbrush and dental floss carefully, but will involve additional items such as interdental stimulators, which may be similar to toothpicks, or a rubber point on the handle of your toothbrush. Thorough mouth rinsing will be necessary too.

Periodontists have estimated that 50 to 90 percent of gum surgery cases will be successful with proper home care. This will be checked by more frequent prophylaxis visits, probably every three months at first.

Prices Effective in Benton Harbor A&P Store Only.

Ask Your Dentist

By ALFRED E. SEYLER, D.D.S.

Q. I have had pyorrhea for many years. I have had my teeth cleaned occasionally. The dentist I went to last told me I would have to have gum surgery if I want to keep my teeth. Do you think this a good treatment for my trouble?

A. I don't know, since you did not send me any more information than in the above paragraph. But I do believe that gum surgery in itself is not the answer to the problem you evidently have.

Today there are several acceptable methods of treating pyorrhea, more properly called periodontal disease. Gum surgery used to be considered a radical procedure, but nowadays many dentists recommend and perform such treatment. Prophylaxis by the dentist, involving scaling and scraping of the teeth below the gum is satisfactory in some instances, but in more advanced cases, gum surgery is the treatment of choice.

However, both you and your dentist must agree that there is a chance of failure, just as there is hope for a successful result.

There are reasons for your pyorrhea — perhaps your general systemic condition is poor and your nutritional and eating habits have contributed to the problem. You will have to recognize these possibilities and take the necessary steps to correct them.

If you have missing teeth or teeth which because of poor or improper fillings permit food to pack between them, you will have to have such things corrected by bridgework and new, properly shaped fillings.

One causative factor alone seldom produces pyorrhea.

Your dentist will have to consider all the possible reasons, such as tartar, tooth brushing and flossing, missing teeth, nutrition, your biting, chewing and the way your teeth meet, which we call occlusion.

Gum surgery is usually done in steps such as one-quarter of the mouth at each operation. While the procedure itself will probably be painless, since it is done under local anesthetic, the healing period for each area may vary from two weeks to a month or more.

Sedative dressings are usually used for the patient's comfort, but you must understand that your ability to chew food will be limited and that you will be on a restricted diet.

One of the comments made by most gum surgery patients is that the teeth are very sensitive to cold for quite a long time. Most periodontists will prescribe a tooth paste or mouth rinse which will tend to help this situation, but there is a period of adjustment you may expect.

Because so much depends on the daily care the gum surgery patient gives his mouth, you must agree to follow a definite program of oral hygiene. This doesn't mean simply using a toothbrush and dental floss carefully, but will involve additional items such as interdental stimulators, which may be similar to toothpicks, or a rubber point on the handle of your toothbrush. Thorough mouth rinsing will be necessary too.

Periodontists have estimated that 50 to 90 percent of gum surgery cases will be successful with proper home care. This will be checked by more frequent prophylaxis visits, probably every three months at first.

Niles Boy's Steer Grand Champion For Berrien Fair

BY NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

At the conclusion of a taxing 13½ hours of beef judging Tuesday at the Berrien County Youth Fair, a Charolais steer shown by Tim Albert, 15, of Niles, was named grand champion market steer.

It was nearly 7:30 last night before Judge Jeff Dilts, Michigan State university herdsman, had sorted through the 112-steer field and selected the fair's best.

Tim qualified for the finals in beef judging by taking "Wendell," a 1,230-pound steer, to a championship in the Charolais steer class. Reserve champion in that class was shown by Todd Marschke, of Berrien Springs.

Overall reserve grand champion market steer honors went to "Brutus," a 1,365-pound Simmental-Angus steer shown by Dale Seyfred, 17, of Galien. Most of the steers shown yesterday will be auctioned off at 1 p.m. Friday.

While youngsters toiled under the sun in the beef ring, workers in the Horticulture Building were reminded of the freezing temperatures this spring by the near-absence of several fruit varieties.

For the first time in memory, there were no plums or apricots entered this year, and the numbers of peaches and pears were sharply down. And the last week's stretch of cool weather was cited as the reason for an outlandishly large number of green tomato exhibits.

Barb Sherburn, 16, of Berrien Springs, entered the grand champion fruit exhibit, a flat of peaches. Eight-year-old Karen Skibbe, of Eau Claire, won reserve champion designation with a flat of Fenton apples.

Lensman Overcome By Heat

A professional photographer working at the Berrien County Youth Fair was overcome by heat while shooting pictures of the horse competition yesterday about 1 p.m.

Treated and released from Pawating hospital, Niles, was Paul H. Dubman, Route 1, Box 174, Berrien Center. Dubman was hired by the Youth Fair association and was described as a man in his 30's by James Harrison, fair publicity director.

Dubman, owner of a photo laboratory and studio, had been taking pictures for about five hours straight in the open when the incident occurred, said Harrison.

For the second year in a row, the grand champion vegetable exhibit was shown by Andy Schilling, 18, of Eau Claire. Reserve champ honors went to Deana Teifke, 14, of Buchanan. Vanessa Nelson, 17, of Fred Foster and Charles LaSata, both of Niles, showed, respectively, the champion and reserve champion Hereford steers.

Bill Foster, of Niles, and Sheila Krieger, of Bridgman, showed, in that order, the champion and reserve champion Angus steers.

Dale Seyfred, of Galien, exhibited the champion Simmental market steer, and reserve honors went to a steer displayed by Pam Durm, of Niles.

Laura Seabast, of Buchanan, and Cynthia Raines, of Benton Harbor, showed the animals that won champion and reserve champion Crossbred steer honors.

Lynn Powers and James Jensen, both of Niles, exhibited, respectively, the champion and reserve champion dairy steers. Beef exhibitors yesterday were involved in the three show-

Buchanan, duplicated her flawless 1975 performance and again captured the Jack Dean, Jr., memorial trophy for horse showmanship. Reserve champion horse showmanship honors — and the Jerri Evelyn Smith memorial trophy — went to Wayne Perkins, 16, of Buchanan.

The grand champion food exhibit was entered by Maxine Wagner, 20, of M-140, Eau Claire, a student at Indiana university's South Bend campus who first entered a food exhibit last year. She won with a black walnut cake. Becky Reitz, of Berrien Springs, was awarded the reserve championship in foods for her bread.

Rodney Jannert, of Eau Claire, nearly swept the beef breeding classes, for female animals. His four animals took champion and reserve champion titles in two classes — Hereford female and female of any breed (in his case he entered two Simmentals).

He showed the grand champion beef female while the reserve champion was shown by Scott Foster, of Niles.

manship classes: senior (16 and over), intermediate (13 to 15) and junior (under 12).

Scott Foster was picked as best senior showman, and Rodney Jannert won reserve honors. Tim Albert took first place in the intermediate division, followed by Allen Stover, of Berrien Springs. Best junior showman was Carl Wagner, of Niles. The title of reserve champion junior showman went to Bill Burns.

Suffocation Cause Of Death

BRIDGMAN — Suffocation has been ruled the cause of death of a 15-year-old Illinois boy who died Tuesday night about four hours after a sand tunnel he was digging at Warren Dunes state park here collapsed on him.

Dr. Paul Tam, assistant Berrien county medical examiner said he made the ruling after an autopsy was conducted yesterday.

The victim, James Howard, of Elk Grove Village, Ill., was pronounced dead at 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday at Memorial hospital, St. Joseph.

Dr. Tam said the boy did not regain consciousness after being rushed to the hospital.

State police from New Buffalo said the boy was buried about five feet below ground when the tunnel collapsed at approximately 3 p.m. Tuesday.

One of two beach guards who administered first aid to the boy was incorrectly identified in a story published by this paper regarding the death yesterday.

His correct name is Scott

Johnson, 21, Berrien Springs. Johnson and Paul McMinn, 21, South Bend, accompanied the boy to the hospital in an ambulance.

A third beach guard at the park, Steven Skahn, 20, Sawyer, helped free the boy after the tunnel collapsed.

Park officials said it took 15 to 20 minutes to free the trapped teenager.

The boy had come to the park with a group of 187 youths from an Elk Grove Village church on an outing.

Rezoning Hearing Slated

The Bainbridge township planning commission will hold a public hearing Monday, Aug. 23, on the proposed rezoning of 17 acres for expansion of the Meadowbrook Park mobile home subdivision.

Carlyle Eber, chairman of the planning commission, said the hearing will be held in the Bainbridge township hall at 7:30 p.m.

The request from Herbert Reimers, of St. Joseph, asks for a zoning change from agricultural to a residential mobile home district.

A similar request last April for rezoning 50.2 acres was denied by the planning commission after strong opposition was filed by nearby residents. The rezoning would have allowed 44 additional mobile home sites.

The new rezoning request, if approved, would permit the construction of up to 27 additional mobile home sites on the southern end of the existing mobile home park.

The present park constructed in 1971, contains 42 sites and is located on Park road, just south of Meadowbrook road.

LAST CHANCE: Maxine Wagner, 20, of M-140, Eau Claire, will be too old to enter the Berrien County Youth Fair next year, so it's fitting that her black walnut cake was named grand champion food exhibit during yesterday's judging. Maxine, who is studying to be an accountant at Indiana university's South Bend campus, first entered a food exhibit at the fair last year. She said she got an A-rating on last year's cookies and decided to try for the top honor this year. (Staff photo)

Many Area Schools Still Without Master Contract

BY AL AREND
Staff Writer

With the opening of school nearing, 42 per cent of the K-12 public school districts in southwestern Michigan have not ratified or reached tentative agreement on master contracts with their respective teacher unions.

In a telephone survey conducted by this newspaper yesterday, it was learned that of the 31 school districts contacted, only 15 have ratified contracts with their teachers for 1976-77 school year. A total of 13 districts remain unsettled and three have reached tentative agreement on new contracts.

School districts with ratified contracts or working on multi-year pacts are Benton Harbor, Brandywine, Bridgman, Eau Claire, Lakeshore, Niles, River Valley, St. Joseph, Decatur, Hartford, Mattawan, Paw Paw, South Haven, Edwardsburg, and Fennville.

Those reporting that tentative agreements have been reached are Watervliet, Bloomingdale and Covert.

Districts that have not agreed to contract terms for 1976-77 as yet include Berrien Springs, Buchanan, Coloma, Galien, New Buffalo, Bangor, Gobles, Lawrence, Lawton, Cassopolis, Dowagiac, Marcellus, and Saugatuck.

At the two-year junior colleges, Lake Michigan college (LMC) teachers no longer have union representation and teaching contracts are given on an individual basis. The faculty at Southwestern Michigan college (SMC) is working on the second year of a two-year pact signed last summer.

LMC is located in Benton Harbor. SMC is in Dowagiac.

State Landlord Leaders To Address Berrien Group

Officials of the Michigan Landlords Association, Lansing, are scheduled to attend the Aug. 25 meeting of United Landlords of Berrien County to confer on various common problems.

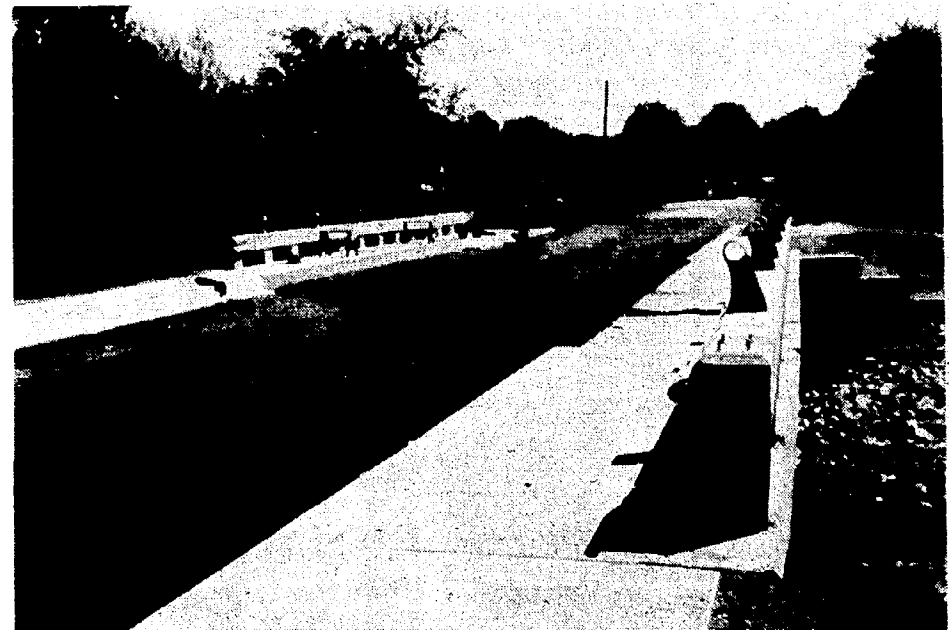

Mrs. Musetta Hilliard, United Landlords secretary, said the meeting will be at 7 p.m. in the Auto Specialties Credit Union building, Klock road, St. Joseph.

Scheduled to head discussion sessions are Bill Harris, executive president, and Ellen Harris, secretary of the Michigan Landlords Association; and John Plagn, executive officer of the Tri-County Landlords Association, Lansing.

Topics to be covered are buying-selling property, financing, rent collection, taxes and insurance.

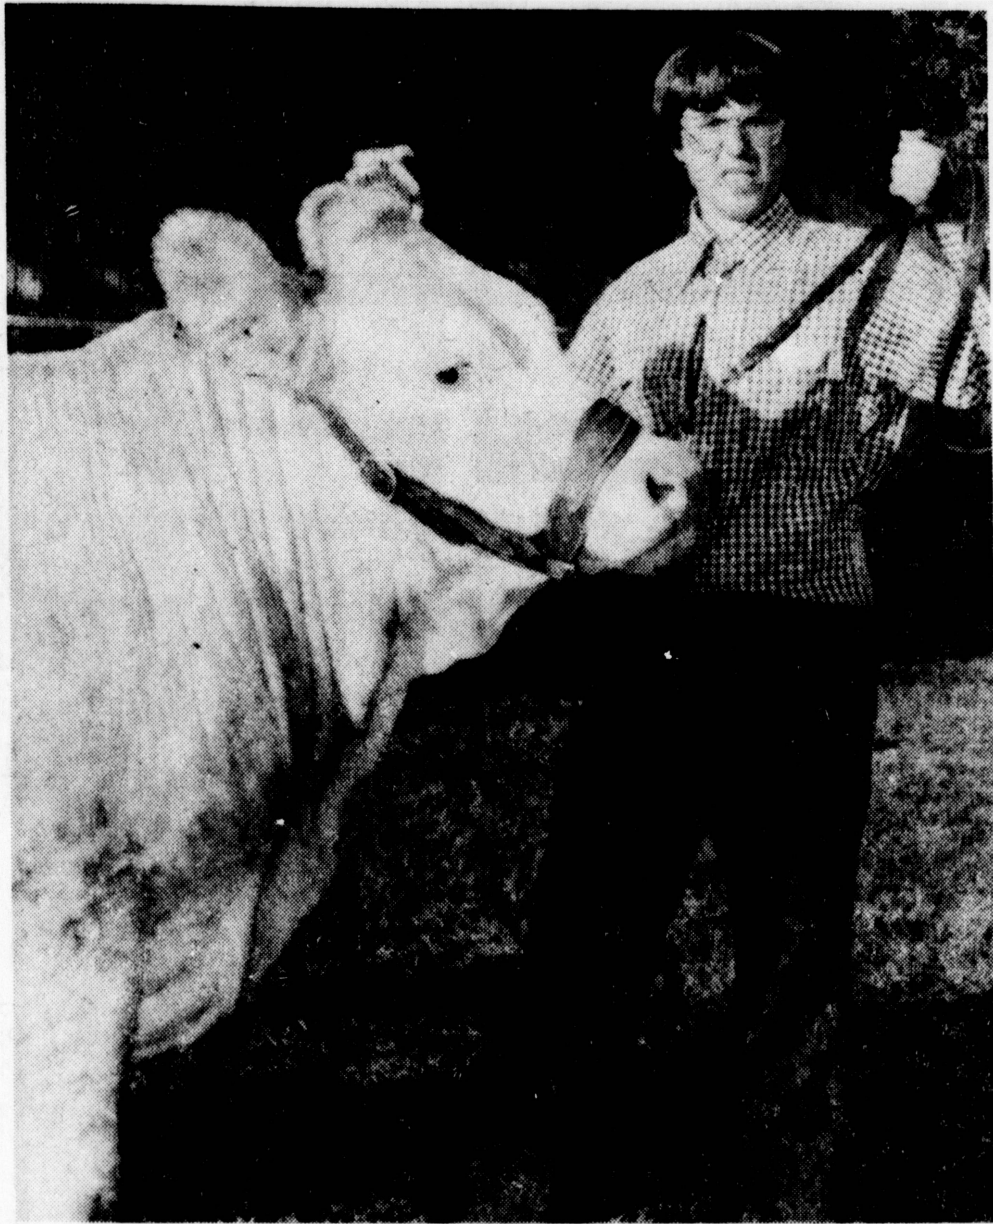

Mrs. Hilliard said all members are urged to bring a guest. United Landlords are a participating member of Michigan Landlords Association.

Tuesday at Memorial hospital, St. Joseph.

Dr. Tam said the boy did not regain consciousness after being rushed to the hospital.

State police from New Buffalo said the boy was buried about five feet below ground when the tunnel collapsed at approximately 3 p.m. Tuesday.

One of two beach guards who administered first aid to the boy was incorrectly identified in a story published by this paper regarding the death yesterday.

His correct name is Scott

Johnson, 21, Berrien Springs. Johnson and Paul McMinn, 21, South Bend, accompanied the boy to the hospital in an ambulance.

A third beach guard at the park, Steven Skahn, 20, Sawyer, helped free the boy after the tunnel collapsed.

Park officials said it took 15 to 20 minutes to free the trapped teenager.

The boy had come to the park with a group of 187 youths from an Elk Grove Village church on an outing.

Many Area Schools Still Without Master Contract

BY AL AREND
Staff Writer

With the opening of school nearing, 42 per cent of the K-12 public school districts in southwestern Michigan have not ratified or reached tentative agreement on master contracts with their respective teacher unions.

In a telephone survey conducted by this newspaper yesterday, it was learned that of the 31 school districts contacted, only 15 have ratified contracts with their teachers for 1976-77 school year. A total of 13 districts remain unsettled and three have reached tentative agreement on new contracts.

School districts with ratified contracts or working on multi-year pacts are Benton Harbor, Brandywine, Bridgman, Eau Claire, Lakeshore, Niles, River Valley, St. Joseph, Decatur, Hartford, Mattawan, Paw Paw, South Haven, Edwardsburg, and Fennville.

Those reporting that tentative agreements have been reached are Watervliet, Bloomington and Covert.

Districts that have not agreed to contract terms for 1976-77 as yet include Berrien Springs, Buchanan, Coloma, Galien, New Buffalo, Bangor, Gobles, Lawrence, Lawton, Cassopolis, Dowagiac, Marcellus, and Saugatuck.

At the two-year junior colleges, Lake Michigan college (LMC) teachers no longer have union representation and teaching contracts are given on an individual basis. The faculty at Southwestern Michigan college (SMC) is working on the second year of a two-year pact signed last summer.

LMC is located in Benton Harbor. SMC is in Dowagiac.

Topics to be covered are buying-selling property, financing, rent collection, taxes and insurance.

Rafael Miranda Awaits Vindication, Not Parole

MARION, Ill. (AP) — That his name is unfamiliar is a measure of the years he has been imprisoned. Once he was among the most infamous men in America.

Some say the time has come to free Rafael Candel Miranda. But he will have freedom on no one's terms but his.

It was March 1, 1954. On the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives, 116 congressmen lounged through a vote on a Mexican labor bill. Above them, Miranda guided three fellow Puerto Rican nationalists into the visitors' gallery.

As the days were called they rose together, drew automatic pistols and fired perhaps a score of shots.

"My country must be freed," one of them yelled. "I want freedom for my country." Mrs. Lulita Lebron, a 30-year-old dark-eyed, dark-haired beauty, blazed away at the ceiling and waved a Puerto Rican flag.

A 23-year-old revolutionary, Miranda pointed his .38 into the well of the chamber and emptied its eight-shot clip at random. Stopping behind a chair to reload, he was subdued by spectators.

"PUERTO RICAN ASSASSINS SHOOT UP CONGRESS," the headlines shouted. "FIVE SOLONS WOUNDED." It was the work of four fanatics, the papers said.

Two trials and 22 years later, the fiery young nationalists are now at the edge of contemplative middle age. And they are still in prison.

Convicted, as were the rest, of charges ranging from assault to conspiracy to overthrow the government by force and violence, Miranda, now 45, has served nearly a third of his 81-year sentence. Mrs. Lebron is about halfway through a 36-year term.

At the first trial the judge said the shootings were "so heinous, so infamous, so daring and so atrocious as to shock the conscience of the nation ... dastardly, wicked and ruthless."

"I'm not guilty of nothing more than defending my people," Miranda says today. It was his first news interview since sentencing.

Some believe time enough has passed — the Puerto Rican delegate to Congress, the Cuban ambassador to the United Nations, the Puerto Rican General Assembly, terrorists who last year bombed an historic New York tavern, the governor of Puerto Rico, a citizens committee, and one of the victims.

Though all the congressmen survived their wounds, just two are alive today: Kenneth A. Roberts of Alabama and George H. Fallon of Maryland, both Democrats.

Roberts, now a Washington lawyer, limps from the damage a bullet did to his leg. "I think it's time to look at the record," he says. "As far as I'm concerned I would have no objections to their parole. I just feel that they have been there a long time — in light of other sentences that it's a long time."

A spokesman for the Puerto Rican delegate says: "The situation is that they are long overdue for parole."

But Fallon, now retired in Baltimore, says: "At the time I thought the judge's sentence was very fair to them, and I still think it was. I think justice is being done."

Miranda thinks not. And he waits at the U.S. Federal Penitentiary near Marion, Ill. — not for parole, but for vindication.

Miranda was born to a regional nationalist leader at Mayaguez, P.R., in 1930. He was attracted to the nationalist cause early. As a schoolboy he was expelled from class for refusing to pledge allegiance to the American flag. As a student leader, he later helped organize a strike aimed at making native Spanish the language of Puerto Rican schools. At age 18, as he walked to high school in San Juan, FBI agents arrested him for refusing conscription by the Army. Jailed for more than two years, he was freed only to be rearrested a short time later on the same charge.

In 1950 his father and several relatives were imprisoned for participation in a nationalist revolt. Miranda made his way to New York in 1952 with no love of America's government and the idea of organizing for the independence movement. He became a shoe decorator.

Then the question of Puerto Rico rose in the United Nations. America said that most Puerto Ricans did not want independence. To Miranda's mind it was an unconscionable lie. Something had to be done to balance American propaganda.

"At that moment we were internationally humiliated, and the only way we can bring attention in an international way to the Puerto Rican cause was to do something like this (the shootings)," he said. "The real intention was just to go there and give our life, expose our life ... As a matter of fact, we didn't expect to come alive from there."

"We knew we wouldn't get Puerto Rico free by going there. That would be crazy. I mean ... the army of the United States, you are not going to beat by just four young people there shooting some few bullets."

"The U.S. was at that time trying to tell the world that we are satisfied, colonized people. We went to put our life as proof that we were not satisfied, that there were Puerto Ricans, Puerto Ricans by the thousands, fighting for independence, that we had a right to the independence of Puerto Rico."

"Somebody invade your home, and you fight him back with whatever you have — they say you are not guilty," he said. "And our country is our home. And we've been attacked ... We don't got no army. So we had to use any means at our disposal. We only have our own life. And we are not guilty."

"The guilty ones are the ones who attack my people and exploit my people and invade my country. The guilty ones are those who provoke you into doing this or that."

No matter, Miranda insists, that Puerto Rico voted to be a commonwealth of the United States. That is just another way of saying colonialism, and no matter how many people vote for it, it is still wrong, he said.

"I was not aiming no place at all. Just shooting, just holding my gun down and shooting," he said.

During his trial, Miranda, a socialist, wanted to explain his motives to the jury, to tell jurors about the history of American dominance in Puerto Rico. The judge would not allow it.

"We are Puerto Rican, and ... most of the people, including the ones in the jury, didn't know what was behind the whole thing ... only knew what the papers say," he said. "Why did Puerto Ricans come here? Are they crazy or fanatic or murderers or what have you? The jury did not know ..."

"We are fighting for the independence of Puerto Rico. It was not a fair trial in the sense that we were being tried on the ground of the enemy, not the people."

Had Miranda been convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison, he would have been eligible for parole seven years ago. But under his sentence he won't be eligible until 1979.

"But that don't mean nothing to us," he said. "If you go to parole you have to say that you regret this and you regret that, if you are paroled you won't get involved ..."

(He has also refused the advice of his lawyers to petition the President for clemency. It's a petition they think stands a good chance of acceptance.)

"Anyone with a little human feeling regrets that anybody got hurt," Miranda says. "And any normal person regrets having to spend 22 years, his whole young life, in prison. But now what we don't regret is that we were able to do something, a good thing. It was for the good of our people."

"No, we don't regret that."

BATH, Mich. (AP) — Police have no leads in the slaying of two teenage campers, though they say they have received about 100 phone tips since the body of the second girl was found a week ago. State Police Detective Sgt. Lynn Knuth said none of the calls have given police any new leads toward solving the double murder of Charlotte teenagers Stacy Rost, 16, and Maureen Nichols, 17. The two were last seen camping June 13 in a large park here. Miss Nichols' body was found June 29 about four miles from where Miss Rost's body was found last Wednesday.

CBS Has Grip On Top Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — Three CBS shows led the list of most-watched television programs last week, and the network had a solid grip on first place in the Nielsen ratings for the week ended Aug. 15.

ABC and NBC tied for second in last week's ratings, but ABC maintained its over-all lead for the season. ABC's scores for the year are 17 per cent better than a year ago, while the ratings for the other two major networks have fallen off, CBS by 7 per cent, NBC by 9 per cent.

The most popular show during the week ended Aug. 15 was CBS' "All in the Family," which was seen in an estimated 16.3 million homes.

The remaining shows in the top 20 were:

"Starsky and Hutch," NBC; "Maude," CBS; "Rockford Files," NBC; "Sunday Night Movie," ABC; "This Better Be It," CBS; "What's Happening," ABC, and "Medical Center," CBS, tied; "Happy Days," ABC, and "Rhoda," CBS, tied; "Baretta," ABC; "Phyllis," CBS; "Jigsaw John," NBC; "Barnaby Rudge," CBS; "Good Times," CBS, and "Steets of San Francisco," ABC, tied; "Laverne and Shirley," ABC, and "Welcome Back Kotter," ABC.

SLOWDOWN IN INFLATION — A POLITICAL ISSUE

A top political-economic boast of the Republicans after they finish this week's infighting at Kansas City and square off for the real fight to climax in November will be that the anti-inflation policies of the Ford administration have slashed the upsurge in our cost of living in half — from the nightmare 12 per cent double-digit pace of mid-'74 to the 6 per cent range of mid-'76.

This is an enormously powerful, vote-getting boast. For every responsible poll ranks inflation, not unemployment, as the No. 1 concern of the majority of American adults.

The thought-provoking comparison is that while there are 7.4 million jobless worried about getting work, there are close to 88 million jobholders worried about the cost of living.

And the basic population statistics dramatize the point even more, for studies by Robert H. Miller of Boston's Vance, Sanders & Co., show that an overwhelming two-thirds of our population were born too late to have any memories at all of the unemployment of the great Depression while the vast majority have vivid memories of the galloping inflation of the late 1960s-'70s. But before the political oratory starts to build toward crescendo and the half-truths obscure the truths, heed these realities — offered as objectively as I can manage.

(1) Just as many forces behind the blimp in inflation in 1973-74 were beyond the White House's control then, so many of the forces working toward the slowdown have been due to events over which the recent White House has had no control.

(2) If the GOP's speechwriters give the Republicans credit for the Federal Reserve System's firm emphasis on preventing a swollen money supply from feeding inflation in 1976, they also must accept the blame for the Central Bank's blimp in the money supply in 1972 igniting the subsequent dreadful price spiral.

(3) Any claim that inflation control under the Republicans has been better than under the Democrats must be branded an outright lie. The record under Presidents Nixon and Ford has been by far the worst of this generation.

(4) To be even more blunt about it, the slowdown in the inflation rate has been due primarily to what hasn't happened in the past several months, not to what has happened.

The oil-rich Arab nations

(OPEC members) have not dared to quadruple oil prices again in a span of a few months (as in 1973-74). They discovered their price holdup backfired — making it much more expensive for them to buy essential foreign goods at inflated prices and throwing their economies into turmoil. They also found the West more allied as consumers than they had anticipated.

The U.S. has not been devastated by severe droughts and destruction of crops as in 1973-74, a blessing endowed by nature, not Washington. In fact, our crops are abundant to a degree promising a mere 4 to 5 per cent rise in food prices in 1976. And droughts in other lands have not been as catastrophic as a few years back.

Recessions in nations around the world have modified their current bidding for our foodstuffs and other products, and so prices here have not been spiraling upward in response to massive foreign demands. And the U.S. dollar is no longer so undervalued as to spur foreign purchases here and make our imports so costly.

And shortages of basic raw materials and industrial commodities have not reappeared on a global scale. Unions have not been so aggressive in their inflationary wage demands and the rise in productivity (output per hour) is holding labor unit costs to a non-inflationary range. As for the smaller-than-expected budget deficit, the Republican White House must share with the Democratic Congress the credit for limiting spending increases.

These are fundamental factors contributing to our more tolerable — but still unacceptable — annual rate of rise in prices. These are economic realities, not political half-truths.

Below is the dollar's record since 1965. The assumption is the dollar was worth 100 cents in 1948, first "normal" year in our economy after the end of World War II's price explosion.

Stocks Continue Strong

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices moved higher today, continuing the strength of the previous two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up about a point in early trading and advanced led declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Stocks as usual were active shortly after the opening bell.

Brokers said the market may be encouraged by government reports that housing permits, an important indicator of future economic activity, climbed 6 per cent in July to their highest level in more than two years. Also, personal income rose one per cent last month, its biggest monthly jump since last August, the government said.

Although President Ford appeared to be widening his lead in the race for the GOP nomination, the final choice has not been made creating an uncertainty for the market, brokers noted.

Active stocks included American Telephone & Telegraph, up 1/4 to 60 1/2 and U.S. Steel, off 1/4 at 49 1/2.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average advanced 6.57 points to 999.34, its highest close in about five weeks. Investors showed interest in such stocks as Procter & Gamble and S.S. Kresge which reported sharply higher second quarter earnings.

In the general list of stocks, advances only narrowly led declines and trading rose to moderate levels from fairly slow recent sessions.

Days-Off Plan Not For Salary Workers

DETROIT (AP) — A United Auto Workers proposal to win more job security through extra days off probably won't affect the union's salaried members, according to UAW vice president Douglas Fraser.

Fraser, head of the UAW's Chrysler division, said Tuesday bargainers for some 8,500 salaried workers at Chrysler were looking for alternative approaches for increased job security for white-collar employees.

The union told auto makers Monday it wanted to create more jobs by giving workers additional paid days off.

Fraser said the additional

Chrysler Dispute Ended

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union has withdrawn its threat to resume a local strike at Chrysler's key Trenton engine plant following an on-site inspection of the facility.

UAW Vice President Douglas Fraser said Tuesday after a 2 1/2-hour tour of the plant that poor ventilation and housekeeping, which prompted a three-day strike last month, had been corrected satisfactorily by the firm.

Some 4,400 members of UAW Local 372 struck the plant July 7 over complaints of searing temperatures and oil-slicked floors covered with metal scrapings. The walkout ended after the company agreed to install new ventilation ducts and clean the floors.

However, local union officials complained last week that the firm still had not eliminated oil spillages, and the UAW threatened to resume a strike this week if the situation weren't improved.

A UAW spokesman said union inspectors would police the plant daily to make sure the facility remains clean.

"We won't hesitate to put them on (strike) notice again if the same problems crop up," he said.

Last month's walkout at the Trenton plant, Chrysler's sole producer of two large-car engines, forced the firm to cut back car production until a settlement was reached.

Rocky Is Involved In Convention Tiff

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — There was a brief war between New York and Utah during Tuesday night's session of the Republican National Convention and a telephone was a casualty. Robert Sykes, a Utah delegate, says Vice President Nelson Rockefeller started the whole thing by snatching a Reagan sign away from Jack Bailey, a North Carolina delegate.

Rockefeller said later that Bailey handed him the Reagan sign. But Bailey says the vice president took it from him, folded it and put it under his chair, placing his feet on it. He said he asked Rockefeller to return it, but the vice president refused. Bailey said he then went to the chairman of the New York delegation, Richard Rosenbaum and told him, "I'll have to have my sign back or I'll take this telephone." At that, witnesses said, Salt Lake City, Utah, delegate Douglas Bischoff entered the argument and ended up ripping out the delegation's telephone, leaving Bailey holding the receiver.

Sykes said Rosenbaum chased Bischoff, screaming at Rockefeller's Secret Service guards: "I want that man arrested. He ripped my phone out. That's what Reagan people are like."

Bischoff was taken off the convention floor by security guards, but later returned to his seat across from the New York delegation. He said the Secret Service held him for an hour, took a statement from him and checked his credentials. Then he shook hands with Rosenbaum, apologizing for taking the telephone.

Williamsburg Recreates Flavor Of The Revolution

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Patrick Henry stood in the old colonial Capitol here and declared that Americans shouldn't have to pay taxes imposed without their consent.

George Washington, a member of the House of Burgesses, and Thomas Jefferson, a young student at the time, were in the audience.

In this same chamber, the resolution which led to the Declaration of Independence was adopted, as was the Virginia Declaration of Rights, the foundation of the U.S. Bill of Rights.

The Capitol has been reconstructed on its original site as part of an almost magically recreated colonial city, complete in its architectural and historical purity and a picture of 18th century life in America.

There is the rebuilt palace where royal governors lived and where Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson resided as the first elected governors of the new State of Virginia.

Jefferson studied in the Wren building, a surviving original which has served the College of William and Mary, America's second oldest university, since 1699. It is the oldest academic structure still in use in the United States.

The old magazine where powder and muskets were stored still stands. There is the public gaol (jail, in modern English) where 13 of Blackbeard's pirates were hanged.

There are the homes of Peyton Randolph, first president of the Continental Congress, and of George Wythe, first professor of law in an American university and teacher of Thomas Jefferson and John Marshall.

In shops which look as they did when American and French armies camped here on their way to Yorktown, you can see costumed craftsmen making barrels, boots, baskets, flintlocks, sideboards, horseshoes, gingerbread, silver spoons, candles, spinets.

Militia drill on the market square and fire ancient musket and cannon. Young fifers and drummers parade and play revolutionary tunes. Liveried drivers guide carriages and wagons over the streets.

Pagentry is a daily affair at Williamsburg, but there are some special events important to the avid Bicentennial traveler.

On Oct. 7, for example, Williamsburg celebrates the first General Assembly under the new state constitution. Travelers should ask ahead about special observations.

Just eight miles down a scenic parkway is Jamestown, where the first permanent English settlement in America was established in 1607. This is the ground made famous by Capt. John Smith and Pocahontas.

In Jamestown Festival Park you can see a reconstruction of the fort and thatched huts in which the first settlers lived and the tiny ships in which they sailed 13 years ahead of the Mayflower.

In an adjacent national park is the original Jamestown site with excavations of English America's oldest houses. The church in which the first legislature in America met has been restored on original foundations. The steeple tower is original and has stood since 1639.

At the other end of the parkway, 14 miles beyond Williamsburg, is Yorktown, where the

surrender was negotiated and the field where Gen. Corn-

A Trip Into The Past

EDITOR'S NOTE — For the dedicated Bicentennial traveler, for one who truly wants to experience the nation's past, there is no place like Williamsburg, Va. The restoration is authentic, accommodations are plentiful, and dinner in a 200-year-old tavern is a special joy.

Visitors can see the siege works, the house where wallis's British troops marched to surrender to the tune of "The World Turned Upside Down."

Williamsburg and the connecting parkway to Jamestown and Yorktown are just off Interstate Highway 64, about 50 miles southeast of Richmond, Va. The way is clearly marked by signs from the Interstate.

Automobile traffic is rigidly restricted in the historic area and daytime parking on the fringes is virtually nonexistent. So, first-time visitors should go directly to the Information Center where shuttle bus service is included in the price of the admission ticket.

Motels abound in the Williamsburg area but are usually booked three to four weeks in advance. No visitor should expect to stay overnight in Williamsburg without an advance reservation.

Eating is one of the best parts of a Williamsburg visit. The fare ranges from colonial dishes in 200-year-old taverns to modest family restaurants.

The best way to see Jamestown is to go first to Festival Park where two museums and reconstructed 17th century buildings illustrate the lives of America's first English settlers. Then to the original site to see where it all really happened.

A National Park Service information center provides guidance to Yorktown and the battle sites. A major state bicentennial center, featuring the military aspects of the Revolution, opened recently.

DOCTORS SAY a person's feet can be an index to illnesses on other parts of the body, and a podiatrist can often detect circulatory deficiencies, arthritis, kidney trouble, heart disease, diabetes and nervous disorders... Graphologists say that large handwriting indicates ambition and love of the limelight, ability to think big, childishness and a tendency to exaggerate... Weather Forecast: When spiders spin large webs, it means rain is in the offing... Psychologists say if you doodle mechanical contrivances, it indicates you are ruled by the heart, not by the head, and you are impulsive, emotional and in need of other people... Those Laws: Candy cigarettes are prohibited from being sold in Asher, N.D.... Superstition: The person who eats lots and lots of beet is deeply in love. (With beet?)

HANGOVER CURE: Drink a pint of warm water with a teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda dissolved in it... Famous Last Words: "The way I see it, the union is just bluffing. The wouldn't dare go out on strike."... Home Decor Tip: One of the best ways to select a color scheme when decorating is to examine nature. If the colors are found in a single flower, for example, they are in flawless taste... Did you know that left-handers make up 11 to 20 per cent of the American public?... Beauty Hint: Whipped egg whites form an excellent astringent face mask. Dab on a thick layer of the foam, let dry, then rinse off with cold water. Remember when the very picture of blinding speed was voiced by the expression, "going like 60!"... Bar-Snooping: Try a watercress sprig in place of an olive in the next martini.

KITCHEN-SNOOPING: To make boiled potatoes snowy white, add a teaspoon of vinegar or fresh lemon juice to the water (Kitty Hawk Restaurant, NYC)... The new beau on the "Avon Calling" TV commercials is the former Serena Rhineland.
